MOTOR CYCLE CARS OUT

Four Wheeled Development of Motor Cycle One of Latest Novelties in Automobile Devices

In England, and, to a lesser degree, in France and Germany, automobile circles are taking a lively interest in the "motorcycle car." These little vehicles are neither real automobiles in the usual sense of the word nor motorcycles. Americans, too, have developed cycles of their own, or vehicles so closely akin to the typical cyclecar that they must be classed as such.

In the broadest possible sense, the American cyclecars might be classed as imitations of the foreign style. Actually, however, they are not imitations. They are original vehicles, brought out to fill in America the place that is filled abroad by the foreign cyclecar. Hence, it was to be expected, in forecasting their ultimate development, that there would be vital differences between the American and the foreign cars.

Undoubtedly it was the motorcycle that furnished the inspiration for the cyclecar. Most motorcycles will carry two persons, but hardly in comfort. Hence, to carry two persons in comfort required some other arrangement, and because of the difficulty of constructing side cars that will stand up and that look well and afford real protection to the second passenger, as well as to the first, the cyclecar was naturally evolved.

And, quite as naturally, the typical foreign cyclecar is characteristic of the latest motorcycle whence it sprang. It is true that some of the foreign so-called cyclecars are perilously like fullledged automobiles in everything else but size.

It is therefore apparent that there are few restrictions to bind the designer of a cyclecar, and yet the restrictions are sufficient to make necessary the elimination of parts that characterize the full-sized automobile. Thus the typical foreign cyclecar is minus the usual differential mechanism and five rear axle, and as a rule has no change gear set. In these two respects the American cyclecar, or the American vehicle that comes as near to being a cyclecar as is possible with proper construction, is quite different from its foreign cousin. In every one of the four American cyclecars on the market at present there is a change gear set, shaft drive, live rear axle and a differential mechanism, all of which parts belong to the ordinary motor car. Hence, whereas the foreign cyclecar is a thing apart, the American cyclecar is nothing more or less than a miniature edition of a full-sized automobile.

In the design of the typical foreign cyclecar the motorcycle motor, designed and built for the motorcycle, is adopted in toto without any excuse and with less alteration. As a rule, it is a twin-cylinder air-cooled motor. In every one of the four American cyclecars to which we have referred, however, the motor is a four-cylinder machine and is cooled by water. All of them, except one, are block-constructed machines with poppet-valves, and the one exception has a piston-valve motor. Among 22 makes of well known foreign cyclecars, on the other hand, only two have four-cylinder, water-cooled motors, whereas 11 have two-cylinder, air-cooled motors, two have single-cylinder, air-cooled motors, and seven have two-cylinder water-cooled motors. The resemblance to motor-cycle practice is unmistakable.

In the transmission elements of the 22 foreign cyclecars, the resemblance to motorcycle construction is even more apparent. Seven of them are driven by means of belts to the rear wheels; three of these seven, six have chain transmission from the engine to a countershaft; three of them are driven directly by chains and the remainder have shaft drive to either level or worm gearing on the rear axle. In the four American cyclecars which we have studied we find that every one has shaft-drive through a three-speed gear-set to a differential-bevel drive rear axle. The American cars, therefore, are much more closely allied to their larger brothers of the automobile world than are the foreign cyclecars.

If we examine the 16 cyclecars representing England, France and Germany, that ran in the Automobile club of France's grand prix race for cyclecars a few weeks since we discover that no less than nine of them were driven by belt, and of these nine six had chain drive to a countershaft; the remaining three out of the nine had, in two cases, shaft drive to the countershaft, and in the third case—the "Bedella"—the drive was direct from the engine to the road wheels by belt. These little machines are very obviously nothing more than enlarged motorcycles.

Still further examination of these foreign cyclecars shows that in a great many cases the steering gear consists of nothing more complicated than a couple of steel cables running over a drum on the lower end of the steering column. Six of the cyclecars in the grand prix race were so controlled. American practice, however, prescribes the regulation worm and sector gear found in full-sized automobiles. Again, the tread or wheel track of the typical foreign cyclecar is narrower than the standard 56 inches adhered to by the makers of large motor cars. The tread of two of the American cyclecars measures 37 and 44 inches, respectively; of the other two, 54 inches. The average wheelbase of the foreign cyclecar is approximately 58 inches, and the average wheelbase of the four American cyclecars is 64 inches; the average weight of the foreign cyclecar is a little over 510 pounds, and the average weight of the four American cars is nearer to 550 pounds.

Before going any further it is necessary to call attention to the fact, if that fact has not already been discovered, that the four American cars which have been partially described, are not, strictly speaking, cyclecars. But they are small cars—very small ones—and they are the nearest approach to the type cyclecar that has as yet been produced for the market in America. Consequently, as such, they are interesting.

If they are considered as real cyclecars, they are easily the superior of the average foreign cyclecar, which in the language of a well known British engineer who recently paid a visit to the United States, "is poorly designed and supremely constructed with too little attention paid to detail and to the strength of parts."

Just how far short of their ideals foreign manufacturers of cyclecars have fallen is well indicated by the list prices that are quoted for these little vehicles. Despite the light construction, the adoption of existing motors and the incorporation of motorcycle features, all of which logically should be expected to lower production cost and hence selling price, the foreign 1100 cyclecar is still practically unknown; and it was the 1100 cyclecar that designers first sought, and, be it added, still are seeking.

In the mean time, American designers have bestirred themselves and actually have produced the 500 cyclecar. In two cases that figure includes a reasonable amount of equipment, which is never included under foreign selling prices. Starting virtually at the bottom, with little but the germ of the cyclecar idea, American designers have cast out motorcycle principles as unsuitable and have built their cyclecars from the bottom up. As a result they may be styled, without any fear of contradiction, able little cars capable of standing up under hard service.

U. S. CARS IN CANADA

OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT FOR AMERICAN CARS THERE BUT MANY OBSTACLES MUST BE OVERCOME

That the American motor car manufacturer is more than holding his own in the Dominion of Canada, is the belief of a Canadian manager for a U. S. concern, who has just arrived in Detroit after a 500-mile trip through Canada.

"The American maker is going to win out in the Dominion because of his superior resources and advantages," he said. "Competition in the Canadian field at the present time is between the American, British and Canadian manufacturers. So far, the Canadian maker has had the hardest kind of fighting, due to the scarcity of part manufacturers in Canada. He has to import the greater part of his finished material and this adds considerably to the cost of his car. The British manufacturer, lacking the benefits obtained from quantity production, and with only a slight preferential duty in his favor, has not yet proven a serious competitor to the big American concern."

"Importations of American cars into Canada have steadily increased in the past five years, the gain being especially large in the class of cars selling between $2000 and $3000. With the great number of reputable dealers that have taken up the sale of American cars in Canada the coming year should see still further progress made."

"Probably the greatest difficulty encountered in selling cars in Canada, is the amount of credit demanded. In Saskatchewan, Alberta and other western provinces, nearly all business is carried on long credit terms. At the present time, ready cash is as scarce in western Canada as the proverbial hen's tooth."

"The big real estate operators and farmers consider it poor business policy to have large sums of money in the bank. As fast as they obtain ready cash, it is invested in more land. As a result the man worth millions in real estate has an astoundingly small amount of ready money. This land-poor condition is common in the west and I have seen some instances where a man could not raise $500 on real estate worth $100,000. Naturally, as most of his business is transacted on credit, the big land-holder wants to buy his motor cars on the same plan. Many car sales have been held up because of this fact, but both the American and Canadian manufacturers have been firm in their demand for cash transactions, and I believe the property owner will eventually realize that buying automobiles is strictly a C. O. D. proposition."

"In the matter of good roads, Canada is easily keeping pace with the United States. The province of Quebec alone has voted $1,000,000 for road improvements and a magnificent new highway between the cities of Quebec and Montreal is almost completed. The eastern provinces are leading in the appropriations for better roads, but the fine natural prairie roads of the west, makes touring in that section equally enjoyable. The energy with which the Lincoln highway project has been pushed in the United States, has re-awakened interest in a similar road for Canada. The chief obstacle to a trans-continental Canadian road is the broken country in northern Ontario, commonly known as the North Shore. Many millions would be necessary in placing a road through this district, and the great cost of the job will undoubtedly postpone action for some time to come."

FIGHTER JAILED

Used His Fists on Man on Lakeview Avenue—Milk Case in Court

Not content with having one fight last night, William Rivet, a fighter by trade, beat up a young man named Albin Morin at the corner of Lakeview avenue and Alken street after his ring contest had been settled. Clerk Trull made quite a mistake in the sex of the complainant when he called in trumpet-like tones for "Miss" Morin to step around to the witness stand before he had seen the complainant.

The plea of the defendant was guilty, but Judge Enright decided to hear the evidence in the case. Morin testified without any urging.

The defendant, said Morin, first threatened him and then attacked him with his closed fists. "I was not afraid of him," quoth the witness, "but I knew he was a very bad fighter and I didn't want to get killed." Morin showed the court where the ring performer had struck him and allowed that it hurt pretty bad at the time it was inflicted. When asked by the court if the blow had felled him to the ground, he said that it had not, but that it was a wicked haymaker.

The defendant did not have anything to say in his own behalf, but stood in the dock swelling out his chest like a champion. Rivet was fined $10 and ordered committed until the fine was paid.

One of Rivet's seconds was also in court. His plea was guilty to the charge of drunkenness, which he explained by saying that he was in Rivet's corner. "You see," he informed the judge, "I don't do this very often, but as I was at the fight last night and in Young Rivet's corner, I felt pretty good and got canned." The officer who made the arrest testified that the defendant was around Lowell yesterday, receiving money from strangers, but the defence the defendant offered to this was his drunken condition. He was fined $5 and released upon one week's probation.

Other Offenders
Michael J. Riley wanted to appeal and also wanted to go on his own bail. Riley was arrested for drunkenness and received a two months' sentence. "I've got property," he announced, "and I'll bail myself out." Judge Enright put a stop to his talk, however, and he was sent down stairs to take a trip to jail where he will await the result of his appeal.

Something was done for him—he was given a cell and arraigned in police court this morning. Judge Enright sentenced him to a month in jail where

The liquor will have an opportunity to evaporate. He appealed, however. James Gallagher received a four months' sentence to jail for drunkenness. This was his fourth appearance in court within a year for the same offense. Michael Bonza was placed on probation for drunkenness and the non-support of his wife, with a two months' jail sentence starting him in the face if he does not reform in the near future.

Milk Case
John Jarek, a milk dealer, was charged with violating the milk law, but Judge Enright decided that the producer was at fault and his case was placed on file.

LOCAL AUTO MEN

What the Lowell Auto and Supply Dealers are Accomplishing

The various 1914 models of the standard automobiles are being exhibited and demonstrated by the different local dealers with the result of creating a deep impression on the minds regarding the many improvements and advantages of the new cars. Of course, the tastes of the customers are different, and they visit the various garages and salesrooms accordingly as the makes of autos shown are especially pleasing and attractive to them.

Home of Powerful Cars

A truly magnificent display of high powered motors of beautiful and graceful body lines may be seen at any time in the large parking room of the auto sales plant of George R. Dana and Son, 2 to 24 East Merrimack street.

The Hudson Six 54 is one of the most attractively constructed and well equipped cars in the city, and the fine new 1914 model of Mr. Dana, Jr., is attracting wide and favorable comment wherever it is seen. Certainly too much cannot be said in favor of this machine, which has many admirers who never tire of enumerating the goods points of the Hudson. One of its most important factors is the smoothness with which it runs, the absolute lack of jar of vibration of jerking of the engine. Of course there is a scientific explanation of this fact in the six cylinder, and especially in the case of the Hudson engine, the result is the characteristic smoothness and flexibility of motion of the car. Mr. Dana said that no such smoothness can be obtained from a four cylinder machine, unless by coasting down a long smooth hill with the motor running idle. The feeling is like that of flying—the same is true of the motion of the Hudson Six.

The Hudson has the left side drive, is electrically cranked and electrically lighted, besides having other advantages. Mr. Dana is highly successful in promoting the sales of this car and anticipates a "Hudson season."

New Head at Moody Bridge

Mr. James M. Ranger has assumed control of and is now conducting the popular Moody Bridge garage, located at the corner of Moody and Pawtucket streets. This garage has always been much sought by motorists, and it will be the same from now on, only on a larger scale. Mr. Ranger has a large stock of all makes of standard auto supplies, everything for the motorists, and the prices are right. There can be no doubt that the future success of this establishment is bound to be greater than ever under his capable management. It is his desire to please motorists and in this he can surely succeed.

Sales of the Ford

Pitts Supply House

Great improvements have been made in the vicinity of the auto supply house of Harry Pitts in Judd street, infinitely increasing the convenience of the establishment to motorists. A new concrete approach has been laid, so that the machines may drive right up to the door and take advantage of the electric tire pump without the inconveniences which the abrupt curb caused. This is another tribute to the progressiveness of Mr. Pitts and his foresight in providing for the convenience of his many customers. His tire and supply business is on the increase, as usual.

Boston Auto Supply Co.

One of the features of the activity of Joseph McGarry of the Boston Auto Supply Co. in Bridge street is that of arranging adjustments for the owners who have found defects in the tires. He has had much success in this line. Mr. McGarry is featuring at present, the Universal blow-out patch, which he himself absolutely guarantees to bring home the auto safely after a bad blow-out. The patch has fully as much fabric as the ordinary tire, and the layers taper finely at each end. The business at this house, also, is increasing daily, for the efficiency of the repair work of Mr. McGarry is well known.

Donovan Harness Company

The Donovan Harness company in Market and Palmer streets have a new line of auto accessories which will be of great value to the motorist. These include wind shields and other equipment and a visit to the establishment and an inspection of the stock will satisfy the prospective customer as to the quality of the goods.

Mr. Cumiskey's Many Sales

Mr. A. J. Cumiskey, of the Cumiskey motor car company of Merrimack and Moody streets, is enjoying remarkable success with the famous Studebaker truck. Up to date, he has made 15 sales of this model vehicle in this city in a comparatively short time, which speaks well for his energy and enterprise as well as for the high quality of the truck itself. Moreover, the dealers who have purchased these trucks from Mr. Cumiskey are not alone satisfied with them, but are delighted because of the great improvement which they accomplish in rapid transaction of business and delivery of

His illness was the result of overwork and strain in the tropical climate of the canal zone. There was universal regret that after eight years of the most arduous labor he should have been deprived of witnessing the completion of that part of the great task which was most especially his.

The 1900 pound truck is especially popular, and new customers are being found every day. The satisfaction which it has given thus far is its best recommendation. Mr. Cumiskey also handles the Studebaker pleasure cars, together with the Stutz and Rambler.

URGENT INCREASE

L. Superintendent Admits Men Need More Pay to Get by

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—Frank W. Garrett, superintendent of the Albany street shops of the Boston Elevated company, moved the company employees to applause yesterday afternoon at the "L" arbitration hearing when he declared that in his opinion men in his department are deserving of an increase in pay.

After the applause had been suppressed, Attorney John P. Feeney, for the carmen, said that in his opinion the superintendent is the frankest and most fair-minded man that has been called upon, to testify since the hearing began.

Mr. Feeney asked Mr. Garrett if it is not true that the men who are not receiving as much pay as they deserve are going to refuse to exert themselves when it comes to performing good work for the company—if not, as a matter of fact, they would do poor work, and the witness replied that he agreed with the lawyer and added that in his opinion keeping the pay down constitutes an extravagance, rather than an economy.

Another important statement made by Mr. Garrett is that he believed the foreman should watch for good men and not have it necessary for the men to ask for wage increases. The increases ought to be voluntarily recommended by the foremen, he said, whenever an increase is warranted.

Mr. Feeney complimented the witness for his "absolute frankness and absolute sincerity," and asked him if, under the present conditions affecting promotions, "the timid man may suffer and the 'gally' man push himself ahead." Mr. Garrett agreed with the attorney.

Superintendent Garrett said that on July 31 he recommended an increase for a very large number of the men in this department and also a change in the classification of the workmen. These recommendations are being held in abeyance.

THE LOWELL GUILD
Miss Moore, superintendent of the Lowell Guild, has given an interesting report for the year ending October 1st. The number of visits made by the district nurses amount in number to 17,433. Dinners to the amount of 17,046 have been distributed to needy cases and 1256 quarts of milk have been given to babies and patients. The appeals for clothing have been generously answered and thankfully received. One case which deserves immediate attention is that of a man of medium size who needs clothing of every description, especially an overcoat. Any contribution for this patient, together with old linen, would be gratefully received at the Guild house, 71 Dutton street.

THE SPELLBINDER

Well, I swan if Gussie Gardner isn't getting a bit fussy! Just think of his hiring Faneuil hall in which to give Mr. Bird a big "wallop." I am told that Gussie's real motive was to get Mr. Bird to draw a crowd for him as he cannot get any large audiences assembled to hear himself. Gussie has made himself the laughing stock of the hour. First he told the republican party that it would be wiped out of existence if it did not take his advice and be progressive and yet he assails the party that claims a monopoly of the progressivism of the state. Still Gussie says that if but one man is left of the republican party he will be the one. Well, dear Gussie, democrat as I am, I do not think it is quite so bad as that although the spectacle of a candidate rejecting a party platform and presenting a substitute not half so good should go far towards preparing any moribund party for the undertaker.

Why Not Conserve?
But I was about to remark that Charles Sumner Bird did not take kindly to the Faneuil hall "wallop" proposition and in my opinion he was entirely right when he hinted that such exhibitions would lower the dignity of his campaign however it might elevate that of Gussie Gardner.

But Mr. Bird made a grave mistake when he did not appoint his running mate, Dan Congrove, to represent him in the set-to with Gussie at Faneuil hall. I venture to say that Gussie under a torrent of persiflage from which the slick stocking operator of the defunct Lodge machine would never emerge. Meantime active hostilities are suspended as Gussie was called to Washington to attend a pink tea.

The Democratic Campaign
Well, how fares it with Ilo. David I. Walsh, the democratic nominee for governor? Judging from an address which he delivered at Attleboro, Thursday evening, Mr. Walsh is quite confident of election as he should be, and he is discussing the campaign in a calm and convincing manner.

Swings from the democratic platform of 1891 to show that practically all the same measures now claimed as originally theirs, by the progressive, were quelled by the democratic party many years ago. Mr. Walsh is right, in saying that the democratic party is the real progressive party, for although in the majority in the legislature, the democrats of that body have steadily led the vanguard of progress in fighting for measures of reform demanded by the people.

The democrats of Lowell should bestir themselves in support of the whole ticket and particularly in behalf of Mr. Walsh's election. Last year in his fight for lieutenant of the state, he received 5570 votes in Lowell, leading Mr. Luce, his republican opponent, by 3020 votes. This year as candidate for governor he should get a vote almost equal to that given Mr. Foss last year, namely, 5307. But to bring out the total vote active work must be done through rallies but in the words will be necessary, though it should not be necessary to say that the democrats have one of the best opportunities offered them for many years, to win a sweeping victory; but to make the most of it they must get out and hustle for their candidates.

The Opposition to Senator Fisher
Last year Senator Edward Fisher as chairman of the senate ways and means committee was instrumental in passing the "spark barrel bill," so called, the object of which was to turn over large sums of money to different public bodies for the alleged improvement of certain rivers and harbors without any definite plan. He decided that the state would not pay out $1,000,000 nor $10,000, nor even $5000 if he could stop it without first showing that the money should be applied to some definite purpose.

The bill was defeated mainly through his efforts and now the General Electric company which wanted certain Lynn marshes drained, has its foreman nominated for senator against Mr. Fisher. The candidate, personally may be a very good fellow, but he is in the employ of the largest corporation in the state and one that wants the work barrel bill revived and passed so that its marsh land may be drained as a part of the work of improving Lynn harbor. This candidate's name is Otto Reither and he Otto is defeated by an overwhelming majority. This is a case in which the voters of the district regardless of party should rally to the support of Senator Fisher so as to elect him by the biggest majority ever given any candidate in the district.

Mr. Kilpatrick's Record Again
Last Saturday in this column I gave the readers of the Sun an insight into the narrow and illiberal views of Charles T. Kilpatrick, republican candidate for senator in the eighth district, as indicated by his votes on legislative measures while a member of the general court in 1910 and 1911. I showed from the record that any popular measure and especially any measure benefiting labor was to Mr. Kilpatrick what a traditional red rag is to a bull fresh from the ranch where as any measure bearing the corporation label appears to have had his cordial support and sympathy. Here are a few more of the many citations from the record of 1912:

Feb. 14, on substituting the public opinion bill No.

April 12, ordering to third reading the 54 hour bill, No. 1.

April 22, on substituting bill to regulate collection agencies, No.

April 25, on passing to be engrossed Columbus Day bill, No.

April 28, on passing to be engrossed bill to prohibit sale of liquor to women in saloons No.

Let I should misrepresent Rep. Kilpatrick or the Sun in this question, perhaps I should say here that he voted for the bar and bottle bill.

May 9, on adoption of Hays order providing for investigation of false statements concerning securities No.

In view of the manner in which a great many people are impressed upon by inducements to purchase stock in bogus concerns, it would appear that such a law is needed to protect the public against the sale of stocks under false pretences. Lowell citizens have lost millions for want of such a law as was contemplated in this bill.

May 20, on passing to be engrossed a bill to protect faithful and competent public employees No.

May 24, on adopting amendment to rules to prohibit the solicitation of votes of members No.

Mr. Kilpatrick evidently did not wish to abolish the lobby where charity is to secure the votes necessary to carry any measure by solicitation or otherwise by more questionable methods.

But perhaps the public would consider Mr. Kilpatrick a very negative gentleman if I quoted only the instances in which he voted "No." That would misrepresent him very seriously and hence I shall cite just a few of his affirmative votes:

April 23 on rejecting bill to regulate service of young girls in Chicago restaurants, Yes.

June 1, on ordering Berkshire trolley bill to third reading, Yes.

June 2, on bill to authorize Worcester and Southbridge street railway to purchase line in Thompson, Conn., Yes.

June 7, on bill to authorize Springfield street railway to purchase line in Suffield, Conn., Yes.

May 5, on striking out imprisonment from penalty to be imposed upon officers of railroad corporations for violation of law, Yes.

From these citations from Rep. Kilpatrick's record I believe the voters will be able to see how deeply he is prejudiced against popular measures and how partial he is to all corporation measures. The man who would vote immunity from imprisonment for railroad officials for violating the law is not fit to represent any Lowell district in either branch of the legislature. That is why Mr. Kilpatrick should be defeated in the coming election.

As to the record of Senator Draper there is little to be said. He is not an extremist nor a radical on labor measure but he has voted for every measure calculated to promote the public good. He believes in fair play for employers of labor as well as for the laborers themselves. He is a safe man to elect and for that reason I predict his election by a respectable majority. Let it be remembered that a vote cast for the progressive candidate in the coming election is thrown away inasmuch as he has no possible chance of election.

The County Fight
The only official activity shown in the county fight thus far is by the county ring in favor of its candidate, Charles McIntire, the nominee of the progressive party. This reason the ring swings from the republican candidate, Ex-senator Barlow, is that he is knocking them right and left and has been doing so for a considerable time. This situation offers an excellent chance for the democrats to elect their candidate if they make any effort, but the democrats at this end of the district are waiting to see their candidate, Mr. McCloskey of Cambridge, and to find out whether he will put up an aggressive battle. Meanwhile Mr. Barlow is denouncing the "ring" and appealing for votes on that issue and on his record throughout the district. It is about time for the democrats to wake up if they mean to do anything in the county fight. Although rather early in the season it may be said that Mr. Barlow is "tutting" his wolverine goes.

Reports have it that William J. Corcoran, the democratic candidate for district attorney will at least appear on the stump. He was to speak here yesterday but the rally at the machine shop sale was called off on account of the rain. It is refreshing to find even one county candidate on the democratic ticket ready to meet the voters face to face.

The 11th Rep. District
Out in the 11th representative district there is a three cornered fight in which James P. Dunnigan, democrat, of North Chelmsford, is pitted against Charles Kimball of Littleton, republican nominee, and John Kennison of Ayer, progressive. This is not the first time Mr. Dunnigan sought the office having been beaten by but 248 votes by one of the strongest candidates put up in the district for many years. Mr. Dunnigan has held about every office in the gift of his town, having been select man for four years, assessor for ten years, and chairman of the water commission for three years. In each and all he dealt with credit to himself and his town.

He is now in the coal business and manages a farm on the side. Dunnigan is a live wire and the people of the district will make no mistake if they elect him to represent them in the general court. The district includes the towns of Ayer, Carlisle, Chelmsford, Littleton and Westford with over 3000 voters. No man knows the needs of the district better than Mr. Dunnigan.

How Rep. Butler was Defeated
Rep. Otis W. Butler comes out to explain how the nomination for senator in the eighth district was taken away from him and given to Mr. Kilpatrick by misrepresentation as to his votes in the legislature. Mr. Butler issues a statement in reply to the woman suffrage advertisement showing that he has been very much wronged by the women or whomsoever framed and published the advertisement in their name. Mr. Butler referring to the advertisement published September 22 on the eve of the primary says he once in the votes of the district as well as to himself, to answer the charges made against him at the last minute by the Woman Suffrage association. On several of the bills which they accused him of opposing by his vote, the question was not set forth by them in their circulars and advertisements, but was on the appointment of recess committees on matters for which paid state commissioners were then in existence.

There were orders for nearly twenty recess committees and Rep. Butler voted against all of them and as an endorsement of his course the senate declined to approve any of them. Each committee would cost the state about $15,000 besides traveling expenses and he believed all good citizens opposed to these committees except in extreme cases. Had the Woman Suffrage association put the question as they should it would have looked and read entirely different.

On the nine-hour-in-eleven bill for street railway men, Rep. Butler voted to pass the bill over the governor's veto. In the case of labeling milk from outside the state he voted against this because the milk contractors contemplated using this as a means of putting the price of milk up another cent per quart without changing the quality of the milk. For instance, one of the biggest milk contractors in Boston has a car come to Boston that is started either in Vermont or New York and this car passes through a part of Connecticut, Vermont, New Hampshire and Massachusetts, and one can readily see that the extra handling and work this would require could easily be made the pretext for raising the price of milk if such a bill was passed and became a law.

He voted against the constitutional amendment on women suffrage because he is opposed to amending the constitution until it is shown that there is sufficient demand for it, and so he voted for the only bill that would put the question on the ballot this fall, submitting the question to the voters.

It is hard to understand how the Woman Suffrage association can assume the attitude they have taken on any of the bills mentioned above as they are supposed to advocate only good legislation.

Gov. Foss
Governor Foss is still keeping the politicians guessing as to what he is going to do, whether to run or not to run. It is alleged that he has corralled nearly all the mailing facilities in Boston for what purpose is not known. He is known to be opposed to Gardner and as he cannot be said to be friendly either to Walsh or Bird, it is believed that he is for nobody except Foss. He must soon show his hand, however, and if he decides not to be a candidate, he will thereby save himself from the worst political disaster of his meteoric career.

THE SPELLBINDER.

TO CLEAN, OR NOT TO CLEAN
That is the question. Whether it is better to use antiquated ideas or modern cleaning machinery in the renovating of garments has been tested fully in this establishment. We do not infer that we, of late years, have employed stale methods. We have, but being the oldest established cleaning and dyeing house here, naturally there was a time when we had to use the "ancients."

But now! what a change! modernized plant, equal to any emergency. Such is progress!

Rides Like Constant Coasting

"What Shall I Do With My Old Car?"

"I WANT a new automobile. The one I have doesn't quite satisfy, yet it would do. I cannot afford to throw it away or scrap it. I want a newer car. One with more power—A six-cylinder—A left-hand drive—A streamline body—An electric self-starter—A quiet, powerful, easy-riding automobile. But what am I to do with the car I now have?"

Don't Deceive Yourself

WHATEVER you do, don't be deceived as to the real value of your car. It is worth no more to someone else than to you. The chances are it is not worth so much.

If someone—a dealer—in order to have you buy his new car, offers you more for the one you have than can be gotten elsewhere—remember that he is making his profits out of the cash you pay to obtain his new car in addition to turning in your old one.

Because the car is priced at $3,000 does not necessarily mean $3,000 value.

Remember that pianos sell at anywhere between $500 and $1,000. The price charged often depends on the instrument you have to trade in.

But with motor cars, prices are fixed. Some makers know that a large share of their trade will come from those who already own a car, and to attract them the list price is put high in order to provide a fund out of every sale to take care of excessive allowances on the used car.

Hudson Six 54 Values Are Real

THIS—the handsomest car ever designed—is not built for trading. It is priced low for cash buyers. It is the kind of value you get when you pay cash. In its purchase you are not paying a high price to help absorb the cost of some other buyer.

If you drive a Six, then drive this one for a while. If you do not know anything about six-cylinder cars—then come, experience its smoothness.

The man who knows nothing of the electric light is satisfied with his kerosene lamp. To him it is the very best artificial light to be obtained. So it is with the man who knows only the four-cylinder car. He does not understand the pleasures and satisfaction to be obtained with a Six.

The Hudson Six 54 rides like constant coasting. Up hill or down, over rough roads or smooth, at any speed, you ride with a comfort not obtainable in any four.

There is nothing lacking in this car to make it complete. Its true streamline body, left-hand drive, center control, entrance to driver's seat from either side, four-speed transmission and many other details—some exclusive, all advanced—are features you should see.

Would you let such value be compared with the fictitious price of a car made for trading?

THE COLUMBUS HOLIDAY

How it Will be Celebrated Here— K. of C. and French Guards Go- ing Out of Town

Holiday pleasure seekers will find plenty of diversion in this city on Monday, next, Columbus Day, and there will be a variety of amusements as seen in the program for the day printed below, so that all may enjoy the holiday according to their tastes.

In the various halls, will be "Sunlight" and "Moonlight," which is to be an afternoon and evening dance for those who care to "trip the light fantastic." The theatres hold excellent entertainment for their patrons, while there will be several sporting events, namely golf and football.

Monday, Columbus day, all operatives of this city will enjoy a holiday. For it was announced this morning at all the local cotton mills that the plants will shut down this noon and will not reopen again until Tuesday morning. The shoe shops as well as machine shops, and in fact all other industry will suspend work for the day.

One of the big features is the journey to Manchester of the local Knights of Columbus to assist Manchester council in the celebration of Columbus Day. The local members leaving the city on the 12:15 p. m. train in connection with which special accommodations have been arranged. Lady and gentlemen (friends of the council) are cordially invited to accompany the body. Special attractions have also been arranged by several of the other clubs.

The local guards of the French American Volunteer brigade of the United States, which comprises the second regiment, will journey to Brockton Monday, where they will participate in the great parade of the Knights of Columbus of that place, who will celebrate Columbus Day in great style. At the conclusion of the parade the companies will repair to Walkover park, where the first regi-

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Oct. 11.—Is Mrs. Jennie M. Eaton guilty of murder? Did she poison her husband, the late Rear-Admiral Joseph Hubert Eaton, to death at their home at Assinippi, Mass., on March 8 last? What part did her two pretty daughters of a previous marriage play in the family tragedy? These and other interesting questions will be answered at the trial of Mrs. Eaton on a charge of slaying her husband, which starts here on Oct. 14. The case last March was a country-wide sensation because of the high standing of the rear-admiral. The trial excites equal interest now. Chief Justice Aiken presides, and Prosecutor Albert Barker conducts the case against the widow. One of the most important witnesses is Miss Dorothy Ainsworth, the pretty seventeen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Eaton.

Favors Constitutional Convention to Settle Off Recurring Questions

David I. Walsh spoke last night in Spencer, Warren and Brookfield, devoting himself chiefly to a discussion of the need of a non-partisan constitutional convention for the state.

"I believe the time has arrived," said he, "for the holding of a constitutional convention in Massachusetts. No such convention has been held since the year 1853. For some years past national important questions of a constitutional character have been occupying public attention, and the time seems opportune for the holding of a convention to discuss these questions and to present them to the people for their final decision. The subject of making new organic law for the commonwealth is a great one—one of the greatest that has come before the state for many years.

"The delegates to such a convention should be elected by an unparislian ballot.

"Such a convention ought to serve the purpose of shortening the sessions of our legislature. Year after year many of the same constitutional questions are presented. If these questions could be dealt with by a constitutional convention and submitted to the action of the people, whether favorable or otherwise, it would serve the purpose at least of removing them from the legislature."

CAUSE OF COLLISION

CORONER TO BEGIN INQUEST AT WESTFIELD WHERE TRAIN RAN INTO CAR

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 11.—With the exception of Otto St. Arnold of Meriden, all the persons hurt in last night's head-on collision of a trolley car with a steam train running over the tracks in Westfield on the Berlin-Middletown branch of the New Haven road are doing well today. Three patients are in a critical condition, but two of them showed surprising strength this morning. They are John G. Eley of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., a travelling salesman, and Miss Frances Florian of Rockfall, a village near here. Nine other persons are still at the hospital, but their hurts are of a minor character.

Ceremonial Stephen B. Davis will begin his inquest into the accident at once. The medical examiner has viewed the body of Ralph A. Blydenburgh, a newspaper man, who was instantly killed, and the inquest was held on basis of his finding.

REV. FR. GREGORY, S. J., DEAD

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 9.—Rev. William Gregory, S. J., former professor at the Boston college and up to his death chaplain of the Georgetown university, died last night at the Georgetown university hospital. The interment will be in the college cemetery.

Rev. Fr. Gregory was sixty years old. He entered the Jesuit order forty-one years ago and spent eighteen years as a missionary in Jamaica.

LOWELL MEN ATTENDED

Meeting of State Association of Boards of Health at New Bedford—Clambake Before Meeting

Dr. Thomas F. Carroll, John H. Drury and Agent Bates of the Lowell board of health attended the regular meeting of the Massachusetts Association of boards of health held at New Bedford Thursday. The meeting was attended by health officials from all over the state and after an automobile trip about the city the visitors were taken to Padanaram where they enjoyed one of the clambakes for which that section is famous.

At the municipal building the visitors were welcomed by Mayor Ashley, who conducted them through the building and through the public library, as well as pointing out to them the principal buildings in the business and civic center.

The clambake at Padanaram was held in Woodhouse and a picnic pavilion, and immediately following the business meeting of the association was held Professor W. T. Sedgewick, head of the department on hygiene and public health of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was the principal speaker of the day.

The Massachusetts Association of Boards of Health is an organization now entering into its second quarter century of life. It was the first of such societies that sought to pass the experiences of one health officer to others, and in some of the states such work is now done by schools or meetings to which by law the different towns send their health officers. The Massachusetts association is a voluntary one and has afforded much in the way of education to the members which has been in no small degree responsible for the generally excellent health conditions and regulations of Massachusetts towns and smaller communities.

From the fact that Dr. Sedgewick and his force of Technology professors have always been a force in the association its meetings in later years have usually been held at the Hotel Brunswick across the street from the institute and the students and professors have always taken part in the proceedings although they have not looked for offices in the society.

Twenty-four automobiles besides the two cars belonging to the city of New Bedford, were donated to the board of health for the day, for use in carrying for the visiting members of the state association, and each car was given a number. The visitors were asked before the party started on its sight-seeing tour to observe the number on the car in which they started, so that when the party got out of the machine at various places, they might always get back into the same machines in which they started.

SEVERED HIS JUGULAR VEIN

Michael Kelley, 45, of Augusta, Me., committed suicide yesterday at the lodging house of Charles Markarian, 85 Gorham street. He first cut a vein in his right wrist and then severed his jugular vein with a pocket knife.

Kelley arrived here Tuesday night lying on his bed with a deep gash in the throat and another in the right wrist. In his right hand was clutched a common ordinary jackknife, and the bed was covered with blood. Life was extinct.

The police were notified and Inspector Walsh was detailed to the house. Upon searching the man's pockets he found a card bearing the inscription of the National Soldiers' home, Augusta, Me. It was a furlough card issued on Sept. 23 and good until Dec. 23. It was also found that deceased was a veteran of the Massachusetts Marine Corps.

Harvard Brewing Co. Gets Permit to Repair Stable—Other Items

Awarded Contract
Purchasing Agent Foye yesterday awarded the contract for 2000 feet of one-inch wrought iron pipe for the water work department to H. R. Barker Co., whose bid was $11.60. The other bids submitted were as follows: Farrell & Conaton, $98; Middlesex Machine Co., $142.50; H. S. Drury, $93; Welch Bros., $100.

Approved Bills
Mayor O'Donnell and Commissioner Cummings met in the aldermanic chamber yesterday for the approval of the monthly bills. There was a large number of bills submitted and among them was one which caused more or less hilarity among those present. This was a bill to the amount of $138 for services at a fire in Lowell by the Chelmsford wire warden, who claimed he worked one hour and a half with his machine. The bill read as follows:

Aug. 25—Ordered to a fire near Chelmsford line by state fire observer. Extinguished fire and reported to observer that same needed watching. Fire proved to be in Lowell on Middlesex canal on land of one Charlton of Highland avenue. To services above 1 1/2 hours with auto, $1.38. Signed: A. C. Perham, forest warden, Chelmsford.

Hearings
Hearings on the following petitions will be held before the commissioner of streets and highways on the evening of October 20.

Omer J. Smith, that a concrete sidewalk be laid on the southerly side of Crawford street in front of premises at the corner of Fourth avenue.

George H. Lussier, that a sidewalk of edge stones and cinders be laid at the corner of Moody street and Sixth avenue, a distance of 55 feet on Moody street, and 95 feet on Sixth avenue.

Walter G. Charles, that a concrete sidewalk be laid on the northerly side of Crawford street, opposite the premises numbered 2.

Rev. T. J. Smith, O. M. I. and others, that Bourne street be accepted from Otis street to that portion of said street already accepted, and that said street be macadamized and edge stones laid on both sides thereof.

R. G. Bartlett and others, that a sewer be laid in Daniels street from Andover street, northerly, a distance of about 200 feet.

More Certificates

The attendance officers are always kept on the jump and it is figured they have issued over 1200 school certificates since the new law went into effect. This morning the corridor on the third floor of city hall was literally filled with youngsters who were awaiting their turn to see the attendance officers.

LADY LOOKABOUT

What a pleasure and what a pride it is even to the least of us, to know that we have placed in the White House a gentleman, a man of letters. This thought has come to me a number of times of late, particularly when President Wilson sent his message to Mexico. Apart from the import of the message, it was in point of English, a classic, and was so recognized, and the same thought came again to me a few days ago as I read the circumstances surrounding the signing of the new Underwood-Simmons tariff bill. In the presence of his cabinet, at one of the most solemn moments that will ever come to him as chief of the nation, standing with pen in hand and the document embodying the features of the tariff bill spread out before him, awaiting his signature, the president spoke thus simply, in the language of a scholar, free from cant, bombast and egotism:

"I was quoting the other day to some of my colleagues in the senate three lines from Shakespeare's 'Henry V.' which have always appealed to me. 'If it be a sin to covet honor, then am I not worthy the name of soldier.' To be sure I did not need much forcing, but I fear there are still among us some of the milk persuasion who may need just a little forcing."

The old magazine was filled with discussions on the proper etiquette of ladies and gentlemen, and if the old time lady were a prude in regard to the way she was supposed to carry herself in the presence of gentlemen, the old time man was ten times worse. Two or three pages were given over to beauty and how to acquire it. Our grandmothers certainly had it down fine. Such mixtures as they used to make themselves attractive! Another page was given over to medical recipes; another to fortune-telling by means of horoscopes and palm-reading. A romance of love, hate, and tragedy, with a heroine who spent much of her time in an unconscious state, and the most villainous of villains.

The modern magazine led off with an article on the conditions of working children. It set forth factory conditions in our large cities, and suggested remedies for bettering the conditions of those children whose labor begins at an early age.

An article by Dr. Woods Hutchinson on the economy of good food was followed by Dr. Harvey W. Wiley on the diet of the "Pure Food Baby." A section was devoted to house-furnishing, and another to the discussion of the leading questions of the day, child study here and in foreign countries, in which the best authorities of the world were quoted; politics, education and science.

Such a change in what women now demand in their magazines surely spells but one thing—progression.

Dyed furs have not yet been seen in Lowell, but Boston is showing them. Trains, blue, yellow, and purple fox, skunk, tiger and leopard fur are all used to trim winter gowns and wraps.

In a very exclusive shop, I saw a collar of skunk fur in combination with rose-colored fox. Skunk with purple or yellow is also seen. A narrow pleated trim of skunk or coral-colored velvet to the dyed fur is used to border the edges, and a flat bow of the same material adorns the side.

Some of the newest tailored suits have loose jackets with belt at the hip line. An amethyst-colored broadcloth in color with a collar of cream colored velvet. Amber top with purple velvet collar is a novel and beautiful combination.

Don't you think this is pretty good? I think some woman must have written it. I read it somewhere a few days ago.

A congressman Gardner thinks he is a regular Goliath in politics.

"Yes, but he must not forget Goliath's end—David slew him."

office who has to reluctantly withdraw his own convictions and accept those of another, cannot make the most efficient official in the world. However, this is only the humble opinion of one who is not supposed to be able to form an opinion on matters political, so don't let it carry any weight with you.

A funny feature of the whole business is that the mothers of these political prodigies are not of sufficient intelligence to grasp the significance of a political situation. Is it not a miracle that women of such numbskull propensities can beget offspring who are stars of the first magnitude in point of intelligence? And the same mother can beget a son, an able legislator and a vote-getter, while her daughter, perhaps a twin-sister of the above mentioned son, is non compos mentis in regard to the ballot. There is a problem in eugenics for someone.

I found an old magazine in the attic the other day—a magazine for women, and I compared the table of contents with one of the latest date, and the comparison forced me to draw some very convincing conclusions. To be sure I did not need much forcing, but I fear there are still among us some of the milk persuasion who may need just a little forcing."

TRAIN AND CAR COLLIDE

One Man Killed—Three Fatally Injured and Eight Hurt—Head-on Crash at Westfield

WESTFIELD, Conn., Oct. 11.—As the result of a head-on collision on the Berlin branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad between a Middletown-bound steam train and a Meriden-bound electric car here at 8 o'clock last night, one person was killed and 11 injured, three perhaps fatally.

Ralph A. Bydenburgh of Middletown, city editor of the Middletown Penny Press, was instantly killed. The fatally injured are Max Glass, Holyoke, Mass., fractured skull and concussion of the brain, condition serious. Otto St. Arnold, Meriden, a waiter; fractured jaw, fractured leg and internal injuries. Miss Frances Merian, Rock Fall, fractured skull.

Others injured are Ephraim Hines, Middletown, conductor of trolley car; fractured wrist and tibia. Benjamin Lord, Middletown, motorman of trolley car; fractured leg. Harry Gurrian, New Haven; fractured nose and scalp wound. Michael Cronin, Portland; body bruises. Mrs. Robert Mathison, Middletown; fractured leg, scalp wounds. Charles Ehrens, Middletown; cuts and bruises. Adam Brauer, West Cornwall; cuts and shock. Miss Anna Dotting, Middletown; lacerations of body.

The crash occurred near the local depot. There is a single line track from this place to Middletown, that branches off at a junction here, one line going to Berlin and the other to Meriden. It is said through a misunderstanding of orders the trolley left Newfield, a few miles to the east on the single track, where it should have remained on a siding. The Middletown-bound steam train got orders to proceed. It is said, and a few moments later the collision occurred on a straight track.

The electric train, as is the custom, was backing toward Middletown, with the engine pushing. The front of the trolley was smashed like an eggshell. Nearly every passenger in the trolley was injured more or less.

Passengers on the steam train rushed out and did what they could to assist the injured.

As soon as possible the wrecked trolley was hauled onto a switch and the injured were taken to Middletown on the train. Special trolleys carried them direct to the Middlesex hospital in that city, where all the physicians in the vicinity had been summoned.

Mr. Bydenburgh, who was killed instantly, was one of the best known newspaper men in central Connecticut. He was for many years city editor of the Middletown Penny Press, and for more than 15 years a correspondent there of the Associated Press. He was about 50 years old and leaves a widow and daughter.

Tablets on the Table of Grasse Surrenders After Watching Men Dig Grave for Woman

FREEDOM, N. H., Oct. 11.—Tablets labelled "Poison" were yesterday found in the house where Edwin Shackford was murdered on the night of Sept. 23. Bessie Littlefield Shackford, his wife, is being held without bail on the charge of murdering her husband. Hollis Wilbur, a farmhand, whom she charges with the crime, is also at Carroll county jail in Ossipee. He is being held as a witness unable to furnish $1000 bonds. Shackford died after two bullets had been shot into his head as he lay asleep.

Yesterday two white poison tablets were found in a clock in the dining room of the Shackford home. The government, through Sheriff Arthur W. Chandler, claims that there was a plot to put Shackford out of the way. Whether or not the tablets figured in the alleged plot is not known.

NOT A VICE DEN

Chinaman Denies That Girls are Enticed Into Hub's Chinatown

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—The friends of Sing Wah, the Chinaman who was arrested on the premises at 25 Oxford street Wednesday afternoon, charged with having in his possession opium on which no duty was paid, met at the store of Wah last night to voice a protest against the published statement that the place was a procuring resort to which white girls were enticed.

Deny Reports

Yee Wah, a relative of Sing Wah, told a reporter after the meeting that the merchants and business men of Chinatown are incensed because of the false accusations made against the Wah establishment and the general impression that Chinatown is that quarter induce white girls whom they meet to visit the places in that section on a slumming tour and then persuade them to smoke opium just to see what its influence were.

"We wish to say that there is no such thing as Chinamen inducing white girls to come to Chinatown to smoke opium," said Mr. Wah. "There is no such condition in our midst as white slavery. We want that impression corrected as we feel a great injustice is done us by such a report."

"We admit that two white women were in the Wah establishment when the customs authorities entered in their search for opium and smoking opium. One of these women is the lessee of the building. Her name is Mrs. Lev Way, and she is the wife of a Chinaman whom she married 20 years ago. They live on the top floor of the building. She is not a young girl, but is about 40 and gray-haired."

Women Not Smoking

"I do not deny that the Chinamen there smoked opium. I do deny that the women were smoking it when the officers entered. The second woman is a white friend of Mrs. Way. She accompanied Mrs. Way to the Wah store on the first floor. Mrs. Way rents the first floor to Wah, and it is quite customary for her, being an occupant and lessee of the building and a friend of all the tenants, to go to the store on the first floor."

"Neither of the two women was or is a Sunday school teacher. I do not deny that they smoked opium. You must know that Chinamen are accustomed to smoking opium, and when once addicted to its use, find it almost impossible to give it up."

"But we deny that our people are procurers of white women and we deny that there is white slavery in our colony, and we further deny that the two women seen at 25 Oxford street by the police were smoking when they entered the premises to arrest one man; not 3½."

Wah was arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes yesterday on a charge of inducing opium unlawfully in his possession.

ROLL CALL AND SUPPER

At the Calvary Baptist Church Last Night—Prof. Stout and Irving T. Gumb Speakers

A large number of members of the Calvary Baptist church attended the annual roll call which was held in the church vestry last night. Early in the evening a report was served by the ladies of the church and this was followed by an address by Professor B. P. Stout, of Pasadena, Cal. Prof. Stout is a religious worker, who goes about the country assisting in every way he can. He was in Lowell 19 years ago and he spoke last night on the wonderful improvements at the Calvary Baptist church and he congratulated the pastor and the people on their success in this respect.

Mr. Irving T. Gumb was the next speaker and he talked on boys' work in general. Mr. Gumb is president of the Volunteer Student band and chairman of the committee on boys' work at Brown University, of which he is a Junior. He is connected with the Y. M. C. A. in Rhode Island and Massachusetts. His talk last night was unusually interesting. The evening exercises closed with singing by Prof. Stout.

REV. DR. BARTLETT

Formerly of Lowell Now in Poor Health at Hartford, Conn. Where He Was Pastor

Word has been received in this city to the effect that Rev. Dr. William A. Bartlett, former pastor of the Kirk Street church of Lowell, now pastor of the Farmington Avenue Congregational church of Hartford, is suffering from a severe nervous breakdown, and is a patient in a sanitarium in Litchfield county, where he was taken on Saturday last.

Hard work, the illness and death of his son, and worry over the illness of his wife are assigned as the cause of his malady.

Rev. Dr. Bartlett was last May given leave of absence to Sept. 1, and spent a vacation at Ocean Park, Me., in an effort to regain his health. He returned in poor condition and later suffered a relapse with the result mentioned above.

Prior to going to Hartford, Rev. Dr. Bartlett was pastor of a large down town church in Chicago where his work was very trying and difficult. He was one of the leaders in the campaign for Sunday saloon closing there, and spoke day and night in the work.

HOLY NAME AT ST. MICHAEL'S

The Holy Name society of St. Michael's parish will hold their first meeting of the fall and winter season tomorrow evening, Sunday, Oct. 12, at 6:30 p. m. While the meetings were discontinued during the summer, President John J. Haviland has been looking round for beneficial suggestions of improvement and he will have something to say tomorrow evening that will interest all the members and encourage them in their good work.

Both the spiritual director and he are anxious that the meeting tomorrow be unusually large as they intend to membership this year to grow even more rapidly than during 1912, which was the banner year of the society. The band officers are about to take up their duties and they, too, expect to be of material help in getting every man in the parish into the Holy Name society.

THE MAN IN THE MOON

We have four iron bridges spanning the Merrimack—three adequate and one inadequate. But I am not going in for a new bridge at Pawtucket falls just now. That proposition can wait awhile longer. It is ever struck you when having occasion to visit these bridges and crossing over the river, the character of the approaches thereto? Now, you can hardly change the approaches on the south side of Pawtucket bridge owing to the permanent buildings of the Locks and Canals Co., nor could you improve greatly the northerly approaches to the Moody street bridge, neither could you do anything to help matters at the westerly end of Central bridge but as you contemplate all other approaches to the several bridges you will find enough to provoke your criticism and plenty of matter to cause you to express some good, strong opinions of a policy which permitted and allows such a condition of things to exist.

Before the Locks and Canals corporation placed the land owned by it upon the market (so dearly does it love the city of Lowell), the southerly approaches to the Moody street bridge were left little to be desired. The then city council could not appreciate the fitness of things and promptly declined to pay a fancy price. As a result of the action of the Locks & Canals corporation and the lack of action on the part of the common council tenement houses have been erected on the land almost directly adjoining the bridge. At the northerly end of Pawtucket bridge on both sides are hideous conglomerated groups of buildings, a blind corner jutting into Pawtucket "square" at once an eyesore and a source of constant danger. When the new bridge arrives at this point it is to be hoped that up-to-date conditions may prevail and an equitable bid out worthy of the times and place.

It is to be devoutly hoped that tenement houses and all other kinds of buildings may be kept a respectable distance from the eastern end of the Allen street bridge. Right here is a place where a progressive municipal council and an energetic park commission could profit from error of the park, and accomplish something worth while for the people of Lowell. Clearly the city should own this land and never temporize with a never-to-go corporation by accepting 10 year leases at 15 cents a year and then, fastidious, wish to impose the position taken by Mr. Greene, the chairman of the park commission, in the stand he takes with relation to the contemplated playgrounds in that section of the city. There isn't any doubt that the removal of that old wooden building at the central end of Central bridge would greatly improve conditions in that quarter. Let us make a beginning next year. Let us start something along these lines.

Nashua After Dark

You who have hitherto avoided being caught in Nashua after dark will not be so particular now, for you should know that quite a portion of the principal street of that town is a veritable "White Way." It surely looks fine, and is fine, and the old town presents a really up-to-date appearance.

Another year and Lowell may have a similar illumination, and the powers that be should make over look many places throughout the city in absolute need of more light while laying plans for a "great white way."

Good Advice Disregarded

The other evening while waiting for a car I overheard a rather tough-looking individual of middle age giving out some very practical advice to a young man of dissipated aspect as to the relative worth of a "street girl" and a "home girl." The tough-looking man had been through the mill and spoke as one having authority and was very positive in his conclusions. His advice was given in a loud voice and was even stentorian in quality as he delivered it from the platform of the car bearing him away. I thought his advice good enough if it wasn't expressed in the choicest of words. I fear, however, that the young man was not very appreciative for he said something rather uncomplimentary about his adviser as the latter disappeared.

The Spitting Nuisance

The habitual spitter is an unmitigated nuisance still in our midst. He appears to have little or no fear of signs threatening 20 dollar fines—indeed, I think he is inclined to defy them. Now, since we could change our climate about as easily as we could our ever great tobacco habit, why wouldn't it be well to make the spitter referred to read $2 instead of $20? The ordinary cop doesn't fancy pulling an offender in and seeing him soaked a $20 fine, but a $2 fine, I think, would render the cop quite active and improve his earnings. You are making the ordinance more operative. Two dollars per spit is expensive enough, enough to make us more careful as to when and where we spit. Lookout for that nice gentleman in the rear vestibule of the trolley car which you are about to get on to! For if you don't exercise care, you are likely to receive the contents of his month in your eyes or elsewhere. But yesterday I saw a lady about to climb onto a car, who just escaped an emission from one of these animated, yet thoughtless, sprinkling carts. There was no attempt even on the part of the old spitter to apologize; he probably thought that the lady should make one. The lady said not a word, but the look she gave!

Several gentlemen of good looks and good reputes have announced themselves as willing to serve their city as members of the next board of aldermen. They have no doubt seen you, and you, of course, have promised to vote for them. Now, the Man in the Moon knows nearly all who have thus far come out and announced themselves, and I cheerfully assert that they would not all carry out their duty to the best of their ability and would draw their salaries as promptly and regularly as anybody else. May all my good friends holding the best hands divide the pot.

I think a man running for a public position of trust or emolument should possess as an asset something besides the advantage advertised fact that he belongs to this and that secret society. I don't think we should ask if he is a Mason, an Odd Fellow, a K. C., a K. P., a Forester, an R. A., an A. O. U. E., a Moose, an Owl, an Elk, or any other thing, when considering his general fitness to serve all the people. The fact of course that the candidate may belong to one or more societies or orders should not militate against him. I simply maintain that he should possess as assets special qualifications for public office. Is he honest? Is he able? Is he patriotic? If he possesses these requisites, why should we care what party he belongs to, what church he attends or what order or society he affiliates with? Cut out the clan and come out for the man!

The Silk Stocking Candidate

The oracle hath spoken: The esteemed political writer of the morning paper cannot see anybody but Gusie Gardner as the next governor of the commonwealth. The vision is so enthralling that the prophet is regarding exclusively kid gloves and silk stockings brigade of Beacon street and several other nice localities, including our own quality hill. But the oracular gentleman's vision may be but a dream—his prophecy but words having paternal relations to his wishes. Such optimism is really refreshing if not instructive. But it has been left to the Boston Herald, that other great "palladium of our rights and liberties," to go the Courier-Citizen one better when it fervently declares that, with Gusie Gardner as the standard-bearer, the republican party of Massachusetts is facing the rising sun!

The humble Man in the Moon has the temerity to think that the next governor's name will be Walsh if it isn't Bird, or Bird if it isn't Walsh.

When Was a Day so Bare?

Last Sunday was a day of days and will linger long in the memories of those who enjoyed it. It was a day that old nature gave to us poor earth dwellers just to show what she can do when she tries. Everybody appeared to appreciate it. She served no braising draught, but rather held out to us a warm bath of summer sun and balmy breeze. She took us to the valleys, along the pleasant water courses and to the hill tops. Everywhere we went the woods in red and gold had on the "splendors of apocalypse." We saw on a rose bush a solitary blossom, veritably the "last rose of summer left blooming alone" and while crossing a pasture I thought I heard the sweet notes of the song sparrow.

The day was a reminder of the summer that has gone, and a promise in some feature of the Indian summer days to come. Did you notice the new moon that showed herself after the sun went down? She, for the few hours she looked down upon us, was a fitting retainer to so rare and beautiful a day. We saw the beginning of the hunter's moon. Come and hunt the moon by the light of the moon.

BAN ON DANCES

Boston's Mayor Makes Regulations for Public Dance Halls

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—The turkey trot, bunny hug, tango, kitchen sink, bear dance and all kindred dances that come under the general designation of "improper" will be excluded from the public dance halls of Boston, beginning right now. Such are the orders of Mayor Fitzgerald, which were yesterday put into the form of regulations by John M. Casey, the licensing clerk.

The Regulations

The regulations number 17 and are particularly commendable for brevity as well as the field covered. Twenty-four copies were sent to the managers of all public dance halls, with instructions to see that they were strictly enforced. A failure to do so means a suspension of the license, if not its revocation. The same punishment holds good for violations of the rules.

The regulations follow:

1. Improper dancing will not be tolerated, persons so indulging will be immediately ejected.

2. No moonlight or shadow lighting effects. The hall must remain fully lighted.

3. Smoking permitted only in gentlemen's room, not in hall or corridors.

4. Singing either with or without the use of a megaphone during the time allotted for dancing not allowed.

5. Announcements of future dances by orchestra leader or other persons, and the distribution of cards, posters or handbills in hall, corridors or stairways advertising future dances are forbidden.

6. Gentlemen must not remain in ladies' rooms or parlors.

7. No dance shall continue after 1 o'clock a. m., unless by written permission of the mayor, and not later than 11:45 o'clock p. m. Saturdays.

8. A police officer shall be in attendance at all public dances.

9. Pass-out checks are not to be issued.

10. Matrons shall be employed at every public dance and have entire charge of ladies' rooms.

11. Minors under the age of 17 years shall not be admitted to hall unless accompanied by a parent or guardian. They should be given special attention by the management and police officer.

12. Disorderly persons will be arrested for "disturbing a public assembly."

13. Chairs and tables used for check lists must not be placed in hallways or stairways in such a manner as to block access from the hall.

14. All emergency exits from hall, including the entries and stairways of such exits, shall be properly lighted while the audience is in the hall.

15. By special instructions of the directors of the Musicians' union all orchestras are directed to obey the orders of any representative of the mayor to cease playing, should conditions so justify.

16. Any person defacing or removing these regulations will be prosecuted.

17. These regulations shall be posted in a conspicuous place in the hall.

BODIES FOUND IN WOODS

Mrs. Nichols, Whose Husband Was Murdered Yesterday, and Hired Man, the Victims

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Oct. 11.—The body of Mrs. Walter Nichols, wife of the man murdered at West Guilford yesterday, was found in the woods a short distance from the Nichols home today. Mrs. Nichols had been shot to death.

The details of the finding of Mrs. Nichols' body have not been received here. The place where the body was found is five miles north of Brattleboro and in a sparsely settled section. Nichols, a farmer, about 27 years old, was found murdered yesterday in a field near his home, his skull having been fractured by blows from a hammer which was lying near the body.

Search for Ervino Wrisley, a farm hand employed by Nichols, was begun immediately after the discovery of the murder. Mrs. Nichols was missing and the authorities endeavored to find her. On the theory that Mrs. Nichols had been lured to the woods by the same person who killed her husband a search of the woods was made today and resulted in the finding of the woman's body.

A neighbor of Nichols told the officers last night that he saw two men running along the road near where the man's body was found yesterday and that one of them fell suddenly and did not rise again. Later he heard the sound of two shots fired in the woods.

The body of Wrisley, the farm hand, was later found in the woods about 23 rods from the body of Mrs. Nichols. He had apparently killed himself with the third bullet from a revolver that lay near his right hand.

Wrisley was 23 years old.

PERISHED AT SEA.

Continued

Curiously in the gale that the abandonment of the steamer followed on Thursday morning. A few details coming through by wireless promise a graphic story of the fight made by the crews of ten trans-Atlantic steamers who responded to the Volturino's call.

The Volturino sailed from Rotterdam October 2 for New York by way of Halifax, where it was due to stop next Monday.

It is believed that the steamer carried 24 cabin passengers, 80 steerage passengers and a crew of 52 men. The wireless reports say that 521 persons were saved, making 509 persons unaccounted for this far.

Vessel Burning Fiercely

When the Carmania reached the vicinity of the Volturino at noon she found the Volturino a mass of flames burning fiercely. The flaming ship was rolling heavily while her propellers were fouled with best tackle used in lowering her six lifeboats.

It was learned by the captain of the Carmania that only two out of the six lifeboats had succeeded in getting safely away from the Volturino. The other four, crowded from stern to stern with passengers and members of the crew, had been smashed against the side of the vessel and all their occupants thrown into the sea and drowned.

In spite of the terrible gale raging when she arrived near the Volturino the captain of the Carmania and one of his lifeboats lowered to help in the rescue. This was effected with much difficulty for even on the sea side of the Carmania the sea was terribly rough and it was only by extraordinary efforts that the small craft was prevented from being smashed or capsized as she left the side of the ship.

Battled With Waves

The Carmania's lifeboat, in charge of First Officer Gardiner, made a gallant but futile attempt to get alongside the doomed Volturino. After two hours' battle with the waves, during which the lifeboat lost all but three of her oars, the rest being broken or torn from the hands of the crew, First Officer Gardiner returned to the Carmania, which he succeeded in making without loss of life or broken limbs among the members of his boat's crew. Captain Barr of the Carmania then maneuvered his big vessel very close to the Volturino and finally got the Carmania's bow within a hundred feet of the Volturino's stern. It was found impossible, however, to cast a line aboard the Volturino or to get anybody on her.

Terrifying Sight

It was a terrifying sight for the passengers and crew of the Carmania to see so close to them the hundreds of passengers, including women and children, in horror-stricken fear on the decks of the Volturino and yet be unable to help them.

Most of the passengers got into the Volturino's life boats but a hundred of them had gathered at the after end of the burning vessel, where crew at the same time continued in vain to fight the fire at her forward end.

Captain Barr of the Carmania in the meanwhile kept his wireless apparatus at work communicating with all the vessels within the radius of his instruments.

At four o'clock in the afternoon the Grosser Kurfurst and the Seydlitz came in sight and these two were joined later in the afternoon by the Kronland, the Devonian, the Rappahannock, the Minneapolis, the Tennessee, and the Asian.

Overwhelming Seas

The gale moderated slightly toward night and each of the succoring ships, as soon as it was possible for her to do so, put out boats from her davits and lowered them to the sea. The waves, however, were so high that although the small craft made some progress in the direction of the Volturino it was impossible for them to get alongside and they returned to their ships in most cases doing this with the greatest difficulty owing to the overwhelming seas and the darkness of the night.

The Carmania kept her searchlights going throughout the night, throwing their rays across the foaming seas in

Explosion Adds to Horror

At nine o'clock in the evening when the darkness was at its blackest, flames burst through amidships of the Volturino from her engine room and coal bunkers. As the fire lighted up the sky there came an explosion which sent into the air burning wreckage like a flock of rockets.

The spectacle of the great vessel being consumed by fire with over 500 souls on board of her and surrounded by a fleet of huge, lighted hulls crowded with thousands of spectators all anxious but unable to help, owing to the mountainous seas beggared description.

All that could be done by the would-be helpers was to throw overboard from their vessels dozens of lighted lifeboats and stand by in the hope of picking up some of those who had been cast into the sea.

At twenty minutes past nine, at night the wireless operator on board the Volturino had to turn over the connection of his instrument to the reserve batteries as the fire had reached the boilers and the engine room and had put the pumps and dynamo out of action.

Grief For Help Heard

A few minutes later cries for help were heard rising from the water near the Carmania and then a man who proved to be a steerage passenger of the Volturino wearing a lifebelt was located by means of the searchlight.

A short distance away tossed about by the sea, he was rescued but only after one of the sailors of the Carmania had been lowered into the water with a lifeline which he placed around the waist of the exhausted floating man.

Other cries and screams were heard but gradually died away and no other bodies were seen.

Floating at Daybreak

About midnight a ray of hope came, for it was seen that the flames were not making much headway aft of the engine room or the after bulkhead.

By daybreak the Volturino was still floating with her great human cargo huddled in masses on her poop. The sea had moderated considerably and a flotilla of boats gathered around the stern of the Volturino.

ST CHILDREN WERE ON BOARD THE STEAMER VOLTURINO, SAYS COMPANY

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The Uranian line was without direct communication concerning the loss of the steamer Volturino up to 9 a. m. They had received from Rotterdam a list of 16 of the cabin passengers as follows:

Ruben Rehner, aged 20; Mariona Myrzigold, 17; Josef Farber, 15; John Krue, 32; Fleda Krue, 29; Hindu Friedman, 18; Esther Kaplan, 18; Hilde Eberle, 18; Carl Tepper, 15; Hilde Tepper, 15; Bert Tepper, 14; Emma Tepper, 12; Tarko Tepper, 13; Leila Sablin, 14; Michael Sablin, 14; Armande Antoine, 11.

The destination of all these was in New York.

Of the steerage passengers bound for Halifax, 210 were adults, 41 children and ten infants. Only one cabin passenger was booked for Halifax. Of the steerage passengers bound for New York, 412 were adults, 33 children and three infants. The total number of young children and babies aboard was 57.

No Americans on Volturino

Only two of the ships which aided in the rescue of the Volturino's passengers were west bound. They were the Kronland of the Red Star line and the Rappahannock owned by Furness, Withy & Co. The Kronland left Dover for New York October 5 and ordinarily makes the trip in nine days but because of her stopping on this trip she will be delayed and will not reach shore with the ninety of the Volturino passengers she carries until after Oct. 15.

The Rappahannock, from London, was due at St. John, N. B., about Oct. 16. Under the circumstances her date of arrival will be moved up. She carries 13 of the Volturino's passengers. The other vessels, all eastbound, carrying the survivors are due approximately as follows:

Carmania due at Liverpool, Oct. 12. LaTouraine due at Harve, Oct. 12. Minneapolis due at London, Oct. 13. Czar due at Rotterdam, Oct. 14. Narragansett due at London, Oct. 17. Devonian due at Liverpool, Oct. 17. Grosser Kurfurst due at Bremen, Oct. 17.

Seydlitz, destination uncertain. There were no native born Americans on the Volturino.

CAPT. BARR OF CARMANIA MAKES OFFICIAL REPORT ON THE DISASTER

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 11.—Capt. Barr's official report of the disaster sent to the office of the Channel line here was taken on board the Carmania at 6.30 this morning. It says:

"The Volturino was abandoned on account of fire, Friday, Oct. 10, in lat. 42° 25' north, long. 54° 33' west. All the survivors were taken off."

The following is the list of those saved on board the ten succoring steamers:

Carmania 1; LaTouraine 10; Minneapolis 30; Rappahannock 19; Czar 12; Narragansett 29; Devonian 50; Kronland 50; Grosser Kurfurst 106; Seydlitz 48. Total 331."

The figures given above make a total of only 331 but it is not known here whether one of the items or the total is incorrect.

There has evidently been an error in wireless transmission.

Captain Barr's report added:

"An incomplete list of those saved is on board the Carmania. I will forward it from Queenstown."

Advices have been received from the purser of the Volturino that the original numbers on board that vessel when she sailed were 24 cabin passengers, 540 steerage passengers and 53 crew, making a total of 757. In this case, also the figures and the total do not tally.

Captain Barr continues:

"The crew of the Volturino was saved by the Kronland; the captain, chief, second, third and fifth engineers and two telegraphers by the Narragansett; the barbers and a steerage steward by the Czar and the purser and a surgeon by the Grosser Kurfurst. Nineteen of the names have not been received by me."

JOHN B. CLANCY

Advices Health Officers to Keep Away From His Mare's Heels

John B. Clancy called at City Solicitor Hennessy's office this forenoon and asked for a copy of the complaint, to which he will make answer in the superior court at Boston next Wednesday morning.

John B. is up against the board of health and the court has been asked to grant an injunction restraining him from maintaining a stable in Floyd street. There has been considerable ado about this stable, in and out of court, and John B. said today that he would fight the issue to the last ditch.

Besides being a man of affairs, John B. is also more or less familiar with the law and legal matters in general. His voice has been heard many times in the superior and inferior courts and eloquent has been his plea before Judge and jury.

When Mr. Hennessy passed Mr. Clancy a copy of the bill of complaint, he asked John B. if he would conduct his own case in court.

"The thing is getting a bit serious," quoth John B., "and I think it will be necessary for me to have reinforcements. In the event of being refused assistance by the legal lore of Lowell, I can call upon the attorney-general, and may do that some day."

"Did you hear what I said to Mr. Hennessy?" said John to the Sun reporter who happened around when John received a copy of the bill of complaint.

"I got you Steve," said the reporter. "But I didn't mean it," said John. "Sure I'm not asking the attorney general for anything," continued the owner of the condemned stable in Floyd street, "but I just wanted to let his Majesty the solicitor, know that I was wise to my rights."

"Now the truth of the matter is that the solicitor and the board of health are dying hard. I've put them on the hip and they know it. I have defeated them in practically every court in which they have been up against me. John W. McEvoy is my counsel and he will be on deck Wednesday morning to look after my interests."

"I have a mare that's a bit of a kicker at times and let her do all the kicking. I take things about as they come, but when I start I never quit. I don't know what the mare thinks about the stable being condemned, but I would advise the city solicitor and the wise cunts on the board of health to keep a respectable distance from her heels."

HUERTA ORDERS ARREST

110 Deputies Who Defied Ruler Imprisoned—Great Excitement Prevails in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 11.—Provisional President Huerta's coup last night, whereby he rid himself in a spectacular manner of the legislative bodies of the government and constituted himself a dictator of the Mexican republic has left the city today in a state of tense expectancy. The dissolution of the national congress was not wholly unexpected in political circles, but it served to demonstrate the lengths to which the executive was prepared to go to maintain his grasp upon the administrative affairs of the nation.

This capital was alive with rumors this morning, one of them being to the effect that three deputies arrested last night who were most active in the matter of precipitating the clash with Gen. Huerta had disappeared. President Huerta before the arrests were made had given the word that none of the deputies would be harmed.

Makes Will and Says Good Bye

Senator Dominguez, whose attack of the provisional president in the senate was the starting point of the row, has not come to light. He is said to have prepared for eventualities in advance. Having determined upon his line of conduct, he made his will and bade his family and friends good bye, declaring that he expected to pay for his effort with his life. By many the senator is believed to have made his escape from the country.

The dissolution of the national congress was based upon the alleged usurpation by the deputies and senators of the prerogatives of the chief executive in the matter of Senator Dominguez.

Provisional President Huerta declared that the chamber of deputies had constituted itself one of the executive's worst enemies, hostile to all his acts and invading his jurisdiction even to a point of questioning his selection of a minister of state. By its demagogic tendencies, Gen. Huerta said, it had attacked the basis of the existence of the nation and had taken upon itself all branches of the government. He declared his patience with the body had been taxed to the limit.

The president referred to the recent refusal of the chamber to grant leave to Deputy Tamariz to occupy the public instruction portfolio on the grounds of his affiliation with the Catholic party. He also referred to the recent investigation instigated by the deputies of certain acts of Jose Limantour.

DELIGHTFUL SOCIAL EVENT

RECEPTION BY MRS. E. W. LOVEJOY IN HONOR OF HER DAUGHTER-IN-LAW, A YOUNG BRIDE

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. E. W. Lovejoy gave a delightful tea from 3.30 to 5.30 in honor of her daughter-in-law, Mrs. R. F. Lovejoy, at her home 813 Broadway. A reception took place in the evening at which a great many friends were present. Mrs. George F. Bicknell was matron of ceremonies, and Hovey's string orchestra furnished music. Mrs. E. W. Lovejoy and the young bride, Mrs. R. F. Lovejoy, received together, the latter wearing her bridal gown of white silk brocade, draped with shadow lace. Mrs. Lovejoy senior, wore a handsome gown of black satin charmeuse with trimmings of brocaded chiffon velvet and mechlin lace. Mrs. Bicknell wore lavender crepe de chine with trimmings of crystal and lace and the uppers were in white. The ushers were Misses Molly Munn, Marion Bill, Ruth Hill, Edith Sparks, Mary E. Kelly, Alice and Pauline Kidder and Edna Thompson. Little Misses Elinor Trull and Pauline Foster, daintily gowned, held baskets at the entrance door, to receive the cards.

The house was beautifully decorated for the occasion with flowers and evergreen, Killarney roses and maiden hair fern being especially prominent. The reception was one of the most charming social functions of the season.

In the dining room refreshments were served to the many guests. The color scheme was pink and white. The table arrangements were the handsomest seen in Lowell in many years. A huge gift basket held many exquisite Killarney roses which formed the center and around which tiny gift baskets were filled with the same flowers and tied with butterfly bows of pink and white ribbon.

Five hundred invitations were issued. Numbers of the social set were greatly in evidence and the guests of the guests were noticeably beautiful.

DENTAL CLINIC IS KEPT BUSY

Dr. Kent, the School Dentist, Expects Rush of Children

The School Visitors Will Now Examine Children's Teeth

The dental clinic, located in the Worthen street school has been a busy spot for the past two weeks and nearly a hundred children from different sections of the city have been offered the opportunity of having their teeth treated at the expense of the city.

The work is done by Dr. E. A. Kent and between ten and fourteen children ranging from 10 to 15 years of age are treated there daily. The clinic is open from 9 to 12 o'clock every morning with the exception of Saturday and Sunday and Dr. Kent is prepared to take care of any dental work that may come in. The defects in the children's teeth are discovered by the school principal and Miss Alice M. French, who is known as the school visitor, makes all arrangements for the appointment with the dentist. A record is kept containing the child's name and the style of work that is done.

It is believed that after the work has been carried on a short time the number of children who will visit the clinic each day, will be greatly increased as during the past, little attention has been given to the teeth of a number of the children. The work done during the past two weeks has been very favorably commented upon by both principals of schools and the parents of the children.

NEW BUILDINGS MILITARY HIKE

Many Attractive Structures in Process of Construction Three Local Companies Will Take Part in Big Event on Monday

Local contractors are complaining that there is very little doing in Lowell in the line of new buildings, but nevertheless most of the men are kept busy on repairs of all descriptions.

Contractor Charles A. Morton is constructing an eight-room house, two stories and a half with pantry and bath and all modern conveniences for Mrs. E. T. Howell, in Methuen street. The house will be of Colonial style and will cost about $3000.

John W. Dwyer is having a fine two-apartment house built at the corner of Waverly avenue and Park avenue east. Each apartment will contain seven rooms with pantry and bath and steam heat, as well as hardwood floors. Contractor Charles Varum is in charge of the construction and his men are now finishing the interior. Mr. Dwyer will occupy one of the flats.

Contractor James Whitte is awarded the contract for the repaving of the Harvard Brewing Co.'s stable in Payne street, which was gutted by fire some time ago, and his men are busy reconstructing the building, the cost of which will be about $1000. Mr. Whitte has also considerable other repair work on hand.

William H. Penn is building an eight-room cottage for James Norton in Chelmsford street and another for William Goulding in Canton street. Both houses will be of the most modern type.

Arthur C. Spaulding is having a two-story brick residence constructed in Holyrood avenue, the work being done by Contractor Percy Varum. This same party is also changing a cottage house into a two-apartment house in Loring street for John Sweat.

The Burton B. Wiggin Co. is building a $35,000 brick residence for Harris H. Richmond in Winchester, as well as a better house for the Wellington Fears Co. in North Woburn.

Among the speakers will be Rev. John Lamotte, O. M. I., spiritual director general of the order; Rev. J. H. Racette, O. M. I., Ph. D., Rev. J. H. Labossiere and Supreme Chief J. H. Guillet. An entertainment program will be carried out. The committee in charge of the affair consists of the following: David A. Parthenais, chairman; Arthur Corneliere, J. H. Guillet, Esq., Paul Vigeant, F. X. Rivet and Alfred Lebel.

MRS. WALKER ELECTED

LAWRENCE, Oct. 11.—Miss Phoebe A. Walker of this city has been elected to teach in the Lowell Normal Training school at South Tewksbury. She is a graduate of the local high school in 1909 and of the Lowell Normal school in 1911. She has had three years' experience in rural school work in Londonderry, N. H., and comes well recommended for her new work.

Miss Walker is one of the well known members of the younger set and has the best wishes of success from her host of friends.

The many friends of Miss Cera A. Phaneuf of Salem street will be grieved to learn she is confined to her home with a severe illness. The young woman left Lowell a few days ago for Montreal, Que., where she was to attend the annual reunion of the Phaneuf family. Upon her arrival in the Canadian metropolis she was stricken with a severe illness, and removed to the Cohna hotel, where she was confined a couple of days. ATHLETICS DEFEAT GIANTS

Make Lead in the Series Three Games to One by Winning 6-5—Bender on Mound

SHIBE PARK, Philadelphia, Oct. 11.—The Athletics, champion of the American League, won their third victory in the world's series of 1913 by defeating the New York Giants by a score of 6 to 5 in the fourth game of the series for the championship laurels of baseball.

Twenty thousand people saw a contest in which the Athletics took a six-run lead over their opponents only to have it cut down to a scant one run when the New Yorks fell upon the Indian pitcher's delivery and with a fusillade of six hits sent five runs over the plate. Bender held the Giants to two hits in the first six innings and then was felled freely. Merkle's home run and Shaffer's three-bagger featured the hitting. A circus catch by Oldring cut off a run for New York. The Athletics' defense was perfect. The Athletics have now three games and the New Yorks one game in the series. The two teams play at the Polo grounds today and Christy Mathewson will undoubtedly face the Athletics.

First Inning
Snodgrass popped out to Baker. Doyle went out a high one to Strunk. Barry threw out Fletcher. It was a quick play. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Murphy fled out to Snodgrass. Oldring shot a long hit into right field for three bases. He smashed the first ball pitched. The New York players gathered around Demaree to encourage him. With Eddie Collins and a run likely the crowd roared itself hoarse. Demaree, smiling, pitched a ball to Collins. The second pitch fouled off. Oldring was out at the plate when Merkle took Collins' grounder and threw to McLean, who tagged the runner as he slid into the plate. Collins stole second, while Demaree held the ball for a minute. Demaree then threw to Merkle, whose throw to second was too late to catch Eddie. Baker out on a high foul to Shaffer. No runs; one hit; no errors.

Second Inning
Burns fled out to Murphy. Shaffer fanned. Bender finding his weak spot by keeping the ball around Shaffer's neck. Murray was hit on the arm by a pitched ball and went to first, growling at Bender. McLean singled to right, sending Murray to third. Merkle fouled out to McInnis, who took the ball over the Giant's dugout. No runs; one hit; no errors.

McInnis got a Texas leaguer to center, which the limping Snodgrass could not reach. It was a lucky hit for McInnis. Strunk out, sacrificing. Demaree to Merkle. Demaree used a slow drop ball on the outside corner of the plate. Merkle dropped Barry's foul after a good run. The official scorer gave it an error. McInnis scored on Barry's long two base drive to left field. Barry claimed that Merkle interfered with him as he rounded first base, but the claim was not allowed. Schang walked after Demaree had two strikes on him. Bender fled out to Burns. Murphy fled out to Snodgrass. One run, two hits, one error.

Third Inning
Demaree fled out to Murphy. Snodgrass out, bunting. Bender to McInnis. Doyle fled out to Strunk. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Herzog went out to play third base and Shaffer went back to centerfield replacing Snodgrass, whose strained leg began to bother him again. Demaree took Oldring's hopper and threw him out at first. Burns caught Collins' fly. Doyle took care of Baker, throwing him out at first. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Fourth Inning
Fletcher offered vigorous objection when Umpire Egan called a strike on him. Then he fled out to Collins. Burns popped out to Baker. Bender appeared to have more "smoke" than during his first game against the Giants. The Indian broke his curves around the knees and then shot fast over the shoulder-high across the plate. Shaffer fanned out for the second time and angrily pitched his bat the bench. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Doyle threw out McInnis. Strunk batted a hit off Herzog's legs. McInnis almost caught Strunk's first by a quick throw to Merkle. Barry singled to left and Strunk took third. On Shaffer's throw to catch. Strunk at third. Barry went to second.

The New York infield then drew in. Strunk and Barry scored on Schang's single to center. Schang took second on Shaffer's heave to the plate to catch Barry. Schang went when Merkle made a muffed throw to Bender's grounder. Murphy popped out to Doyle. Oldring singled to center. Bender going to second. McLean threw out Collins at first. Three runs; four hits; one error.

Fifth Inning
Murray walked. Chief Bender pitching four wide ones in succession. McLean got a single to center. Murray going to third. Cooper car for McLean. Schang almost caught Cooper napping off first with a snap throw. Merkle fanned. McCormick batted in place of Demaree. Oldring caught McCormick's fly after a dead run toward the diamond. It cut off an almost sure hit and a run for the Giants. Cooper out, stealing. Schang to Collins. No runs; one hit; no errors.

Marquard now pitching for New York. Baker fanned. Marquard kept the ball on the far corner of the plate for Baker and very low. Marquard threw out McInnis. Marquard lost control and Strunk took third on pitched balls. Barry got a two base hit, Strunk going to third. Burns made a splendid try for the ball on the run but he over ran it. Strunk and Barry scored on Schang's single to center. The Athletics fans cried derisively: "Put in Matty." Marquard threw out Bender. Two runs, two hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning
Barry threw out Herzog. Doyle beat the air viciously and went out on strikes. As Fletcher came to the plate he jokingly made a move as if to hit Umpire Egan on the head with his bat. Fletcher out a fly to Strunk. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Doyle tossed out Murphy at first. Oldring struck out. Wilson throwing him out at first. Collins popped out to Fletcher. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Seventh Inning
Wilson went in with Marquard to catch for New York. Burns scratched an infield hit. It was the Giants' third hit of the game. Shaffer fled out to Collins. It was announced that the official attendance was 20,565 and the receipts $45,645. Murray singled to left. Burns to second. Wilson struck out. Burns and Murray executed a double steal. Baker dropped Schang's throw to catch Burns when the double steal was made. Burns and Murray and Merkle scored when Merkle drove the ball into the left field bleachers for a home run. Bender threw out Marquard. Three runs; three hits; no errors.

Baker out on a fly to Herzog. McInnis fouled out to Herzog. Doyle threw out Strunk. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Eighth Inning
Herzog singled. This is the Giant's third baseman's first hit during the series. Herzog was forced at second when Collins took Doyle's grounder and tossed to Barry. Doyle was forced at second when Bender took Fletcher's hot smash and tossed to Barry. It was a good stop by Bender and shut off a hit. Fletcher scored on Burns' double to left. Burns scored on Shaffer's three base hit to right. The Giants were hitting savagely for Bender appeared to be tiring. Collins threw out Murphy. Two runs; three hits; no errors.

Barry fled out to Murray. Schang batted. Bender fled out to Murray. Schang was forced at second when Doyle took Murphy's grounder and touched second. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Ninth Inning
Crandall batted for Wilson. Collins threw out Crandall. Schang fled out to Murphy. Crandall batted in place of Marquard. Grant fouled to Schang.

Giants Still Confident
Fandom prepared to make the most of its chance—possibly its last chance this year—to see the champions of the two big leagues in action should the weather permit a game. Encouraged by the brilliant stand of the National League standard bearers toward the close of the struggle in Philadelphia, the hope existed among the supporters of McGraw's men that the series might be pulled out of the fire.

It was recalled that last year after the Boston Red Sox had tucked away three games of the series to the Giants, the latter had called and taken the next two, forcing the series to go the limit and only losing the deciding contest by reason of Snodgrass' fatal muffed throw which permitted the winning Boston run to be tallied in the tenth inning. Visions of this acted as a spur to the throngs of local fans who in descent upon the grounds were on in considerable force long before the gates were opened, even though a misty rain was falling.

The Pitchers
Whether the game of the day would turn out to be another battle royal between the veteran pitchers of the two teams, Mathewson and Plank, was a secret that the morning failed to reveal, for while it was a practical certainty that McGraw would select the "old master" to do the twirling for the Giants there was no telling before the game time who Mack would assign to the hurling mound. Shawkey was regarded as a likely selection should Plank be kept out of it, although Carroll Brown has been long-lying for a chance to pitch in one of the games of the series. Bush, the young hero of Thursday's game here is being held for Monday should the series carry that far, it is understood. Schang was expected to do the catching for the Athletics and McLean to don the mask and protector again for the Giants.

McGraw was not expected to send Snodgrass into the game again as that player's lousiness prevents him getting under smashes that otherwise would be easy.

Merkle, however, although still far from fit was looked for at his accustomed corner as his hitting is sadly missed when he is out of the lineup.

"BULLET JOE" BUSH, AGED 20, A GIANT KILLER; OLDRING HEADS BOMBARDMENT, THIRD GAME

BUSH IN ACTION

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Leslie J. Bush, called "Bullet Joe," was the bright, shining star of the third world's series game. This young pitcher of the Athletic baseball machine, though only twenty years old, kept the Giants down to five scattered hits and only two runs. Bush bails from the same town that the famous Indian, Bender, came from, Trainer, Mont., where one of the Athletics' scouts rounded him up. During the recent American League season Bush improved steadily, so that a month ago Mack told him to be prepared to take part in the world's series. Oldring was a tower of strength for the Athletics during the third game. He is shown in the picture safe at

BUSH WHO DEFEATED GIANTS

GIANTS IN LAST DITCH

Clash With Athletics in the Fifth Game of the World's Series at New York, Today

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—It was under far different circumstances than those that prevailed on the occasion of their last previous meeting here that the Giants and Athletics prepared today to play the fifth game of the 1913 world's series. Then the count in games won and lost was even and it was a tossup as to which would prove the ultimate victor. Today the Mackmen needed but this single game to assure them of the world's laurels in baseball while for the Giants it was a last-ditch stand.

It was with confidence that the Philadelphia fans gathered for the day, but not their adherents declared, with an over-confidence that would make them play carelessly. The spirited rally of McGraw's men in yesterday's game at Philadelphia when apparently overwhelmingly beaten they had landed on Chief Bender and pounded out enough runs to make the issue doubtful up to the last moment, had taught the Athletics thorough respect for their opponents' gameness and power of recuperation.

Al Delmont had an easy time with Phil McGovern in the main bout at the Lowell A. C. Delmont simply toyed with his Brooklyn opponent. McGovern's seconds tossed the sponge into the ring in the fifth stanza of what was billed as a twelve round go after their man had received terrible punishment from Delmont's fast two hand punching.

In the opening round Delmont started at McGovern like a hurricane and only a few seconds elapsed before McGovern fell to the canvas in a dazed condition. It was plain to be seen that he was not the same McGovern who has fought here on previous occasions.

In the fifth round, after wandering around the ring up to that time, McGovern went down three times. The men in his corner finally took compassion upon him and threw the sponge into the ring. McGovern only landed two clean punches during the entire fight.

The semi final with Gus Lenney of Boston and Young Morgan as opponents proved a rare boxing treat. Both men showed great cleverness although Lenney outpointed his man in all but two of the eight rounds. The first round and also the fifth were even but Lenney went to the front in the remaining six sessions.

In the sixth, seventh and eighth rounds Lenney had Morgan holding on. The Boston boxer forced the fighting all the way and started the blood from Morgan's nose in the sixth. In the last two rounds body punches and jabs on his bleeding nose had Morgan tired.

The affair was called a draw.

The two preliminary bouts were slashing affairs. Young River and Kid Hamilton put up a great battle for six rounds. Hamilton has been seen often but River is a recent entrant into the ring game. Hamilton is short and stocky while River is just his opposite in stature. This bout was declared a draw.

In the other preliminary Willie Jones and Young Tibbets met in a good draw. Both boys started in fast and worked themselves out trying to put over a laymaker. Neither boxer seemed to know what his left hand was for but made up for this with terrific right hand swings. It was a good draw and was hugely enjoyed by the spectators.

TO DEVELOP ATHLETES

Novel Plan by the English Amateur Athletic Association—Prepare for Olympic Games

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—A new plan prepared by the English Amateur Athletic association for the development of English athletes for the Olympic games at Berlin in 1916 has attracted favorable comment both at home and abroad. It is proposed to create interest and enthusiasm in track and field sports in all grades of competitors from the school boy to the club athlete. A systematic series of championship games at standard metric distances is planned, beginning with public school championships and continuing through every classification of English athletics up to the national championships.

The program included: Public school championships—Under the approval and cooperation of the head masters, and a committee from the schools to accept entries and to manage the meeting. County championships—To take place in counties which they do not at present exist at metric distances. Triangular Olympic Contests—Triangular contests between England, Scotland and Ireland at metric distances. Olympic Field Events—To include these in the Amateur Athletic association championships, and introduce such field events which are not at present included, and, if possible, to arrange for a two-days' meeting. Scratch Races—To assist affiliated clubs with prizes, provided they include approved scratch races at metric distances.

Such races to include scratch races during 1913 and 1914 for novices, open only to competitors who have never won a prize in athletics. A series of competitions at Olympic distances and events to be called Olympic novice trials. The events to be level, and open only to competitors over seventeen years of age who have never won a prize at athletics, ordinary school competitions and junior sections of athletic clubs not to count as wins.

On the question of training and trainers, the A. A. A. officials have announced that the question of training has been considered at length, and it was agreed that necessary arrangements should be made for central quarters in London and other centers, such as Manchester, Birmingham, Cardiff and Newcastle, where an official trainer and adviser would be on the track at a set hour to advise and help approved athletes. It was decided also to provide proper sets of apparatus for field events at various centers to hold Olympic trials in 1915 and to urge every affiliated club or permitted body to include a field event in their program. In order to encourage a general effort on the part of athletes to better their times and distances, the A. A. A. proposes to award standard medals, gold, silver and bronze, to athletes beating standards at Olympic distances, these standards to be fixed for all metric scratch and field events, no athletes to hold more than one medal for each class or any one distance.

Athletics at Yale
An air of earnestness pervades the athletics at Yale university this fall which is in marked contrast to the rather indifferent attitude which has shocked veteran alumni during the past few years. On all sides there is an apparent awakening to the need of pulling out of the rut if the Blue is to resume its record of winning a fair share of the contests in which its teams are entered. It is not alone in the major sports that this new spirit is evidenced, but in the minor competitions as well. Although football and fall rowing now hold the attention of the majority of the students, the coaches and managers of the winter sport teams are actively engaged in preparing for strong squads and schedules.

As an example of the new spirit at New Haven, the Yale basketball association has decided to enter a variety five in the Intercollegiate Basketball league this winter. The Blue with-certainly beat that ball when he has to land with Mahan pressing him this year he will perhaps show better than last year.

Christy Mathewson is the last "forlorn" hope of the McGraw camp. Whether or not Matty can stem the tide of the vicious Athletic batters will soon be decided.

Connie Mack showed good judgment in leaving Bender in the box yesterday. If New York had batted the Indian twirler in the ninth, Mack would have come in for a lot of criticism.

Demaree was weighed in the balance and found wanting. It was hard on him, though, to have those slips made behind for undoubtedly they upset the recruit twirler. If the Giants had played errorless ball behind Demaree the result might have been much different.

Oldring's catch of McCormick's hard line smash yesterday was the most spectacular that has been pulled off in the series. If the Athletic centerfielder had let it get away from him two runs would have resulted. Oldring picked the ball from off his shoetings.

It looks now as though Charlie Brickley has the call over Mahan for the season's kicking. Brickley can draw from the league last winter owing to lack of interest and financial support on the part of the student body. It has been decided, however, that in order to stimulate interest in basketball at Yale it will be necessary to have the university represented in the league again. As a result of this decision, Captain H. D. Swihart will call the candidates together at the end of November and place them in charge of Coach Haskell Noyes, captain of the Yale championship teams of 1907 and 1908. Since his graduation Noyes has coached the University of Wisconsin fives with remarkable success.

The hockey squads will also start earlier than usual this season in order that the varsity team may have the benefit of a number of practice games prior to the opening of the intercollegiate series. Conditions for practice and play will be far superior to those existing during previous years. A new artificial ice rink will be available at New Haven this winter, and the Yale seven will have the same opportunity for training as Harvard has in the Boston rink and Columbia in the New York rink. The new rink will have a playing surface of close to 40,000 square feet and will be equipped with locker rooms, shower baths and lounging rooms. The rink

EDISON'S NAME IN NEWS HOLDS WORLD'S EYE

Photos by American Press Association.

By CHARLES N. LURIE.

EXCEPTING only the case of the president of the United States, the serious illness of no other American could attract so much genuine notice as that of Thomas Alva Edison. "Edison ill," the wires said, and the world listened and waited for news. Not alone America evinced interest and asked for details.

Wherever civilization has set its foot between the poles there the name of Edison is known. His fame is not merely that of a great scientist, a great experimenter; it stands for a world force, entering into every man's life. For a generation men have been reading and thinking about Edison, not as a man, but as an embodiment of mental power, an indispensable element in the world's progress.

He has been an idea, a conception, an abstraction. He has been as fixed to our thoughts as the law of supply and demand, the theory of the conservation of force and energy, as certain and unchanging as the multiplication table. He has been an elemental fact. It is hard to think of the brain of Edison as becoming stilled, of his tireless energy at rest.

It was not surprising to read of physicians telling him that he must give up trying and go back to work if he wanted to keep on living. It was as though the tides had "laid out" for a time. And this in Edison's sixty-seventh year, after he had been hard at work for half a century!

He Could Not Rest.

Of course we all know of his twenty-four hours of toil in laboratory and engine room, in every twenty-four, of his often repeated contempt for the need of temporary or permanent cessation from toil. These things have been a commonplace of newspaper reading for a score of years, but we were shocked to learn that when Edison did finally decide on a two weeks' vacation he simply could not rest. The engine would not stop and, being badly governed by the enforced nap of its driver, threatened to rack itself to pieces. The fuel was being consumed in the intense, unrelenting working of the great mind, but the steam, lacking its wanted outlet, threatened to burst the boiler, so Edison went back to work.

Work, the application of theories and principles to practical results, is the keynote of the life of Edison. "In considering his life and work the distinction must be made between the pure scientific with mathematical and philosophical knowledge and the ingenious inventor who can apply a scientific truth to a practical end. Of this latter class Edison stands at the head. As an inventor he stands unique among those men who have applied scientific discoveries to the ordinary uses of man." So says one recent commentator on his life and work. First Improved the Telegraph.

It was as an inventor of improvements on the telegraph that Edison first acquired fame and wealth. His earliest important discovery was a repeating telegraph instrument, which enabled a message to be transmitted automatically on a second line without the presence of an operator. Next came the "ticker," whereby messages are printed simultaneously an indefinite number of times. The automatic telegraph system and the duplex, quadruplex and sextuplex telegraphs followed in order.

While Edison was laboring over these augmented uses of the telegraph his active brain found opportunities to branch out. Some of the results were the microphone and carbon transmitter for the telephone, the phonograph, the megaphone and the moving picture machine. He lighted the world with his incandescent lamp, the fruit of many years' study and experiment. In recent days his talking moving pictures, the improvement of the storage battery and the wider use of concrete for house building have engaged much of Edison's time.

Recognition and fame were accorded to Edison in such measure that for many years now his name has invariably been included in the lists of the greatest Americans and of the world's greatest men. With them has come wealth, for the "wizard" is not wanting in business sense, the lack of which marks so many of his fellow inventors.

Foreign governments have honored the American. Last January he received from the American Museum of Safety, in New York, a gold medal for the invention of a safety electric mine lamp. It was the museum's first award of the Rathenau medal, a German sign of approval of the best device or process in the electric industry for the safeguarding of the life and health of workers.

It is characteristic of Edison that he would not appear in person to receive the Rathenau medal, but sent his wife in his stead. He was too busy in his laboratory, he said.

Before the world was shocked recently upon learning that Edison was ill few such reports had come to its ears. It seemed as though one simply could not imagine Edison ill. Every previous report and "story" about him had him working—always working—at some new thing or improvement of old.

How Edison Became Deaf.

Possibly the story of his deafness may be new to some readers. It happened when he was quite young and was a "train butcher" or newsboy, on a train of the Grand Trunk railway in Michigan. He had a friend in the man in charge of the baggage car, and this man permitted him to use a corner of the car as a laboratory for experiments in chemistry, but one day young

Edison upset some chemicals and set the car on fire. His friend the baggage man became his enemy and not only threw the chemicals off the train, but boxed the boy's ears. The eardrums were ruptured.

But this did not keep Edison from further experiments. In later years he said often that he did not regret his deafness, since it kept him from hearing a great deal of nonsense. Of all men whom this world has known, he has probably had least time of any to listen to nonsense. He said once, "By a carefully conducted series of experiments I have discovered that the gray matter of the average person frazzles out before his voice does."

Edison's sixty-sixth birthday was celebrated at his home in Llewellyn Park, a residential section of West Orange, N. J., on Feb. 11 of this year. Hundreds of congratulatory letters and telegrams were received at the Edison home and works. The latter are also in West Orange. Included among the senders of the messages of good will were leading men in various sections of the United States, Europe, China and Japan. Edison spent the day, as usual, in hard labor. He had been in his laboratory, according to his habit, until 1 o'clock in the morning and left it for a sleep of four hours.

Well Liked by Employees.

More than 6,000 employees at the Edison works surprised their chief when the 7 o'clock whistle blew by wearing in their coat lapels blue buttons with the numerals "66" in gold. This pleased the "old man," as he is known about the works, greatly. "Isn't it strange they have all thought about me in the same way?"

When he was asked how old he felt he replied: "About twenty-five. My arteries are good, and as long as my locomotion keeps moving without any trouble I will be able to keep working." He was asked about his interest in the advancement of aviation and replied, "I never cared to go up in the air."

The commonly accepted idea that Edison's early years were spent in poverty is a mistake, according to Frank Lewis Dyer and Thomas Commerford Martin, the biographers of the inventor. These two men have been associated with Edison in business and have had opportunities not given to others to know their subject. In their book, "Edison—His Life and Inventions," they say that he was a member of a family in comfortable circumstances in Port Huron, Mich., to which place the Edison family moved from Milan, O., when he was young. But they agree with others in saying that the regular school experience of Edison was short, only three months in all. His mother educated him at home until he was twelve, when he began his business career as a train boy. He is not a great mathematician, as might be inferred from his work. He said once to a friend, "I can always hire mathematicians, but they can't hire me."

Governors Island, Guardian of Wall Street's Millions

As an interesting sight it ranks fairly high. As a fort its value is way below par. It was built 102 years ago.

But there's more to Governors Island than the round brick edifice which is most of what meets the eye on shipboard. Governors Island is one of the largest and best equipped military posts in the United States and has been the seat of an army detachment for many years. There was talk some time ago of its abandonment by the army and its reversion to the state of New York, which gave it to federal government for use as an army post.

Governors Island would make a fine city park, said some of the New York papers, and they commented with avidity on its beautiful location in the upper bay, its accessibility and its old time fame for healthfulness. The island lies just off the Battery, which is the lower end of Manhattan Island, within easy eyeshot of the skyscrapers.

But a howl arose from the financial district of New York, the biggest and most important in the nation. What, take the soldiers off Governors Island? Impossible! What would Wall Street do in case of an earthquake, a big conflagration or a riot threatening its immense stocks of gold and other money and securities?

In case of such financial emergency not enough policemen could be summoned in time, and assemblage of a sufficiently large number of militiamen would be out of the question. The only recourse would be the soldiers on Governors Island, who could reach Wall Street in twelve minutes after being called.

The bankers want a full regiment of infantrymen, one of the best in the service, quartered on Governors Island. They want modern barracks built to house these men. In fact, they want the whole island remodeled into the finest military post in America. They advance other reasons than the necessity of providing amply for the protection of Wall Street's millions.

New York has been watching Governors Island grow in recent years. Originally this "little sister of Manhattan" had only sixty-eight acres. There was a lot of waste wet space to the south of it which served no useful purpose, so several years ago the government got busy, built a wall around 102 acres of watery area and filled it in with material dredged from the harbor near by. Now the island is 171 acres in extent, and old Wouter Van Twiller, governor of Dutch New York, who gave it the name, wouldn't recognize it.

In the days of the short range guns, such as are still to be seen in Castle Williams, the old round brick fort, the island was an important part of the defense of the city. In the civil war days Governors Island housed many Confederates taken prisoners. As many as a thousand were there at one time. The island no longer defends New York, but New York is defending it as an army post.

Czar's Family of Daughters Growing Up

ORDINARILY a man with four good looking daughters approaching the marriageable age would not worry about their future, especially if he had wealth in proportion to his good fortune in the family line. He might expect confidently that suitors would wear a path to his door and his front parlor would be in great request.

Not so with the czar of Russia. He has four good looking daughters. One of them is almost old enough to think about settlement in life, since royalties reach that age sooner than other mortals. Another is approaching the age. The third and fourth are still too young for matrimonial consideration. All four are endowed with good looks beyond the average. About their dowries there is no question, since the emperor of Russia is the wealthiest sovereign of the world.

Why then should the czar and czarina worry? Simply because in all the earth there are very few young princes of station high enough and family old enough to make suitable partis for their daughters. In fact, the high rank of Grand Duchess Olga and the others has precluded mention of many young men who might be considered eligible. For instance, it was said a short time ago that Prince Arthur of Connaught, cousin of King George, might be considered a candidate for the hand of Olga. But Arthur was far removed from any possibility of succession to the British throne, so his name was stricken from the list of eligibles. He found a bride in the Duchess of Fife, his near relative.

It was reported recently that the successful suitor for the hand of the Grand Duchess Olga was Prince Charles, heir presumptive to the throne of Roumania and grand nephew of King Charles of that country. In course of time he will sit on the throne of Roumania.

It had been reported many times that Princess Olga had fixed her heart upon her cousin, Grand Duke Dimitri, and would have no other for a husband. But Dimitri is the son of the Grand Duke Paul, who is in ill favor with his imperial cousin, the czar, because of his morganatic marriage to the divorced Countess Plisborska. Czar Nicholas did not relish the idea of his daughter coming into intimate relationship with a woman whose course has been severely criticized.

The young lady is in her nineteenth year. Her second sister, Tatiana, is sixteen; the Grand Duchess Marie is fourteen, and Grand Duchess Anastasia is, youngest of the daughters of the czar and czarina, is twelve. Either Tatiana or Marie has been mentioned as a possible bride of the Prince of Wales, heir to the throne of the only empire which vies with the Russian in extent.

All four of the young ladies are bright and comely, deriving their good looks from their mother, who was one of the most beautiful princesses in Europe when she was married, in 1894, to the czar, then just seated on the throne of his father. She was the Princess Alice of Hesse, granddaughter of Queen Victoria. Her daughters and son, therefore, as well as the Prince of Wales, are great grandchildren of Victoria, so that the wedding of any of the grand duchesses and the Prince of Wales would be a marriage of close relatives.

Grand Duke Alexis, heir to the Russian throne, only son of the czar and czarina, was nine years old in July of this year. He is a bright, happy looking child, as his recent photographs show, despite the mysterious illness which prevents him from walking. The story of his illness has never been cleared up since it was reported and denied, last October, that he had been shot by a revolutionist. He is carried constantly in the arms of the huge Cossack of whom the young prince is very fond.

Persons in close touch with the Russian court say that Alexis is a spoiled child who has been trained by his father to demand his own way in everything in order, as the czar believes, that his will power may be strengthened. ARTHUR J. BRINTON.

WHEN you sit up New York harbor on your porch and look down at the fort on Governors Island you turn from your European what they called Edison's monitor in trip or from your view to the civil war days—a "cheese box on Corty Island or one of the New Jersey forts." The Governors Island fort, say beaches you can't help noticing looks like a cheese box on an island.

people on the inside who lay claim to being public spirited. Mr. Molloy was very firm in the belief that part time education would go a great way toward relieving the situation. He said it was asking a great deal of the boy and girl to work all day and go to school at night. He said it savored too much of burning the candle at both ends.

Dr. Lambert, chairman of the school board, thought that the part time scheme was a very good one and he gave the commission something about it when he stated that he did not believe the mill men, the employers, were in full sympathy with the new miners' law. In a hop, step and a jump in Lowell, Dr. Lambert made the statement that the Irish drove the Yankees from the mills, that the French, in turn, drove the Irish out and the Greeks, in turn, drove the French out.

the Greeks who work in the mills, Dr. Lambert, in reply to questions by the chairman said that a great many of the Greek men took their meals in the Greek coffee houses, but no sooner had he made this statement than the Greek men in the other end of the room hollered: "Not No!"

Superintendent Molloy

Bernard J. Rothwell, chairman of the commission, opened the meeting at 7:15 o'clock and called upon Supt. Molloy. The latter said that the evening elementary schools will open next Tuesday and that these schools will appeal mostly to those people who are illiterate in English. Many Greeks, Armenians, Poles and other foreigners will attend these schools. Separate classes for the different nationalities will be maintained. The chairman wanted to know if primary ethics, hygiene, sanitation and city ordinances could be taught these people. Mr. Molloy believed it would be well to teach something about local ordinances.

"Is the school board trying to reach any of the adults?" asked the chairman.

"I don't think anything has been done in that line."

"Does the idea commend itself to you?"

"Not unless it could be taken with the idea of teaching these adults exclusively, apart from the teaching of minors."

The chairman said in some places the idea of visiting these adults in their homes and instructing them along certain lines, in advanced.

Mr. Molloy believed it a good, but hardly a feasible plan.

In Lowell, as elsewhere, are a very considerable number who neglect or refuse to avail themselves of the opportunity offered," said the chairman.

"Could these adults who do not speak English, be compelled to learn the language? If they refuse, would you let the matter pass by, or would you take means to compel them to learn?"

"I don't think I can answer that."

"Do you think the age limit should be advanced for illiterates?"

"It would depend somewhat upon their accomplishments in their native tongue."

Chairman Rothwell said he believed the commission felt the same way about it.

Mr. Spaulding asked: "Has everything possible been done to assimilate the non-English speaking foreigners and are they being as rapidly assimilated as would be expected?"

"I feel that everything within reason is being done, but I do not know how long it takes on an average to bring about assimilation."

"Have you thought of any other possible means of educating the foreigner, between 16 and 21 years of age, aside from the evening school?"

"I am willing to go on record as saying that part time education will do much in many cases. I feel that with many minors the full day of labor, about the evening school, is too much."

From the state's economic point of view it means the burning of the candle at both ends. Part time means far better education, and it also cuts down the hours of that which is going to sap the strength of the citizens of the future. "We should give to those, so far as able who are well."

Mr. O'Brien, another member of the committee, asked what percentage of the evening teaching force are day teachers. Mr. Molloy said a very small per cent of them.

"In many cities," said Mr. O'Brien, "most of the teachers in the evening schools are day teachers."

"Could you get a more efficient force if you paid them double what they are receiving now?" asked Mr. Rothwell.

"I doubt it," replied Mr. Molloy.

Dr. John H. Lambert

Dr. Lambert, chairman of the school committee, said the attendance of foreigners at the evening schools dropped off perceptibly around the first of the year in the holiday season. Accordingly, the school committee gave them as much schooling as possible before the holiday season.

In reply to a question by the chairman Dr. Lambert said he thought there was a lack of co-operation on the part of employers with relation to the new miners' law. He said that the way the law is now working shows a slip somewhere.

"What in your judgment brought 40,000 non-English speaking foreigners to Lowell?"

"The industries, the mills."

"Who induced these 40,000 to come here?"

"I don't know. The Irish came, and then the French, and the Greeks have come in."

In reply to questions by Mr. Spaulding of the committee relative to the parochial schools, Dr. Lambert said that the parochial schools had never been formally approved by the school committee. He said he hoped before the year is over to see the parochial schools approved or disapproved.

Dr. Lambert said he had asked the superintendent to make inquiries relative to the standing of the parochial school to ascertain if the standard was in keeping with the public schools. He said that this information had not yet been supplied by the superintendent.

William F. Thornton

Head Attendance Officer Thornton said that under the present law minors are compelled to go to school whether they work or not. He did not favor extending the age limit and he said that he did not agree with certain statements made by the chairman of the school board. He said that the law had been very vague up to the present time, but that there had been no laxity in the enforcement of the law.

Mr. Thornton said that a majority of the foreigners who attend the evening schools learn little of the English language because they are obliged to go to school. He said they never think of speaking or trying to speak the English language when they can speak their own tongue.

"That is a very severe arraignment of your own system," said Mr. O'Brien, and the chairman said Mr. Thornton's statement was entirely out of line with any statement that commission had heard thus far. He said that in some cities they guarantee to familiarize the foreigners with the English language in four years.

"Your evening schools must be better than if what you say is true," said Mr. Rothwell.

In reply to a question by one of the commission members Mr. Thornton said he found a hearty co-operation on the part of the employers of minors and the school authorities.

Commissioner Cummings

Com. Cummings asked Mr. Thornton a few questions and told the commission that he did not agree with many of Mr. Thornton's statements.

Mr. Cummings told of his experience on the school board. Mr. Cummings said that some time in the past the school board had formally approved the parochial schools.

Rev. Alexander Ozonowski

Rev. Alexander Ozonowski, pastor of Holy Trinity Polish church, said there are about 4000 Poles in Lowell, more than females and about 1300 are children. He said the great desire of a majority of his people is to save enough money to buy a little land. They are much better off in the country, he said, than in the city where there are so many saloons.

Wife of Milwaukee

Mrs. Viates, wife of a Greek Protestant missionary, asked how many pupils are allotted to each teacher in the evening schools.

Dr. Lambert said usually 18 or 20, although sometimes there are as few as 12.

Mrs. Viates, who was introduced by Rev. Mr. Ferrin of the High Street Congregational church, was asked several questions relative to the local Greeks and it was very evident that some of the Greeks present did not understand what was being said.

"I ask if her knowledge is not too limited and biased because of religious tendencies?" asked a young Greek, but his question went unanswered.

Others called upon by the chairman of the commission included Agent Bates of the board of health. Mr. Bates answered numerous questions and said that housing conditions are much better in Lowell today than they were a few years ago.

Other speakers at the hearing included Supt. Welch of the police department, Mrs. O'Brien of the Y. W. C. A., and Mr. Yarnall of the Y. M. C. A.

The hearing lasted until about 1:30 o'clock this morning.

The commission was very much interested in what Supt. Welch had to say and he offered some suggestions that the commission allowed were very good. The superintendent also spoke a good word for the Greek population of Lowell. He said that the Greeks are a law abiding people and that Lowell has more Greeks than any other city in the country except Chicago.

"About as many as the local Greek colony," said Mr. Welch, "was due to the carrying out or the winding up of some old feud, or else the meeting out of a punishment accepted as law in the home country. The Greeks of Lowell are a law abiding, Christian people and I take exception to a statement made here tonight to the effect that the Lowell's foreign population is a menace to the city. There is less crime in this city today, according to the population, than twenty years ago. Lowell is improving in every way. I want to say also that in the carrying out of any law I have met with the heartiest co-operation on the part of employers."

Mr. Welch believed compulsory education and believed there should be no age limit. He said that that foreigner should be obliged to learn to speak, write and understand the English language, and when asked what he would suggest as a means to bring that about, Mr. Welch said that a jail sentence, in his estimation, would be about the best thing. He thought if the foreigner was made to understand that he or she must learn the English language under penalty of a jail sentence there would be very little to it. They would get down to business and learn the language. A jail sentence of a week or two would suffice, he said. Asked if he thought it would be a good idea to deny the foreigner work until he had mastered the English language, Mr. Welch replied that that would be a good way to increase the number of tramps or hoboes.

The commissioner intended to hold another hearing this afternoon but finally decided to visit the Greek colony and the visit was made this forenoon.

POLO GROUNDS, New York, Oct. 11.
The Philadelphia Athletics, pennant winners of the American league, are the world's series champions of 1913.
Defeating the New York Giants by a score of 3 to 1 today, the Athletics captured their fourth victory of the series. The National league pennant winners won one game. Plank's marvellous pitching today, which he held the Giants to two hits, makes him the pitching hero of the world's series games. Last Wednesday on the Philadelphia field Plank shut out the Giants for nine innings; only to lose the contest in the tenth. The Athletics' "south-paw" was never in better form, his bewildering cross-fire standing the Giants on their heads. Had not Plank muffed a pop fly with a double play in slight the Giants would have gone scoreless through the game.
Mathewson also pitched superb ball and after the third inning held the Athletics safely. The Philadelphia club garnered its three runs in the first and third innings. After the game Manager McGraw hurried over to the Athletics' bench and congratulated Connie Mack. The Philadelphia rosters swarmed down upon the diamond and bore Eddie Plank across the field on their shoulders. Thirty-five thousand people saw the play that made up the game.

entrenchments today and with their big gun, Christy Mathewson, wheeled into the breach faced the attack of the Athletics, who need but one more victorious charge to make them world champions of 1914. With all his pitching artillery shattered by the Athletics' cannonading, Manager McGraw was forced to send his pitching star to the firing line with only two days' rest. The National league champions have won only one game in the series.
Thirty-five thousand or more persons, undismayed by the herculean task of the Giants in holding in check the Mackmen, came out to the Polo grounds to view the battle. The gloomy weather kept the Philadelphia crowd down to a small number but those few sat behind the Athletics' bench and never missed an opportunity to cheer their team.
With heavy clouds drifting in from seaward there was a constant fear that rain would end the struggle. Canvases were protected the inner playing field from the night's downpour and the groundkeepers had the diamond in shape for smart fielding play.

Fletcher's Fine Was $100
Instead of being fined $50 as reported yesterday at Philadelphia, Arthur Fletcher, shortstop of the Giants was fined $100 by the national commission for having addressed insulting remarks to Umpire Connolly at the conclusion of Thursday's game at the Polo grounds because Connolly had called Schaffer out on a close play at second.

Giants Out Early
The Giants were the first on the field for a long batting practice. McGraw had told them in the clubhouse that if they expected to make a stand today they would have to give Mathewson support with their clubs. Promise served up the ball to the Giants in batting practice and loud were the cheers when Doyle, Merkle and McLean sent long drives down toward the centerfield fence. McGraw and Mathewson were the last to come on the field.

The Athletics marched across the field in a body and began to warm up on the side lines by tossing the ball back and forth to each other.

There are Brown and Shawkey who have yet to show their pitching wares. Either one will give Maty a run and we can use Plank if necessary.
Manager McGraw had little to say but the little showed that the little New York leader was still struggling hard to stem the tide against his club.
"We'll be in there fighting until they drag us or the other fellows out," he remarked.
Fletcher's Fine Was $100
Instead of being fined $50 as reported yesterday at Philadelphia, Arthur Fletcher, shortstop of the Giants was fined $100 by the national commission for having addressed insulting remarks to Umpire Connolly at the conclusion of Thursday's game at the Polo grounds because Connolly had called Schaffer out on a close play at second.

The crowd gave a cheer when Mathewson walked out to the hurling hill. Murphy singled on the first ball pitched. Fletcher, being barely able to reach it with his ungloved hand. Murphy forced at second when Maty took Oldring's punt and tossed to Fletcher. "Big Six" made a clever play on the ball. Collins shot a single to right. Oldring easily making third. Oldring scored when Burns caught Baker's sacrifice fly. Burns made a wild throw to the plate, the ball going over McLean's head. Collins went to second on the wild throw. Herzog took McInnis' splash and threw to Doyle, who touched out Collins. One run, two hits; one error.
Plank's first pitch was a ball, knee high. After two balls and two strikes had been called, Plank and Collins had a conference in the pitchers' box. Herzog out on a fly to Murphy. Plank worked very coolly and deliberately. As if trying to conserve all his energy, the veteran Philadelphian, who is 35 years old, worked "very slowly."

Doyle out, Barry to McInnis on a lightning fielding play in which Barry took the ball on the run behind the pitcher's box. It was a gilded fielding on the part of Barry. Fletcher went out on a long fly which Rube Oldring took up near the fence. No runs, no hits; no errors.

Second Inning
Doyle tossed out Strunk at first. Mathewson's big looping drop curve was in fine working order. Barry out on a high fly to Murray. Schang faced Mathewson for the first time in the series. The crowd was all impatience to see how the hard-hitting Athletic catcher would fare at the hands of "Big Six." Schang got an infield single which bounded off Maty's glove. Plank popped out to Herzog. No runs; one hit; no errors.

McGraw made a complaint to Umpire Connolly that Plank was shifting his feet from the slab while making his delivery. The umpire disallowed the claim. Baker threw out Burns at first. Schaffer fouled out to McInnis, who caught the ball leaning way over the boxes of the grandstand. Murray was thrown out by Plank at first. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Third Inning
Murphy got his second single to left the ball going like a rocket between Fletcher and Herzog. Doyle made an error on Oldring's sizzling grounder. Murphy going to second. Collins out when Merkle took his sacrifice bunt and touched him on the line. Both runners moved up. Murphy scored when Merkle took Baker's smash and threw to the plate. It was a Cincinnati base hit for Baker. Oldring went to third. Oldring scored on McInnis' sacrifice fly to Burns. Baker was held at first. Doyle threw out Strunk at first. Two runs; two hits; one error.

McLean sent up a high fly to Oldring. Merkle fied to Collins. Barry threw out Mathewson at first. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Fourth Inning
Fletcher threw out Barry. Murray took Schang's short fly after a hard run. Fletcher caught Plank's fly back of second base. No runs; no hits; no errors.
Herzog went out on three straight strikes. Plank wore the corners of the plate to a nicely and had a fine change of pace that kept the Giant batters at their wits' ends to fathom. Doyle hit to McInnis. Unassisted. Fletcher fied out to Strunk. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Fifth Inning
Doyle threw out Murphy at first. Doyle also took care of Oldring's grounder and had him an easy out at first. Collins out on a fly to Schaffer. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Mathewson pitched but seven balls to retire the Athletics in their half of the fifth inning. Burns lined to McInnis. It was a terrific smash but McInnis only had to move a step to nail it. Schaffer walked. He was the first Giant to reach first base in the game. Schang almost caught Schaffer napping at first with a quick throw. Plank dropped Murray's pop fly and Schaffer went to second. It was a bad error for Plank had an easy double play in sight. Schaffer scored on McLean's single to left. Murray hit the ball at second. A double play ended the inning. Collins took Maty's grounder and threw to Barry forcing McLean at second. Barry then completed the double by throwing Merkle out at first. One run; one hit; one error.

Sixth Inning
Baker singled to right field. McLean threw out McInnis. It was a sacrifice bunt. Doyle threw out Strunk. Baker going to third. Fletcher threw out Barry at first. Fletcher made a bad throw and Merkle a beautiful stop. No runs; one hit; no errors.

Mathewson singled to right. A double play quickly followed when Barry took Herzog's stinging grounder and tossed to Collins forcing Maty. Collins then threw out Herzog. Doyle out on a hot liner which Murphy picked off the concrete wall. No runs; one hit; no errors.

Seventh Inning
Herzog struck out. Doyle threw out Plank, who made no attempt to run to first. Murphy walked. Oldring fouled out to McLean. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Fletcher fied out to Strunk. Barry threw out Burns at first. Schaffer out by the Barry-McInnis route. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Lean out on a fly to Oldring. Barry threw out Merkle at first. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Ninth Inning
Strunk out on a fly to schaffer. Herzog threw out Barry. Schang struck out.
Crandall battled for Mathewson. Crandall out, Collins to McInnis. Herzog out on a fly to Barry. Doyle fied to Murphy.

136 PERISH AT SEA

FISHGUARD, England, Oct. 11.
Fire in a raging storm in mid-Atlantic on Thursday destroyed the liner Volturino on her voyage from Rotterdam to New York, and according to wireless reports, caused the death by burning or drowning of at least 133 and possibly 283 of her passengers and crew, while ten other liners called by wireless to the rescue were standing by impotent to avert the tragedy owing to the mountainous seas. Again the wireless played a leading part in the drama and by its means and the heroism of the succorers who responded to the call, the lives of 521 of those on board the Volturino were saved. The Volturino was owned by the Canadian Northern S. S. Co. but had been chartered to the Uranium line. Officials of the latter company declared this morning that those on board comprised 24 cabin and 540 steerage passengers with a crew of 93, making a total of 657. The wireless dispatch received from the Germanian said that 521 had been saved and 233 lost their lives, which makes a total of 754 or just 100 more than the number given by the company.

Checking from all available sources would indicate that an error in the wireless transmission of the figures had been made and that the lower total, 136, of those who lost their lives in the disaster is correct.

The emigrants on board the Volturino were composed of Dalmatians, Russians, Poles and a few Germans. Most of them were bound for Canada.

MOTOR CYCLE CARS OUT

Four Wheeled Development of Motor Cycle One of Latest Novelties in Automobile Devices

In England, and, to a lesser degree, in France and Germany, automobile cycles are taking a lively interest in the "cyclo-car." These little vehicles are neither real automobiles in the usual sense of the word nor motorcycles. Americans, too, have developed cycles of their own, or vehicles so closely akin to the typical cyclo-car that they must be classed as such.

In the broadest possible sense, the American cyclo-car might be classed as an imitation of the foreign style. Actually, however, they are not imitations. They are original vehicles, brought out to fill in America the place that is filled abroad by the foreign cyclo-car. Hence, it was to be expected, in forecasting their ultimate development, that there would be vital differences between the American and the foreign cars.

Undoubtedly it was the motorcycle that furnished the inspiration for the cyclo-car. Most motorcycles will carry two persons, but hardly in comfort. Hence, to carry two persons in comfort required some other arrangement, and because of the difficulty of constructing side cars that will stand up and that look well and afford real protection to the second passenger, as well as to the first, the cyclo-car was naturally evolved.

And, quite as naturally, the typical foreign cyclo-car is characteristic of the latest motorcycle when it appears. It is true that some of the foreign so-called cyclo-cars are positively like fullledged automobiles in everything else but size.

It is therefore apparent that there are few restrictions to bind the designer of a cyclo-car, and yet the restrictions are sufficient to make necessary the elimination of parts that characterize the full-sized automobile. Thus the typical foreign cyclo-car is minus the usual differential mechanism and live rear axle, and as a rule has no change gear set. In these two respects the American cyclo-car, or the American vehicle that comes as near to being a cyclo-car as is possible with proper construction, is quite different from its foreign cousin. In every one of four American cyclo-cars on the market at present there is a change gear set, shaft drive, live rear axle and a differential mechanism, all of which parts belong to the ordinary motor car. Hence, whereas the foreign cyclo-car is a thing apart, the American cyclo-car is nothing more or less than a miniature edition of a full-sized automobile.

In the design of the typical foreign cyclo-car the motorcycle motor, designed and built for the motorcycle, is adapted in toto without any excuse and with less alteration. As a rule, it is a twin-cylinder air-cooled motor. In every one of the four American cyclo-cars to which we have referred, however, the motor is a four-cylinder machine and is cooled by water. All of them, except one, are block-cast machines with poppet-valves, and the one exception has a piston-valve motor. Among 22 makes of well known foreign cyclo-cars, on the other hand, only two have four-cylinder, water-cooled motors, whereas 11 have two-cylinder, air-cooled motors, and seven have two-cylinder water-cooled motors. The resemblance to motorcycle practice is unmistakable.

In the transmission elements of the 22 foreign cyclo-cars, the resemblance to motorcycle construction is even more apparent. Seven of them are driven by means of belts to the rear wheels; of these seven, six have chain transmission from the engine to a countershaft; three of them are driven directly by chains and the remainder have shaft drive to either level or worm gearing on the rear axle. In the four American cyclo-cars which we have studied we find that every one has shaft-drive through a three-speed gear-set to a differential-bell driven rear axle. The American cars, therefore, are much more closely allied to their larger brothers of the automobile world than are the foreign cyclo-cars.

If we examine the 16 cyclo-cars representing England, France and Germany, that exist in the Automobile Club of France's grand prix race for cyclo-cars a few weeks since we discover that no less than nine of them were driven by belt, and of these nine six had chain drive to a countershaft; the remaining three out of the nine had, in two cases, shaft drive to the countershaft, and in the third case—the "Hercule"—the drive was direct from the engine to the rear wheels by belt. These little machines are, very obviously, nothing more than enlarged motorcycles.

Still further examination of these foreign cyclo-cars shows that in a great many cases the steering gear consists of nothing more complicated than a couple of stout cables running over a drum on the lower end of the steering column. Six of the cyclo-cars in the grand prix race were so controlled. American practice, however, prescribes the regulation worm and sector gear found on full-sized automobiles. Again, the tread, or wheel track of the typical foreign cyclo-car is narrower than the standard 56 inches adhered to by the makers of large motor cars. The tread of two of the American cyclo-cars measures 37 and 44 inches, respectively; of the other two, 56 inches. The average wheel-base of the foreign cyclo-car is approximately 55 inches, and the average wheel-base of the four American cyclo-cars is 54 inches. The average weight of the foreign cyclo-car is a little over 500 pounds, and the average weight of the four American cars is nearer to 800 pounds.

Before going any further it is necessary to call attention to the fact, if that fact has not already been disclosed, that the four American cars, which have been partially described, are not, strictly speaking, cyclo-cars.

But they are small cars—very small ones—and they are the nearest approach to the type cyclo-car that has as yet been produced for the market in America. Consequently, as such, they are interesting.

If they are considered as real cyclo-cars, they are easily the superior of the average foreign cyclo-car, which in the language of a well known British engineer who recently paid a visit to the United States, "is poorly designed and improperly constructed with too little attention paid to detail and to the strength of parts."

Just how far short of their ideal foreign manufacturers of cyclo-cars have fallen is well indicated by the list prices that are quoted for these little vehicles. Despite the light construction, the adoption of existing motors and the incorporation of motorcycle features, all of which logically should be expected to lower production cost and hence selling price, the foreign $100 cyclo-car is still practically unknown; and it was the $100 cyclo-car that designers first sought, and, be it added, still are seeking.

In the mean time, American designers have bestirred themselves and actually have produced the $500 cyclo-car. In two cases that figure includes a reasonable amount of equipment which is never included under foreign selling prices. Starting virtually at the bottom, with little but the germ of the cyclo-car idea, American designers have cast out motorcycle practices as unsuitable and have built their cyclo-cars from the bottom up. As a result they may be styled, without any fear of contradiction, able little cars capable of standing up under hard service.

U. S. CARS IN CANADA

OUTLOOK IS BRIGHT FOR AMERICAN CARS THERE BUT MANY OBSTACLES MUST BE OVERCOME

That the American motor car manufacturer is more than holding his own in the Dominion of Canada, is the belief of a Canadian manager for a U. S. concern, who has just arrived in Detroit after a 5000 mile trip through Canada.

"The American maker is going to win out in the Dominion because of his superior resources and advantages," he said. "Competition in the Canadian field at the present time is between the American, British and Canadian manufacturers. So far, the Canadian maker has had the hardest kind of shedding, due to the scarcity of part manufacturers in Canada. He has to import the greater part of his finished material and this adds considerably to the cost of his car. The British manufacturer, lacking the benefits obtained from quantity production, and with only a slight preferential duty in his favor, has not yet proven a serious competitor to the big American concerns."

Importations of American cars into Canada steadily increased in the past five years, the gain being especially large in the class of cars selling between $2000 and $3000. With the great number of reputable dealers that have taken up the sale of American cars in Canada, the coming year should see still further progress made.

"Probably the greatest difficulty encountered in selling cars in Canada, is the amount of credit demanded. In Saskatchewan, Alberta and other western provinces, nearly all business is carried on long credit terms. At the present time, ready cash is as scarce in western Canada as the proverbial hen's teeth."

"The big real estate operators and farmers consider the motor business policy to have large sums of money in the bank. As fast as they obtain ready cash, it is invested in more land. As a result the man worth millions in real estate has an astonishingly small amount of ready money. This land-poor condition is common in the west and I have seen some instances where a man could not raise $200 on a real estate worth $100,000. Naturally, as most of his business is transacted on credit, the big land-holder wants to buy his motor cars on the same plan. Many car sales have been held up because of this fact, but both the American and Canadian manufacturers have been firm in their demands for cash transactions, and I believe the property owner will eventually realize that buying automobiles is strictly a C. O. D. proposition."

"In the matter of good roads, Canada is easily keeping pace with the United States. The province of Quebec alone has voted $10,000,000 for road improvements and a magnificent new highway between the cities of Quebec and Montreal is almost completed. The eastern provinces are leading in the appropriations for better roads, but the fine natural prairie roads of the west, makes touring in that section equally enjoyable. The energy with which the Lincoln highway project has been pushed in the United States, has re-awakened interest in a similar road for Canada. The chief obstacle to a trans-continental Canadian road is the broken country in northern Ontario, commonly known as the North Shore. Many millions would be necessary in placing a road through this district, and the great cost of the job will undoubtedly postpone it for some time to come."

FIGHTER JAILED

Used His Fists on, Man on Lakeview Avenue—Milk Case in Court

Not content with having one fight last night, William Rivet, a fighter by trade, beat up a young man named Albin Morin at the corner of Lakeview avenue and Alken street after his ring contest had been settled. Clerk Trull made quite a mistake in the sex of the complainant when he called in trumpet-like tones for "Miss" Morin to step around to the witness stand before he had seen the complainant.

The plea of the defendant is guilty, but Judge Enright decided to hear the evidence in the case. Morin testified without any urging. The defendant, said Morin, first threatened him and then attacked him with his closed fists. "I was not afraid of him," quoth the witness, "but I knew he was a very bad fighter and I didn't want to get killed." Morin showed the court where the ring performer had struck him and allowed that it hurt pretty bad at the time it was inflicted. When asked by the court if the blow had felled him, to the ground he said that it had not, but that it was a wicked haymaker.

The defendant did not have anything to say in his own behalf, but stood in the dock swelling out his chest like a champion. Rivet was fined $10 and ordered committed until the fine was paid. One of Rivet's seconds was also in court. His plea was guilty to the charge of drunkenness, which was explained by saying that he was in Rivet's corner. "You see," he informed the judge, "I don't do this very often, but as I was at the fight last night and in Young Rivet's corner, I felt pretty good and got canned." The officer who made the arrest testified that the defendant was around Lowell yesterday begging money from strangers but the defence the defendant offered to this was his drunken condition. He was fined $5 and released upon one week's probation.

Other Offenders
Michael J. Riley wanted to appeal and also wanted to go on his own bail. Riley was arrested for drunkenness and received a two months' sentence. "I've got property," he announced, "and I'll bail myself out." Judge Enright put a stop to his talk, however, and he was sent down stairs to take a trip to jail where he will await the result of his appeal.

Joseph A. Caron presented himself at the police station last night and asked to be taken care of. "I'm afraid I have got the 'terrors,'" he said, "and I want to have something done for me."

The liquor will have an opportunity to evaporate. He appealed, however. James Gallagher received a four months' sentence to jail for drunkenness. This was his fourth appearance in court within a year for the same offense. Michael Bonas was placed on probation for drunkenness and the non-support of his wife, with a two months' jail sentence staring him in the face if he does not reform in the near future.

Milk Case
John Jarek, a milk dealer, was charged with violating the milk law, but Judge Enright decided that the producer was at fault and his case was placed on file.

THE COLUMBUS HOLIDAY

How it Will be Celebrated Here—
K. of C. and French Guards Going Out of Town

Holiday pleasure seekers will find plenty of diversion in this city on Monday, next, Columbus Day, and there will be a variety of amusements, as seen in the program for the day, printed below, so that all may enjoy the holiday according to their tastes. In the various halls, will be "sunlight" and "moonlight," which is to say afternoon and evening dances for those who care to "trip the light fantastic." The theatres hold excellent entertainment for their patrons, while there will be several sporting events, namely golf and football.

Monday, Columbus day, all operatives of this city will enjoy a holiday, for it was announced this morning at all the local cotton mills that the plants will shut down this noon and will not reopen again until Tuesday morning. The shoe shops, as well as machine shops, and in fact all other industry will suspend work for the day.

One of the big features is the journey to Manchester of the local Knights of Columbus to assist Manchester council in the celebration of Columbus Day, the local members leaving the city on the 12.15 p. m. train in connection with which special accommodations have been arranged. Lady and gentlemen friends of the council are cordially invited to accompany the body. Special attractions have also been arranged by several of the other clubs.

The local guards of the French American Volunteer brigade of the United States, which comprise the second regiment, will journey to Brockton Monday, where they will participate in the great parade of the Knights of Columbus of that place, who will celebrate Columbus Day in great style. At the conclusion of the parade the companies will repair to Walkover park, where the first regiment will be inspected by Inspector General Joseph L. Lamoureux, captain of Garde d'Honneur of this city.

Provided New York is victorious in today's baseball battle with the Athletics, there will be another big game Monday, weather favorable, and the fans will enjoy the megaphone service of The Sun, in the square, where every detail of each play will be announced. The complete program for the day is as follows:

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Oct. 11.—Is Mrs. Jennie M. Eaton guilty of murder? Did she poison her husband, the late Rear-Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton, to death at their home at Assisippi, Mass., on March 8 last? What part did her two pretty daughters of a previous marriage play in the family tragedy? These and other interesting questions will be answered at the trial of Mrs. Eaton on a charge of slaying her husband, which starts here on Oct. 14. The case last March was a country-wide sensation because of the high standing of the rear-admiral. The trial excites equal interest now. Chief Justice Aiken presides, and Prosecutor Albert Barker conducts the case against the widow. One of the most important witnesses is Miss Dorothy Ainsworth, the pretty seventeen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Eaton.

DAKOTAH USES SUBS
HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 11.—The appearance of the University of Vermont football team today was expected to afford a fairly good chance of comparing the relative strength of Dartmouth and Williams next Saturday as the purple defeated the Green Mountain eleven a week ago, 26 to 6. Numerous minor injuries during the weeks' practice compelled the Green to send many substitutes into today's game. The weather conditions which have been of the midsummer variety all the week changed to damp and lowering today.

THE FAMILY COUGH MEDICINE
In every home there should be a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, ready for immediate use when any member of the family contracts a cold or a cough. Prompt use will stop the spread of sickness. S. A. Stid, of Macon, Mich., writes: "My whole family depends upon Dr. King's New Discovery as the best cough and cold medicine in the world. Two 50c bottles cured me of pneumonia." Thousands of other families have been equally benefited and depend entirely upon Dr. King's New Discovery to cure their coughs, colds, throat and lung troubles. Every drug store has a bottle of it. Price 50c and $1.00. All druggists. H. E. Bucklen & Co., Philadelphia or St. Louis.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—With the world's baseball championship not yet off the boards, the devotees of football sought to push their way to the front today with a schedule which called for about 30 intercollegiate games in the east. Many of the larger colleges were past the experimental stage of their work and ready to open a hard campaign. The six games of the day regarded as having a most important bearing on the season's battle for supremacy were:

HARVARD AND WILLIAMS
CAMBRIDGE, Oct. 11.—Harvard's strongest lineup was made ready to start today's game against Williams. The visitors brought a team containing several veterans and the Crimson players were prepared to guard against a repetition of the brilliant forward passes of last year's game which enabled Williams to score on a place-kick, although Harvard won, 26 to 3. A drizzling rain fell this forenoon and there were prospects of a slippery field.

Yale and Lafayette at New Haven; Cornell and Carleton at Ithaca; Rutgers and the army at West Point; Pennsylvania and Swarthmore at Philadelphia and Bucknell at Princeton.
In the game with Lafayette last year Yale came through with a victory of 16 to 6. An eleventh hour change in the Yale eleven made it appear that Al Wilson, the big quarterback who was displaced in practice this week by Cornish would start today's game as fullback.
Harvard, meeting Williams, which was defeated last year, 25 to 3, also expected to have a fairer test this year for the Williamstown eleven is a well coached team.
The Cornell-Indian engagement at Ithaca promised one of the most interesting games of the day. The Indians were in good trim and expected to use the same lineup that defeated Oberlin last week.
Swarthmore's physical condition being still a problem owing to the recent vaccination of players, made it doubtful what sort of a showing the team could make against Pennsylvania. Last year Swarthmore defeated the bigger team by a score of 6 to 3.
Princeton followers confessed to having no worries over today's game with Bucknell.

BOARD OF TRADE
The annual fall meeting of the directors of the Lowell board of trade will take place at the rooms on Tuesday evening next and will be preceded by a banquet starting at half past six o'clock. Everyone of the forty directors of the organization is expected to attend. The purpose of this big meeting is to discuss plans and proposals for the work of the year. The chairmen of the various committees will be present and will offer their reports and suggestions for this purpose, and each of the directors will speak and make proposals for the advancement and progress of the organization, in any of its departments. Many new ideas are bound to be expressed regarding the betterment or enlargement of the work of the local trade organization. There will be a meeting of the board of directors at the rooms at six o'clock the same evening.

HON. D. I. WALSH
Favors Constitutional Convention to Settle Off Recurring Questions
David I. Walsh spoke last night in Spencer, Warren and Brookfield, devoting himself chiefly to a discussion of the need of a non-partisan constitutional convention for the state.
"I believe the time has arrived," said he, "for the holding of a constitutional convention in Massachusetts. No such convention has been held since the year 1853. For some years past several important questions of a constitutional character have been occupying public attention, and the time seems opportune for the holding of a convention to discuss these questions and to present them to the people for their final decision. The subject of making new organic law for the commonwealth is a great one—one of the greatest that has come before the state for many years."
The delegates to such a convention should be elected by an impartial ballot.
"Such a convention ought to serve the purpose of shortening the sessions of our legislature. Year after year many of the same constitutional questions are presented. If these questions could be dealt with by a constitutional convention and submitted to the action of the people, whether favorable or otherwise, it would serve the purpose at least of removing them from the legislature."

CORONER TO BEGIN INQUEST AT WESTFIELD WHERE TRAIN RAN INTO CAR
MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 11.—With the exception of Otto St. Arnold of Meriden, all the persons hurt in last night's head-on collision of a trolley car with a steam train, running over the tracks in Westfield on the Berlin-Middletown branch of the New Haven road are doing well today. Three patients are in a critical condition but two of them showed surprising strength this morning. They are John G. Elley of Meriden, N. Y., a traveling salesman, and Miss Frances Florin of Rockford, a village near here. Nine other persons are still at the hospital, but their hurts are of a minor character.
Coroner Stephen B. Davis will begin his inquest into the accident at once. The medical examiner has viewed the body of Ralph A. Hydenburgh, a newspaper man, who was instantly killed, and the inquest was held on heels of his findings.
REV. FR. GREGORY, S. J., DEAD
WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 9.—Rev. William Gregory, S. J., former professor at the Boston College and up to his death chaplain of the Georgetown university, died last night at the Georgetown university hospital. Interment will be in the college cemetery.

LOWELL MEN ATTENDED

Meeting of State Association of Boards of Health at New Bedford—Clambake Before Meeting

Dr. Thomas F. Carroll, John H. Drury and Agent Bates of the Lowell board of health attended the regular meeting of the Massachusetts Association of boards of health held at New Bedford Thursday. The meeting was attended by health officials from all over the state and after an automobile trip about the city the visitors were taken to Padanaram where they enjoyed one of the clambakes for which that section is famous.

At the municipal building the visitors were welcomed by Mayor Ashley, who conducted them through the building and through the public library, as well as pointing out to the principal buildings in the business and civic center.

The clambake at Padanaram was held in Woodhouse and Slocum's pavilion, and immediately following the business meeting of the association was held. Professor W. T. Sedgewick, head of the department on hygiene and public health of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was the principal speaker of the day.

The Massachusetts Association of Boards of Health is an organization now entered into its second quarter century of life. It was the first of such societies that sought to pass the experiences of one health officer to others, and in some of the states such work is now done by schools or meetings to which by law the different towns send their health officers. The Massachusetts association is a voluntary one and has afforded much in the way of education to the members which has been in no small degree responsible for the generally excellent health conditions and regulations of Massachusetts towns and smaller communities.

From the fact that Dr. Sedgewick and his force of Technology professors have always been a force in the association its meetings in later years have usually been held at the Hotel Brunswick across the street from the institute and the students and professors have always taken part in the proceedings although they have not looked for offices in the society.

Twenty-four automobiles besides the two cars belonging to the city of New Bedford, were donated to the board of health for the day, for use in caring for the visiting members of the state association, and each car was given a number. The visitors were asked before the party started on its sight-seeing tour to observe the number on the car in which they started, so that when the party got out of the machines at various places, they might always get back into the same machines in which they started.

Harvard Brewing Co. Gets Permit to Repair Stable—Other Items

A permit for general repairs at the stable of the Harvard Brewing Co. in Payne street, which was recently gutted by fire, was granted yesterday at the public department office, the approximate cost to be about $400.

Awarded Contract
Purchasing Agent Foye yesterday awarded the contract for 2000 feet of one-inch wrought iron pipe for the water work department to H. R. Barker Co., whose bid was $31.50. The other bids submitted were as follows: Farrell & Conant, $38; Middlesex Machine Co., $142.50; H. S. Drury, $35; Welch Bros., $100.

Approved Bills
Mayor O'Donnell and Commissioner Cummings met in the aldermanic chamber yesterday for the approval of the monthly bills. There was a large number of bills submitted and among them was one which caused more or less hilarity among those present. This was a bill to the amount of $1.38 for services at a fire in Lowell by the Chelmsford fire warden, who claimed he worked one hour and a half with his machine. The bill read as follows:

Aug. 25:—Ordered to a fire near Chelmsford line by state fire observer. Extinguished fire and reported to observer that same needed watching. Fire proved to be in Lowell on Middlesex canal on land of one Charlton of Highland avenue. To services above 1-1/2 hours with auto, $1.38. Signed: A. C. Porham, forest warden, Chelmsford.

Hearings
Hearings on the following petitions will be held before the commissioner of streets and highways on the evening of October 20.

Omer J. Smith, that a concrete sidewalk be laid on the southerly side of Crawford street in front of premises at the corner of Fourth avenue.

George H. Lussier, that a sidewalk of edge stones and cinders be laid at the corner of Moody street and Sixth avenue, a distance of 85 feet on Moody street, and 95 feet on Sixth avenue.

Walter G. Charles, that a concrete sidewalk be laid on the northerly side of Crawford street, opposite the premises numbered 91.

Rev. T. W. Smith, O. M. L., and others, that Bourne street be accepted from Otis street to that portion of said street already accepted, and that said street be macadamized and edge stones laid on both sides thereof.

R. G. Bartlett and others, that a sewer be laid in Daniels street from Andover street, northerly, a distance of about 200 feet.

More Certificates

The attendance officers are always kept on the jump and it is figured they have issued over 1500 school certificates since the new law went into effect. This forenoon the corridor on the third floor of city hall was literally filled with youngsters who were awaiting their turn to see the attendance officers.

DEATHS

SEVERED HIS JUGULAR VEIN

Michael Kelley, 45, of Augusta, Me., committed suicide yesterday at the lodging house of Charles Markarian, 85 Gorham street. He first cut a vein in his right wrist and then severed his jugular vein with a pocket knife.

Kelley arrived here Tuesday night, lying on his bed with a deep gash in the throat and another in the right wrist. In his right hand was clutched a common ordinary jackknife, and the bed was covered with blood. Life was extinct.

The police were notified and Inspector Walsh was detailed to the house. Upon searching the man's pockets he found a card bearing the inscription of the National Soldiers' Home, Augusta, Me. It was a furlough card issued on Sept. 23 and good until Dec. 23. It was also found that deceased was a veteran had gone out, and there he found him

COLUMBUS DAY

On Monday the state will again put away its trappings of trade and labor to honor the great navigator who sailed into the darkness of unknown seas in an age when most men who knew of his daring plans thought him a visionary fanatic, and gave America to the world and to us. Before the ideal which his memory and example has left us we are but the children of a day, whether our fathers came over in the Mayflower or on the Imperator, and in this land, the fruit of his zeal, patience and Christian perseverance the hundreds of thousands that will do him honor on Monday may clasp hands in the common heritage of Christianity and the glory left by the greatest example of noble courage the world has known. Before the wonderful story of that voyage from Palos to San Salvador we are all children drinking in the essence of romance and when did romance have a more glorious ending than the falling of the weary voyager on his knees before the cross he had planted in the virgin soil and the chanting of the victorious "Te Deum" for the dream fulfilled.

It is strange that a people who are so alive to the need of greatness and generous in awarding it should so long have delayed to give Christopher Columbus the richly deserved honor of a memorial day. He was easily the greatest man of his era and one of the greatest of all time. The chains with which an ungrateful and forgetful king weighed down his aged limbs and the misery of the end in Valladolid in 1506 have only thrown into greater relief his great qualities of heart and mind. All the nations of the earth have set him on a pedestal of idealism too lofty for the shaft of the puny or malicious mind which would fall low enough to besmirch his name or deny him the glory that is his by all the standards that measure human greatness.

The Columbus day idea is growing surely and steadily. Massachusetts adopted it only after a long struggle but now that it is a reality, Massachusetts nobly forgets the differences of opinion that obtained before the legislature honored the memory of the navigator by setting apart a day in his honor, and all people who possess nobility of soul revere him as all Americans irrespective of race or creed revere the name and memory of Washington or Lincoln. This year Columbus day is being observed in New Hampshire for the first time and the Knights of Columbus from this city will take part in a great parade which is to be held in Manchester.

Unfortunately old prejudices die hard and there are still some few, fortunately growing less yearly, who refrain from taking part in any celebration in honor of the great navigator on the ground that such observances are of a sectarian character. They forget apparently that the sectarianism is shown far more strongly by those who protest than by those who give honor where honor is due. When the state honors the individual may honor without endangering his patriotism. The man who is too falsely "American" to honor Christopher Columbus is doing his utmost to give the day the sectarian character that he so strenuously resents.

Columbus belongs to America more really than he belongs to Italy or Spain. Let us not forget this on Monday. Let us picture him again on the uncharted seas facing the west through mist and darkness and storm. Let us think of him as bearing the cross of faith and the glories of civilization to a land hidden in the obscurity of an unexplored world. Let us tell our children of the lesson of perseverance he teaches, forever commanding down the ages: "Sail on and on and on."

DEMAND NEW SCHOOL

One hundred mothers of Everett held a meeting a few weeks ago and drew up a petition demanding the abolition of an unsatisfactory school in that city and the creation of a new and modern structure. It was not the first time by any means that the improvement was demanded from the city authorities, but the mothers claimed that the officials were negligent and they have declared that if $100,000 is not appropriated at once they will take the matter themselves before the state board of education. The petition reads like the demand of serious and determined women and one hundred mothers can do a great deal when they act about it in the right way. They may never carry the matter to the state board, but there is every likelihood of a sudden revival of interest in Everett concerning school matters.

Much of what they charge against the Mt. Washington school in that city would apply equally well to the Lowell high school. The mothers claim that the Everett institution is "obsolete, unwholesome, overcrowded and a veritable firetrap." This does not imply that there is any possibility of one hundred determined Lowell mothers making a demand for the abolition of our inadequate institution, but it does imply that any establishment, educational or otherwise, to which the above descriptive adjectives are applicable cannot be permitted to stand indefinitely.

There is also a pertinent warning for us in the recent report of Superintendent Lewis of Worcester to the school committee of that city regarding a long-continued neglect "to provide adequate school accommodations to meet the needs of a rapidly growing city." He says that the Worcester neglect "has made the matter a difficult one to handle financially now." Commenting on it the Worcester Post says:

"The story is not a pleasant one to review, but necessary for its instruction for the future. The city is indeed left in a tight place as the need for more school building construction confronts it so imperatively from so many sides. But the duty must be faced and the difficulties surmounted as best can be done. Rigid economy in every other department of city government must be one way to help out."

AIGRETTES OFF, LADIES

To enforce the new tariff clause which forbids the importation of the skins and feathers of wild birds, Secretary McAdeu has given orders that any lady who lands here must, if she wears any of the forbidden feathers, take them from her hat and turn them over to the customs authorities before she is allowed to leave the wharf. At first sight this rule seems rather strict; it may even be called too cruel, remembering what an egret means to most women. But on second thought it is difficult to see how the regulation can be enforced unless such action is taken. It is no more lawful to wear a forbidden egret in a Parisian hat than to wear a diamond necklace off the boat without paying duty. Still, it must be confessed, most people would far rather decide to deal with the matter editorially than to be the hard hearted official who must say: "Pardon me, madam, but I am compelled by cruel regulations to take possession of that bird of paradise that decorates you so effectively." Let us hope he demands it as politely. Bad enough to damage her hat without damaging her feelings unduly.

TO STUDY DRUNKENNESS

Reports from Boston say that a legislative commission appointed during the last session for the purpose of studying drunkenness with the idea of determining whether it is really a crime or a disease, is starting out to do its good work. If the membership is of the proper sort this commission ought to result in much good, for the field of investigation is certainly large and the need for such scientific study is evident. Nothing is more common than to see one member of an otherwise estimable family addicted to the drink habit so strongly that not all the solicitations of friends, the sufferings of relatives, the rigors of legal punishment can cure him. His will seems to be completely submerged and he seems powerless to resist the overwhelming passion for drink that makes his life a tragedy to himself and all who are near to him. In cases such as this, drunkenness seems to be more of a disease than a crime and it is gratifying to see the state taking steps which may revolutionize the treatment of the inveterate drunkard by society.

A STRIKING CONTRAST

At the Mathew anniversary banquet last Thursday evening Mayor O'Donnell drew a striking contrast between the character of the great "apostle of temperance" and the apostles of disorder who too often in our own times use their personal power and magnetism in the cause of disorder instead of devoting their talents to the uplift of the world. Few have ever had the great personal sway over a great body of men that Father Mathew possessed, and for such a long period, and no one ever used that power more nobly and unselfishly. As the mayor remarked, one time will sift the chaff from the wheat, and when the passions of the men of the present have been cooled by a long sojourn in the grave, the name of Rev. Theobald Mathew will shine with even a greater lustre, while the names of the apostles of discontent and disorder will be despised by a few and forgotten by most.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP

The proposition to have the government take over the telephone service of the country is unwise, even though as at present constituted the telephone business is a great monopoly. It must be a monopoly of its very nature, and in revenue government ownership would not make it less of a monopoly while making it far less efficient. Prompt service is the great consideration from the business point of view, and government ownership would not tend to make the service more prompt or efficient. If at present an occasional employee offends a subscriber consciously or unconsciously, how much more room for complaint there would be when employees could be insolent at will, relying on the shield of the civil service for immunity from penalty. By all means let the telephone service of the country remain intact.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

OLD AT 31

Boston Post: There has been much talk in recent years of baseball as a desirable career for educated young men. Mathewson has been pointed out as one proof that such a career is a desirable one, and he has been inducted into the choice of hundreds of young men. But Mathewson as a scientist or professional or business man would be just earning on his greatest usefulness. With his education and undoubted talents, he might be in receipt of a greater salary in any one of a dozen other occupations.

GULL'S SUCCESSOR

Foster's Democrat: It is gratifying to learn that Henry M. Findell, who succeeds Curtis Guild as ambassador to Russia, is an editor. While Mr. Findell has not achieved any great reputation in the literary world, he is recognized as one of the strongest and most forceful writers in America. The Russian government has indicated that Mr. Findell would be persona grata as any other American.

POOR FELLOWS

Manchester Mirror: It must be easily seen that the proposition to let bachelors out of existence is utterly impracticable. Taxation can't bring more women into existence. And even if it could do this there is no assurance that it could compel them to accept the bachelors.

There is, however, such a thing as possible deprivation of bachelors to one or another of those countries where women are plentiful. This might seem cruel to the bachelors, but it is not as cruel as the only other remedy—that of killing them off.

PUBLIC SERVICE

Lynn News: In these days it is the duty of the public service, which tries to meet the reasonable demands of the people, it will find that it will stand in very much better favor when the time comes when it needs public support, and that time does come in the life of every corporation.

HAS THE FLOOR

Woonsocket Call: The world series has the floor, and the front pages of the newspapers. Everything else must give way. Mexico, Japan, Hawaii, etc., will please observe and govern themselves accordingly.

INDIGNENT PLAYS

Miss Rae Eleanor Ball, the violin virtuoso, will attract large audiences by her exquisite playing of classics. The Radio weekly collection of pictures will close performance. Good seats may be obtained in advance. Monday, November 11, afternoon and evening special Sunday entertainments will be given.

OPERA HOUSE

A treat for the children of this city in the form of "The Sleeping Beauty" at the Opera House today. It is one of the most entrancing stories ever produced in motion pictures. Its appeal cannot be denied, the setting, the costumes, and the acting are as near perfection as human ingenuity can devise.

"DOLLARS AND SENSE"

Everybody in Lowell who has enjoyed seeing "A Fool There Was" or "The Spectator" will be interested to learn that the author of these successful dramas has for the first time written a comedy, which will be initially presented by Cohen and Harris at the Opera House next Monday (Columbus Day), matinee and night, with Douglas Fairbanks as the star and an exceptional company of 24 players in his support.

The title of Mr. Browne's new comedy is "Dollars and Sense"—a significant one. A firm of unscrupulous financial promoters has an expensive suite of offices in downtown New York and there, like the vespene spider, weaves the fascinating web of speculation and enterprise profits in the form of a bird line with which the country is flooded. Through the medium of several high-sounding wildcat companies, leading beautifully engraved certificates in various stocks, the promoters have succeeded in raising in several millions of dollars, paying dividends, not out of earnings, but out of each day's profits through the mails. How these schemes are finally exposed and how thousands of innocent investors are saved from ruin through the unexpected earnings of a country lawyer, is the current subject of the author's play. The details of the plot require no less than 25 characters to interpret it. The story abounds in comic elements, but is a serious and satirical comedy, and although Mr. Browne disclaims any intention of dealing with a moral, the moral is there nevertheless, whether or not one chooses to accept it or not.

Douglas Fairbanks has been starred by Cohen and Harris for two years, and is one of the all-time favorites and most popular young actors on our stage. Prominent in his company are Patricia Collins, Mrs. Anna Robinson, Grace Goodall, and the local farmer, Crane, Edw. and G. H. Frank, Moore and others of marked capabilities.

"THE QUAKER GIRL"

"The Quaker Girl," one of the hitting songs and the most successful dance is coming to the Grand Opera House next Thursday (Columbus Day), to tell in a burst of song the tale of her trials and triumphs, her hopes and her longings. It is a story of love and romance, seductively charming, embellished with comedy and pathos, and a comedy that has been presented in the most optimistic. It has been presented in London where it ran for two years at the Grand and Adelphi theatres, and in Paris, one year in the Grand Theatre at the Park theatre, New York and is now making a brilliant tour of the United States and Canada, where it is being greeted by capacity houses.

MERRIMACK SQUARE PLAYERS

Dion Boucicault's famous play, "The Octoroon," or "Life in Louisiana," a story of life in the South before the war will be the attraction in which The Players will be seen in company with a matinee Columbus day at the Merrimack square theatre. A play which has been presented in the most successful southern play ever written. "The Octoroon" is one of the most novel and one almost almost say, a masterpiece. It is a play which a company will be seen in the popular company of the few plays written many years ago which will never grow out of date.

EXPERIENCE OF MOTHERHOOD

The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism untrained for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

LADY LOOKABOUT

What a pleasure and what a pride it is even to the least of us, to know that we have placed in the White House a gentleman, a man of letters.

This thought has come to me a number of times of late, particularly when President Wilson sent his message to Mexico. Apart from the import of the message, it was in point of English, a masterpiece, and was so recognized and commented upon by the foreign press.

The same thought came again to me a few days ago as I read the circumstances surrounding the signing of the new Underwood-Simmons tariff bill. In the presence of his cabinet, at one of the most solemn moments that will ever come to him as chief of the nation, standing with pen in hand, and the document embodying the features of the tariff bill spread out before him, he signed his name, the president spoke thus simply, in the language of a scholar, free from cant, bombast and egotism:

"I was quelling the other day to some of my colleagues in the senate these lines from Shakespeare's 'Henry V.' which have always appealed to me. 'If it be a sin to covet honor, then am I the most offending soul alive,' and I am happy to say that I do not covet it for myself alone. I covet it with you, for the men who are associated with me and the honor is going to come from them. I am their associate. I am only completing the work which they do. I am only counsel, when they ask for my counsel. I can come in only when the last stages of the business are reached.

"And I covet this honor for them quite as much as I covet for myself, and I covet it for the great party of which I am a member; because that party is not honorable unless it renders its name and serve the people of the United States.

"So I feel tonight like a man who is looking back in the line which lies half way along the journey and that in the morning with a fresh impulse we shall be the best of the journey and sleep at the journey's end like men with a quiet conscience, knowing that we have served our fellow men and have thereby tried to serve God."

One moment later, having appended his signature, the bill became a law. To me there is something solemn in those words. They suggest the utterance of a prayerful, God-fearing man. The closing lines recall the Xenophon and Plutarch's Progress, and yet there is a beautiful unfeigned simplicity about them, reminding one of Abraham Lincoln.

When you were a little girl (or a little boy), do you remember your mother or your teacher telling you that when angry you should count ten, and that when very angry you should count one hundred? And you thought it was silly and childish, but you tried it and often at the end of the count you found that the anger had vanished.

William Jennings Bryan has launched this identical plan before the world as his great peace plan. The plan in brief is this: Any nation wishing to go to war shall wait at least one year before beginning, and during that year neither side shall make any preparations for war.

Laughably simple, you say, and yet it is considered so practical that already 22 nations, including four fifths of the population of the world have accepted it in principle.

If we women were engaged in the business of politics and one of us, running for high office, presented a platform differing radically from that of her party, how the men would laugh, and how they would remark, "Just like the women, the dear things!"

Now I am only one little woman, but it seems to me that if we women could only get together for the standard-bearer of our party, we would come pretty near knowing beforehand whether or not she thought with us along the main points at issue, or if she had a few strong notions of her own opposed to those of her party. And it also seems to me that a person in high office who has to reluctantly withdraw his own convictions and accept those of another, cannot make the most efficient official in the world. However, this is only the humble opinion of one who is not supposed to be able to form an opinion on matters political, so don't let it carry any weight with you.

A funny feature of the whole business is that the mothers of these political prodigies are not of sufficient intelligence to grasp the significance of a political situation. Is it not a miracle that women of such numberless propensities can beget offspring who are stars of the first magnitude in point of intelligence? And the same mother can beget a son, an able legislator and a vote-getter, while her daughter, perhaps a twin-sister of the above mentioned son, is non compos mentis in regard to the ballot. There is a problem in genetics for someone.

I found an old magazine in the attic the other day—a magazine for women, and I compared the table of contents with one of recent date, and the comparison forced me to draw some very convincing conclusions. To be sure I did not need much forcing, but I fear there are still among us some of the male persons who may need just a little forcing.

The old magazine was filled with discussions on the proper etiquette of ladies and gentlemen, and if the old time lady were a prude in regard to the way she was supposed to carry herself in the presence of gentlemen, the old time man was ten times worse.

Two or three pages were given over to how to behave to one's mother-in-law. Our grandmothers certainly had it down here. Such mixtures as they used to make themselves attractive! Another page was given over to medical recipes; another to fortune-telling by means of horoscopes and palm-reading; and the most villainous of villainies.

A romance of love, hate, and tragedy, with a heroine who spent much of her time in an unconscious state, and the most villainous of villainies.

The modern magazine led off with an article on the conditions of working children. It set forth factory conditions in our large cities, and suggested remedies for bettering the conditions of those children whose labor begins at an early age.

An article by Dr. Woods Hutchinson on the economic value of food was followed by Dr. Harvey W. Wiley on the diet of the "Pure Food Baby." A section was devoted to house-furnishing, and another to the discussion of the leading questions of the day, child-study here and in foreign countries, in which the best authorities of the world were quoted; politics, education and science.

Such a change in what women now demand in their magazines surely spells but one thing—progression.

Dyed furs have not yet been seen in Lowell, but Boston is already showing them. Taupe, blue, yellow, and purple fox, skunk, tiger and leopard fur are all used to trim winter gowns and wraps.

In a very exclusive shop, I saw a collar of skunk fur in combination with rose-colored fox. Skunk with purple or yellow is also seen. A narrow pleated frill of satin in correspondence in color to the dyed fur is used to border the edges, and a flat bow of the same material adorns the side.

Don't you think this is pretty good? I think some woman must have written it. I read it somewhere a few days ago.

"Congressman Gardner thinks he is a regular Goliath in politics."

"Yes, but he must not forget Goliath's end—David slew him."

TRAIN AND CAR COLLIDE

WESTFIELD, Conn., Oct. 11.—As the result of a head-on collision on the Berlin branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad between a Middletown-bound steam train and a Meriden-bound electric car here at 5 o'clock last night, one person was killed and 11 injured, three perhaps fatally.

Ralph A. Blydenburgh of Middletown, city editor of the Middletown Penny Press, was instantly killed. The fatally injured are Max Glass, 16-year-old, fractured skull and concussion of the brain, condition serious. Otto St. Arnold, Meriden, a waiter, fractured jaw, fractured leg and internal injuries. Miss Frances Florian, Rock Fall, fractured skull.

Others injured are Ephraim Hines, Middletown, conductor of trolley car; fractured wrist and tibia. Benjamin Lord, Middletown, motorman of trolley car; fractured leg. Harry Gurrian, New Haven; fractured nose and scalp wound. Michael Cronin, Portland; body bruises. Mrs. Robert Mathison, Middletown; fractured leg, scalp wounds. Charles Ehrens, Middletown; cuts and bruises. Adam Brauer, West Bromwell; cuts and shock. Miss Anna Dettling, Middletown; lacerations of body.

The crash occurred near the local depot. There is a single line track from this place to Middletown, that branches off at a junction here, one line going to Berlin and the other to Meriden. It is said through a misunderstanding of orders the trolley left Newfield, a few miles to the east on the single track, where it should have remained on a siding. The Middletown-bound steam train got orders to proceed. It is said, and a few moments later the collision occurred on a straight track.

The steam train, as is the custom, was backing toward Middletown, with the engine pushing. The front of the trolley was smashed like an eggshell. Nearly every passenger in the trolley was injured more or less.

Passengers on the steam train rushed out and did what they could to assist the injured.

As soon as possible the wrecked trolley was hauled onto a switch and the injured were taken to Middletown on the train. Special trolleys carried them direct to the Middlesex hospital in that city, where all the physicians in the vicinity had been summoned.

Mr. Blydenburgh, who was killed instantly, was one of the best known newspaper men in central Connecticut. He was for many years city editor of the Middletown Penny Press, and for more than 15 years a correspondent there of the Associated Press. He was about 50 years old and leaves a widow and daughter.

FREEFORD, N. H., Oct. 11.—Tablets labeled "Poison" were yesterday found in the house where Edwin Shackford was murdered on the night of Sept. 23. Bessie Littlefield Shackford, his wife, is being held without bail on the charge of murdering her husband. Hollis Wilbur, a farmhand, whom she charges with the crime, is also at Carroll county jail in Ossipee. He is being held as a witness unable to furnish $1000 bonds. Shackford died after two bullets had been shot into his head as he lay asleep.

Yesterday two white poison tablets were found in a clock in the dining room of the Shackford home. The government, through Sheriff Arthur W. Chandler, claims that there was a plot to put Shackford out of the way. Whether or not the tablets figured in the alleged plot is not known.

NOT A VICE DEN

Chinaman Denies That Girls are Enticed Into Hub's Chinatown

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—The friends of Sing Wah, the Chinaman who was arrested on the premises at 26 Oxford street Wednesday afternoon, charged with having in his possession opium on which no duty was paid, met at the store of Wah last night to voice a protest against the published statement that the place was a procuring resort to which white girls were enticed.

Deny Reports
Yee Wah, a relative of Sing Wah, told a reporter after the meeting that the merchants and business men of Chinatown are incensed because of the false accusations made against the Wah establishment and the general impression that Chinatown in that quarter induce white girls whom they meet to visit the places in that section on a slumming tour and then persuade them to smoke opium just to see what its influences were.

"We wish to say that there is no such thing as Chinamen inducing white girls to come to Chinatown to smoke opium," said Mr. Wah. "There is no such a condition in our midst as white slavery. We want that impression corrected as we feel a great injustice is done us by such a report."

"We admit that two white women were in the Wah establishment when the customs authorities entered in their search for opium and smoking outfits. One of those women is the lessee of the building. Her name is Mrs. Lew Way, and she is the wife of a Chinaman whom she married 20 years ago. They live on the top floor of the building. She is not a young girl, but is about 40 and gray-haired."

Women Not Smoking
"I do not deny that the Chinamen there smoked opium. I do deny that the women were smoking it when the officers entered. The second woman is a white friend of Mrs. Way. She accompanied Mrs. Way to the Wah store on the first floor. Mrs. Way rents the first floor to Wah, and it is quite customary for her, being an occupant and lessee of the building and a friend of all the tenants, to go to the store on the first floor."

"Neither of the two women was or is a Sunday school teacher. I do not deny that they smoked opium. You must know that Chinamen are accustomed to smoking opium, and when once addicted to its use, find it almost impossible to give it up."

"We deny that our people are procurers of white women and we deny that there is white slavery in Chinatown, and we further deny that the two women seen at 25 Oxford street by the police were smoking when they entered the premises to arrest one man, not 37."

Wah was arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes yesterday on a charge of having opium unlawfully in his possession.

At the Calvary Baptist Church Last Night—Prof. Stout and Irving T. Gumb Speakers

A large number of members of the Calvary Baptist church attended the annual roll call which was held in the church vestry last night. Early in the evening a report was served by the pastor of the church and this was followed by an address by Professor B. T. Stout of Pasadena, Cal. Prof. Stout is a religious worker, who goes about the country assisting in every way he can. He was in Lowell 10 years ago and he spoke last night on the wonderful improvements at the Calvary Baptist church and he congratulated the pastor and the people on their success in this regard.

Mr. Irving T. Gumb was the next speaker and he talked on boys' work in general. Mr. Gumb is president of the Volunteer Student band and chairman of the committee on boys' work at Brown University, of which he is a junior, and is connected with the Y. M. C. A. of Rhode Island and Massachusetts. His talk last night was unusually interesting. The evening exercises closed with singing by Prof. Stout.

REV. DR. BARTLETT
Formerly of Lowell Now in Poor Health at Hartford, Conn., Where He Was Pastor

Word has been received in this city to the effect that Rev. Dr. William A. Bartlett, former pastor of the Kirk Street church of Lowell, now pastor of the Farmington Avenue Congregational church of Hartford, is suffering from a severe nervous breakdown, and is a patient in a sanitarium in Chicago, where he was taken on Saturday last.

It is said that the illness, the illness and death of his son, and worry over the illness of his wife are assigned as the cause of his malady.

Rev. Dr. Bartlett was last May given leave of absence to Sept. 1, and spent a vacation at Ocean Park, Me., in an effort to regain his health. He returned in poor condition and later suffered a relapse with the result mentioned above. Prior to going to Hartford, Rev. Dr. Bartlett was pastor of a large down town church in Chicago where his work was very trying and difficult. He was one of the leaders in the campaign for Sunday school closing there, and spoke day and night in the work.

HOLY NAME AT ST. MICHAEL'S
The Holy Name society of St. Michael's parish will hold their first meeting of the fall and winter season tomorrow evening, Sunday, Oct. 12, at 6:30 p. m. While the meetings were discontinued during the summer, President John J. Haviland has been looking round for beneficial suggestions of improvement and he will have something to say tomorrow evening that will interest all the members and encourage them in their good work. Both the spiritual director and he are anxious that the meeting tomorrow be unusually large as they intend the membership this year to grow even more rapidly than during 1912 which was the banner year of the society. The band officers are about to take up their duties and they, too, expect to be of material help in getting every man in the parish into the Holy Name society.

JAMES J. STORROW WILL Not be Candidate for Mayor of Boston

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—James J. Storrow has absolutely refused to allow himself to be considered a possible mayoralty candidate for the coming city contest, according to the word which was quickly passed around yesterday among the members of the Citizens' Municipal league.

Now as a result of this withdrawal on his part, the chances of John A. Kelley and Thomas J. Kenney for an endorsement have taken quite a start among the league officials and members.

The Storrow refusal, it is said, came in answer to a direct question which was put to him as to whether he would stand. One of his prominent admirers was told off for the purpose of settling that point, and he asked Mr. Storrow to take 10 days or more for the consideration of the matter.

Mr. Storrow did not think he needed the time, for he was determined to refuse, but the desire was so pronounced that he should view it from every possible angle that he finally agreed. At the end of 10 days he said that under no conditions could he be considered entering the field.

THE MAN IN THE MOON

We have four iron bridges spanning the Merrimack—three adequate and one inadequate. But I am not going in for a new bridge at Pawtucket falls just now. That proposition can wait awhile longer. It is ever struck you when having occasion to visit these bridges and crossing over the river, the character of the approaches thereto? Now, you can hardly change the approaches on the south side of Pawtucket bridge owing to the permanent buildings of the Locks and Canals Co., nor could you improve greatly the northerly approaches to the Moody street bridge, neither could you do anything to help matters at the westerly end of Central bridge but as you contemplate all other approaches to the several bridges you will find enough to provoke your criticism and plenty of matter to cause you to express some good, strong opinions of a policy which permitted and allowed such a condition of things to exist.

Before the Locks and Canals corporation placed the land owned by it upon the market (so dearly does it love the city of Lowell), the southerly approaches to the Moody street bridge left little to be desired. The then city council could not appreciate the fitness of things and plausibly declined to pay a fancy price. As a result of the action of the Locks & Canals corporation and the lack of action on the part of the common council tenement houses have been erected on the land almost directly adjoining the bridge. At the northerly end of Pawtucket bridge on both sides are hideous conglomerated groups of buildings, a blind corner jutting into Pawtucket "square" at once an eyesore and a source of constant danger. When the new bridge arrives at this point it is to be hoped that up-to-date conditions may prevail and a square be laid out worthy of the times and place.

It is devoutly hoped that tenement houses and other kinds of buildings may be kept a respectable distance from the eastern end of the Alken street bridge. Right here is a spot where a progressive municipal council and an energetic park commission could profit from error of the park and accomplish something worth while for the people of Lowell. Clearly the city should own this land and never temporize with a never-let-go corporation by accepting 10 year leases at $5 a year and taxes. Incidentally, I wish to endorse the position taken by Mr. Greene, the chairman of the park commission, in the sense and takes with relation to the contemplated playgrounds in that section of the city.

There isn't any doubt that the removal of that old wooden building at the east end of Central bridge would greatly improve conditions in that quarter. Let us make a beginning next year. Let us start something along these lines.

Nashua After Dark
You who have hitherto avoided being caught in Nashua after dark will not be so particular now, for you should know that quite a portion of the principal streets of that town is a veritable "White Way." It surely looks fine, and is fine, and the old town presents a really up-to-date appearance.

Another year and Lowell may have a similar illumination, and the powers that be should not overlook many places throughout the city in absolute need of more light while laying plans for a "great white way."

Good Advice Disregarded
The other evening while waiting for a car I overheard a rather tough-looking individual of middle age giving out some very practical advice to a young man of dissipated aspect as to the relative worth of a "street girl" and a "home girl." The tough-looking man "home" had been through the mill and spoke as one having authority and was very positive in his conclusions. His advice was given in a loud voice and was even extemporaneous in quality as he delivered it from the platform of the car bearing him away. I thought his advice good enough if it wasn't excessive. I saw on a rose bush a solitary blossom, veritably the "last rose of summer" left blooming alone, and while crossing a pasture I thought I heard the sweet notes of the song sparrow. The day was a reminder of the summer that has gone, and a promise in some features of the Indian summer days to come. Did you notice the old man that showed himself after the sun went down? She, for the few hours she lingered down upon us, was a fitting retainer of a warm and beautiful day. We saw the beginning of the hunter's moon. Come and hunt the moon by the light of the moon.

When Was a Day so Rare?
Last Sunday was a day of days—and will linger long in the memories of those who enjoyed it. It was a day that old nature gave to us poor earthlings just to show what she can do when she tries. Every one appeared to appreciate it. She served us braising draught, but rather held out to us a warm libation of summer sun and balmy breezes. She took us to the valleys, along the pleasant water courses and to the hill tops. Everywhere we went the woods in red and gold had on the "splendors of apocalypse." We saw on a rose bush a solitary blossom, veritably the "last rose of summer" left blooming alone, and while crossing a pasture I thought I heard the sweet notes of the song sparrow. The day was a reminder of the summer that has gone, and a promise in some features of the Indian summer days to come. Did you notice the old man that showed himself after the sun went down? She, for the few hours she lingered down upon us, was a fitting retainer of a warm and beautiful day. We saw the beginning of the hunter's moon. Come and hunt the moon by the light of the moon.

The Spitting Nuisance
The habitual spitter is an unmitigated nuisance still in our midst. He appears to have no fear of signs threatening $20 dollar fines—indeed, I think he is inclined to defy them. Now, since we could change our climate about as easily as we could swear off our great tobacco habit, why wouldn't it be well to make the signs referred to read $2 instead of $20? The ladies' rooms or parlors.

7. No dance shall continue after 2 o'clock a. m., unless by written permission of the mayor, and not later than 11:45 o'clock p. m. Saturdays.

10. Matrons shall be employed at every public dance and have entire charge of ladies' rooms.

15. By special instructions of the directors of the Musicians' union all orchestras are directed to obey the orders of the representative of the mayor to cease playing, should conditions so justify.
16. Any person defacing or removing these regulations will be prosecuted.
17. These regulations shall be posted in a conspicuous place in the hall.
John P. Fitzgerald, Mayor, October 10, 1913.

Boston's Mayor Makes Regulations for Public Dance Halls

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—The turkey trot, bunny hug, tango, kitchen sink, bear dance and all kindred dances that come under the general designation of "improper" will be excluded from the public dance halls of Boston, beginning right now. Such are the orders of Mayor Fitzgerald, which were yesterday put into the form of regulations by John M. Casey, the licensing clerk.

The Regulations
The regulations number 17 and are particularly commendable for brevity as well as the field covered. Yesterday copies were sent to the managers of all public dance halls, with instructions to see that they were strictly enforced. A failure to do so means a suspension of the license, if not its revocation. The same punishment holds good for violations of the rules.

The regulations follow:
1. Improper dancing will not be tolerated, persons so indulging will be immediately ejected.
2. No moonlight or shadow lighting effects. The hall must remain fully lighted.
3. Smoking permitted only in gentlemen's room, not in hall or corridors.
4. Singing either with or without the use of a megaphone during the time allotted for dancing is prohibited.
5. Announcements of future dances by orchestra leader or other persons, and the distribution of cards, posters or handbills in hall, corridors or stairways advertising future dances are forbidden.
6. Gentlemen must not remain in

BODIES FOUND IN WOODS

Mrs. Nichols, Whose Husband Was Murdered Yesterday, and Hired Man, the Victims

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Oct. 11.—The body of Mrs. Walter Nichols, wife of the man murdered at West Guilford yesterday, was found in the woods a short distance from the Nichols home today. Mrs. Nichols had been shot to death.

The details of the finding of Mrs. Nichols' body have not been received here. The place where the body was found is about a mile north of Brattleboro and in a sparsely settled section.

Nichols, a farmer, about 27 years old, was found yesterday in a road near his home, his skull having been fractured by blows from a hammer which was lying near the body.

Search for Edwin Wrisley, a farm hand employed by Nichols, was begun immediately after the discovery of the body. Mrs. Nichols was missing and the authorities endeavored to find her. On the theory that Mrs. Nichols had been lured to the woods by the same person who killed her husband a search of the woods was made today and resulted in the finding of the woman's body.

A neighbor of Nichols told the officers last night that he saw two men running along the road near where the woman's body was found yesterday and that one of them fell suddenly and did not rise again. Later he heard the sound of two shots fired in the woods.

The body of Wrisley, the farmhand, was later found in the woods about 20 rods from the body of Mrs. Nichols. It had apparently killed himself with the third bullet from a revolver that he was holding in his hand.

Wrisley was 23 years old.

The search for possible struggling swimmers or lifeboats from the Voltorno.

Explosion Adds to Horror

At nine o'clock in the evening when the darkness was at its blackest, flames burst through amidships of the Voltorno from her engine room and coal bunkers. As the fire lit up the sky there came an explosion which sent into the air burning wreckage like a flight of rockets.

The spectacle of the great vessel heeling, consumed by fire, with over 500 souls on board and surrounded by a fleet of huge, lighted boats crowded with thousands of spectators all anxious but unable to help, owing to the mountainous seas, beggars description.

All that could be done by the would-be helpers was to throw overboard from their vessels dozens of lighted lifeboats and stand by in the hope of picking up some of those who had been cast into the sea.

At twenty minutes past nine at night the wireless operator on board the Voltorno had to turn over the connection of his instrument to the receiver battery as the fire had reached the boilers and the engine room and had put the pumps and dynamo out of action.

Cries For Help Heard

A few minutes later cries for help were heard rising from the water near the Carmania and then a man who proved to be a steerage passenger of the Voltorno wearing a lifebelt was located by means of the searchlight a short distance away tossed about by the sea. He was rescued but only after one of the sailors of the Carmania had been lowered into the water with a lifeline which he placed around the waist of the exhausted floating man.

Other cries and screams were heard but gradually died away and no other bodies were seen.

Floating at Daybreak

About midnight a ray of hope came, for it was seen that the flames were not making much headway and that the engine room and the boiler room were still intact.

By daybreak the Voltorno was still floating with her great human cargo huddled in masses on her poop. The sea had moderated considerably and a flotilla of boats gathered around the stern of the Voltorno.

JOHN B. CLANCY

Advices Health Officers to Keep Away From His Mare's Heels

John B. Clancy called at City Solicitor Hennessy's office this forenoon and asked for a copy of the complaint, to which he will make answer in the superior court at Boston next Wednesday morning.

John B. is up against the board of health and the court has been asked to grant an injunction restraining him from maintaining a stable in Floyd street. There has been considerable ado about this stable, in and out of court, and John B. said today that he would fight the issue to the last ditch.

Besides being a man of affairs, John B. is also more or less familiar with the law and legal matters in general. His voice has been heard many times in the superior and inferior courts and chambers, and has been his plea before judge and jury.

When Mr. Hennessy passed Mr. Clancy a copy of the bill of complaint, he asked John B. if he would conduct his own case in court.

"The thing is getting a bit serious, now," quoth John B., "and I think it will be necessary for me to have reinforcements. In the event of being refused assistance by the legal lore of Lowell, I can call upon the attorney-general, and I may do that game."

"Did you hear what I said to Mr. Hennessy?" said John B. to the Sun reporter who happened around when John received a copy of the bill of complaint.

"I got you Steve," said the reporter. "But I didn't mean it," said John. "Sure I'm not asking the attorney-general for anything," continued the owner of the condemned stable in Floyd street, "but I just wanted to let His Majesty, the solicitor, know that I was wise to my rights."

"Now the truth of the matter is that the solicitor and the board of health are dying hard. They set them on the hip and they know it. I have defeated them in practically every court in which they have been up against me. John W. McEvoy is my counsel and he will be on deck Wednesday morning to look after my interests."

"I have a mare that's a bit of a kicker at times and I let her do all the kicking. I take things about as they come, but when I start I never quit. I don't know what the mare thinks about the stable, being condemned, but I would advise the city solicitor and the wise guys on the board of health to keep a respectable distance from her heels."

Miss Sadie McKenna, the piano, while vocal selections were rendered by Miss Nora Haley, Ella Cox, Katie Hurley and Margaret Vermillion. The party broke up at a late hour, each member wishing the bride-to-be long life and happiness. The house was prettily decorated with autumn leaves and foliage. Refreshments were served.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—The transatlantic line was without direct communication concerning the loss of the steamer Voltorno up to 2 a. m. They had received from Rotterdam a list of 16 of the ship's passengers as follows:

The destination of all these was in New York.

Of the 210 passengers bound for Halifax, 210 were adults, 41 children and ten infants. Only one cabin passenger was bound for Halifax. Of the 210 passengers bound for New York, 210 were adults, 23 children and ten infants. The total number of passengers and babies aboard was 241.

No Americans on Voltorno

Only two of the ships which aided in the rescue of the Voltorno's passengers were west-bound. They were the Kroonland of the Cape Star line and the Rappahannock of the Tidewater, Wilbey & Co. The Kroonland left Dover for New York October 5 and ordinarily makes the trip in nine days but because of her stopping on this trip she will be delayed and will not reach shore with the body of the Voltorno's passengers she carries until after Oct. 15.

The Rappahannock, from London, was due at St. John, N. H., about Oct. 15. Under the circumstances her date of arrival will be moved up. She carries 15 of the Voltorno's passengers. The other vessels all east-bound, carrying survivors are due approximately as follows:

Carmania due at Liverpool, Oct. 12; LaTouraine due at Havre, Oct. 12; Minerva due at London, Oct. 13; Car due at Rotterdam, Oct. 14; Narragansett due at London, Oct. 17; Devonian due at Liverpool, Oct. 14; Grosser Kurfurst due at Bremen, Oct. 15.

HUERTA ORDERS ARREST

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 11.—Provisional President Huerta's coup last night, whereby he rid himself in a spectacular manner of the legislative bodies of the government and constituted himself a dictator of the Mexican republic has left the city today in a state of tense expectancy. The dissolution of the national congress was not wholly unexpected in political circles, but it served to demonstrate the lengths to which the executive was prepared to go to maintain his grasp upon the administrative affairs of the nation.

The capital was alive with rumors this morning, one of them being to the effect that three deputies arrested last night who were most active in the matter of precipitating the clash with Gen. Huerta had disappeared. The report was not given much credence. President Huerta before the arrests were made had given the word that none of the deputies would be harmed.

Makes Will and Sues Good Bye

Senator Dominguez, whose attack of the provisional president in the senate was the starting point of the row, has not come to light. He is said to have prepared for eventualities in advance. Having determined upon his line of conduct, he made his will and bade his family and friends good bye, feeling that he expected to pay for his effort with his life. By many the senator is believed to have made his escape from the country.

The dissolution of the national congress was based upon the alleged usurpation by the deputies and senators of the prerogatives of the chief executive in the matter of Senator Dominguez.

Provisional President Huerta declared that the chamber of deputies had constituted itself one of the executive's worst enemies, hostile to all his acts and invading his jurisdiction even to a point of questioning his selection of a minister of state. By its demagogic tendencies, Gen. Huerta said, it had attacked the basis of the existence of the nation and had taken upon itself all branches of the government. He declared his patience with the body had been taxed to the limit. The president referred to the recent refusal of the chamber to grant leave to Deputy Tamarit to occupy the public instruction portfolio on the grounds of his affiliation with the Catholic party. He also referred to the recent investigation instigated by the deputies of certain acts of Jose Limantour.

When he was minister of finance under Gen. Porfirio Diaz.

Gen. Huerta charged that the investigation which the deputies proposed to make was solely within the province of the judicial power. He called on them to withdraw the resolution warning him of their intention to dissolve the parliament and hold sessions elsewhere.

The deputies, who had suddenly listened to the reading by Manuel Garcia Aldape, the minister of the interior, of Gen. Huerta's reply, moved at its conclusion to refer the president's demand to a committee, and a motion was put to adjourn.

Called the Police

Minister Aldape interposed an objection, saying that the president required immediate action. At this the deputies demurred and persisted in putting the motion to adjourn. Thereupon the minister of the interior signalled to Chief of Police Chavez, who was stationed on the balcony. The chief of police came down to the floor of the chamber with 200 police. Senor Aldape then read the names of the signers of the resolution and as the names were called the deputies were taken into custody.

Among the deputies placed under arrest are Rufino Reyes, a son of the late Gen. Bernardo Reyes, ex-provisional minister of justice, and Jorge Vera Estanislao, former provisional minister of public instruction. Nearly all the men imprisoned are members of the liberal party.

GREAT ANXIETY IN WASHINGTON

OVER REPORTS FROM MEXICO

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—Huerta's arrest of 110 members of the Mexican congress followed by the prorogation of both houses of that body put administration officials here in a state of anxiety. No one attempts to disguise the view that the developments of the last 24 hours in Mexico City have precipitated what probably is the most serious situation since Huerta took office. Huerta's action in suspending the sessions of congress is regarded merely as preliminary to a declaration of martial law which will make almost unlimited his power over the capital.

At the White House it was stated that President Wilson was studying the situation carefully but was not ready to announce the next step in the American policy.

Dr. Kent, the School Dentist, Expects Rush of Children

The School Visitors Will Now Examine Children's Teeth

The dental clinic, located in the Worthen street school has been a busy spot for the past two weeks and nearly a hundred children from different sections of the city have been offered the opportunity of having their teeth treated at the expense of the city.

The work is done by Dr. E. A. Kent and between ten and fourteen children ranging from 10 to 15 years of age are treated there daily. The clinic is open from 9 to 12 o'clock every morning, with the exception of Saturday and Sunday, and Dr. Kent is prepared to take care of any dental work that may come in. It is believed that after the work has

Many Attractive Structures in Process of Construction

Local contractors are complaining that there is very little doing in Lowell in the line of new buildings, but nevertheless most of the men are kept busy on repairs of old descriptions.

Contractor Charles A. Morton is constructing an eight-room house, two stories and a half with pantry and bath and all modern conveniences for Mrs. B. T. Rowell, in Methuen street. The house will be of Colonial style and will cost about $3000.

John W. Dwyer is having a fine two-apartment house built at the corner of Waverly avenue and Park avenue east. Each apartment will contain seven rooms with pantry and bath and a steam heat, as well as hardwood floors. Contractor Charles Varnum is in charge of the construction and his men are now finishing the interior. Mr. Dwyer will occupy one of the flats.

Contractor James Whitte was awarded the contract for the repainting of the Harvard Brewing Co.'s stable in Payne street, which was gutted by fire some time ago, and his men are busy reconstructing the building, the cost of which will be about $1000. Mr. Whitte has also considerable other repair work on hand.

William H. Penn is building an eight-room cottage for James Norton in Chelmsford street and another for William Golding in Canton street. Both houses will be of the most modern type.

Arthur C. Spalding is having a two-story brick residence constructed in Holmwood avenue, the work being done by Contractor Percy Varnum. This same party is also changing a cottage house into a two-apartment house in Loring street for John Swatt.

The Burton H. Wiggin Co. is building a $35,000 brick residence for Harris H. Richmond in Winchester, as well as a boiler house for the Wilmington Fears Co. in North Woburn.

MRS. WALKER ELECTED

LAWRENCE, Oct. 11.—Miss Phoebe A. Walker of this city has been elected to teach in the Lowell Normal Training school at South Tewksbury. She is a graduate of the local high school in 1909 and of the Lowell Normal school in 1911. She has had three years' experience in rural school work in Londonderry, N. H., and comes well recommended to her new work.

Miss Walker is one of the well known members of the younger set and has the best wishes of success from her host of friends.

The many friends of Miss Cora A. Phaneuf of Salem street will be pained to learn she is confined to her home with a severe illness. The young woman left Lowell a few days ago for Montreal, Que., where she was to attend the annual reunion of the Phaneuf family. Upon her arrival in the Canadian metropolis she was stricken with a severe illness, and removed to the Cawara hotel, where she was confined a couple of days. Finally when it was seen she was not making any progress, she was removed to Lowell.

GIANTS IN LAST DITCH

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—It was under far different circumstances than those that prevailed on the occasion of their last previous meeting here that the Giants and Athletics prepared today to play the fifth game of the 1915 world's series. The count in games won and lost was even and it was a toss-up as to which would prove the ultimate victor. Today the Mackmen needed but this single game to assure them of the world's laurels in baseball while for the Giants it was a last-ditch stand.

It was with confidence that the Philadelphia this morning set about preparations for the fray of the day, but not their adherents declared, with an over-confidence that would make them play carelessly. The spirited rally of McGraw's men in yesterday's game at Philadelphia when apparently overwhelmingly beaten they had landed on Chief Bender and pounded out enough runs to make the issue doubtful up to the last moment, had taught the Athletics thorough respect for their opponents' gameness and power of recuperation.

Giants Still Confident
Fandom prepared to make the most of its chance—possibly its last chance this year—to see the champions of the big leagues in action should the weather permit a game. Encouraged by the brilliant stand of the National league standard bearers toward the close of the struggle in Philadelphia, the hope existed among the supporters of McGraw's men that the series might be pulled out to the fifth.

It was recalled that last year after the Boston Red Sox had tucked away three games of the series to the Giants one, the latter had rallied and taken the next two, forcing the series to go the limit and only losing the deciding contest by reason of Snodgrass' fatal miff that permitted the winning Boston run to be tallied in the tenth inning. Visions of this acted as a spur to the throngs of local fans whose descent upon the grounds was on in considerable force long before the gates were opened, even though a misty rain was falling.

The Pitchers
Whether the game of the day would turn out to be another battle royal between the veteran pitchers of the two teams, Mathewson and Plank, was a secret that the morning failed to reveal, for while it was a practical certainty that McGraw would select the "old master" to do the twirling for the Giants there was no telling before the game time who Mack would assign to the hurling mound. Shawkey was regarded as a likely selection should Plank be kept out of it, although Carroll Brown has been longed for a chance to pitch in one of the games of the series. Bush, the young hero of Thursday's game here, is being held for Monday should the series carry that far. It is understood, however, that he is not expected to start in the game again as that player's lameness prevents him getting under amazes that otherwise would be easy.

Merkle, however, although still far from fit was looked for at his accustomed corner as his hitting is badly missed when he is out of the lineup.

DELMONT WON ON THE ALLEYS

Easily Defeated McGovern—Morgan and Lennay in Fast Bout

At Delmont had an easy time with Phil McGovern in the main bout at the Lowell A. C. Delmont simply toyed with his Brooklyn opponent. McGovern's seconds tossed the sponge into the ring in the fifth stanza, of what was billed as a twelve round bout after their man had received terrible punishment from Delmont's fast two hand punching.

In the opening round Delmont started at McGovern like a hurricane and only a few seconds elapsed before McGovern fell to the canvas in a dazed condition. It was plain to be seen that he was not the same McGovern who has fought here on previous occasions.

In the fifth round, after wandering around the ring up to that time, McGovern went down three times. The men in his corner finally took compassion upon him and threw the sponge into the ring. McGovern only landed two clean punches during the entire fight.

The semi final with Gus Lennay of Boston and Young Morgan as opponents proved a rare boxing treat. Both men showed great cleverness although Lennay outpointed his man in all but two of the eight rounds. The first round and also the fifth were even but Lennay went to the front in the remaining six sessions.

In the sixth, seventh and eighth rounds Lennay had Morgan holding on. The Boston boxer forced the fighting all the way and started the blood from Morgan's nose in the sixth. In the last two rounds body punches and jabs on his bleeding nose had Morgan tired.

The affair was called a draw. The two preliminary bouts were flashing affairs. Young Rivet and Kid Hamilton put up a great battle for six rounds. Hamilton has been seen often but Rivet is a recent entrant into the ring game. Hamilton is short and stocky while Rivet is just his opposite in stature. This bout was declared a draw.

In the other preliminary Willie Jones and Young Tibbets met in a good draw. Both boys started in fast and worked themselves out trying to put over a haymaker. Nothing happened, seemed to know what his left hand was for but made up for this with his right hand swings. It was a good draw and was hugely enjoyed by the spectators.

Trautman, Yates, Bedard and Shaheen Ordered to Turn Over Fund Raised During Strike

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—Judge Loring of the supreme court today found Joseph Bedard, William Yates, William Trautman and Joseph Shaheen jointly and severally liable as trustees for $15,379 of funds for relief purposes during the Lawrence textile strike in the winter of 1912 and which amount they failed to account for.

They are ordered to pay this sum to John P. Cronin, clerk of the court, to await further orders. Yates is ordered to pay an additional sum of $350 for which he alone was found to be responsible.

Denance was weighed in the balance and found wanting. It was hard on him, though, to have those slips made behind for undoubtedly they upset the recruit twirler. If the Giants played errorless ball behind Denance the result might have been much different.

WEAK STOCK MARKET

SLUMP IN THE CON. CHES. & OHIO—TIME LOANS STRONG—BOSTON MARKET ACTIVE

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Little strength was manifested when the market opened for today's short session. Con. Ches. & Ohio and Louisville dropped fractions. The weakness became so pronounced that supporting orders were distributed and the fall was checked. A fractional rally followed.

The market closed weak. Evidence that influential support was being withheld pending the clearing up of various uncertainties of the present situation encouraged the bears to make a concerted attack, which was more successful and of broader scope than any other since the downward movement took shape. Reports from Washington that the administration had press anti-trust measures while they appeared to be entirely conjectural, were utilized effectively by the bears. Filing of the suit to divorce Southern Pacific and Central Pacific was another influence in the same direction. Insufficiency of the buying power was demonstrated when stocks were pressed for sale in quantity. All activity was on the selling side and speculation became torpid on rallies. Execution of stop orders accelerated the decline, which ran from one to two points and registered the lowest level of the week.

Bonds were heavy.

FOOTBALL GAME

Rindge's Manuel Training School First to Score This Afternoon

The Scotch mist, so called, interfered with the attendance at the football game at Spaulding park this afternoon between the Lowell High school and Rindge's Manual training school teams. There was no scoring in the first period but the visitors succeeded in scoring in the second period on line plunges.

The ball was brought down to the 25 yard line on old-fashioned foot ball and steady line plunging put the ball over the goal on the visitors' fourth down for the distance. Up to the time of going to press, however, Lowell had not scored.

That was the declaration with which Second Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty last night accompanied the announcement that four other men had been arrested in New York as members of a gang in which "Schmitt" and "The Chicken" have committed their membership and of whose operations they have told in great detail to Commissioner Dougherty and Assistant District Attorney Manley and Prosecutor Wright and County Detective Blauvelt of Hackensack.

LOCKS & CANALS

For Land Wanted for Playground—Deed Must Not Interfere With Water Power Development

The price set upon the land owned by the Locks & Canals and wanted for park and playgrounds purposes in West Centralville, is $33,000. This information is contained in a letter received by Commissioner Cummings from Engineer Hiram F. Mills of the Locks & Canals Co. The matter will be taken up at the regular meeting of the municipal council to be held next Tuesday forenoon. The letter:

October 10, 1913.
Alderman Lawrence Cummings,
Commissioner of Public Property,
Lowell, Mass.

Dear Sir:
You desired that I should give you, within ten days, a price for land in West Centralville, west from Alken street.

As we have no meeting of directors until the last Friday in the month, I will say that I think all of the land owned by the proprietors of the Locks & Canals, situated between Alken street and Beaver brook and between the northerly boundary line of the bed and channel of the Merrimack river, as established by agreement between said proprietors, said city and sundry corporations dated Oct. 30, 1882, and Lakeview avenue, excepting four small lots on Alken street containing 13,640 square feet, which are leased or are under negotiations, containing in all about 22.81 acres, may be bought at the present time for thirty-three thousand ($33,000) dollars.

Of course I should make the deed so that the sale would not interfere with the use of future development of the water power of the river.

Respectfully yours,
Hiram F. Mills,
Engineer, P. L. & C.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—A new plan prepared by the English Amateur Athletic association for the development of English athletics for the Olympic games at Berlin in 1936 has attracted favorable comment both at home and abroad. It is proposed to create interest and enthusiasm in track and field sports in all grades of competitors from the school boy to the club athlete. A systematic series of championship games at standard metric distances is planned, beginning with public school championships and continuing through every classification of English athletics up to the national championships.

The program includes: Public school championships—Under the approval and cooperation of the head masters, and a committee from the schools to accept entries and to manage the meeting. County championships—To take place in counties where they do not at present exist at metric distances. Triangular Olympic Contests—Triangular contests between England, Scotland and Ireland at metric distances. Olympic Field Events

Interesting Hearing at City Hall by Immigration Commission—Many Startling Statements

The commission on immigration, created by the last legislature, came to Lowell last night and gave a hearing in the council chamber at city hall. The commission has given similar hearings in different cities throughout the state and the real purpose of the investigation is for the enactment of such laws as will bring non-English speaking foreigners into sympathetic relations with American institutions and customs.

There were about 60 people present at last night's meeting and while suggestions having to do with improvements of conditions were few and far between the hearing was a very interesting one. The commission members asked some very deep-rooted questions and in each and every instance asked for suggestions. Some of the answers received rather surprised the commission.

William F. Thornton, attendance or truancy officer, in reply to a question by the chairman of the commission said right plump and plain that the evening schools did not do very much for the average foreigner because of the fact that the foreigner was an unwilling student, attending the evening school, not because he wanted to but because he had to. Mr. Thornton said, too, that the foreigner who succeeded in corraling a few words of English fell back into the use of his native tongue during the summer vacation and lost what little knowledge he had acquired of English.

Hugh J. Molloy, superintendent of schools, said that unless some impetus locally was obtainable the problem was a rather difficult one to overcome. He said it could not be corrected from the outside, that it would be necessary to enlist the support and sympathy of the

The report shows the distribution of department expenses, but the names and amounts are not shown for the reason that they have been printed monthly in the financial report. The report gives the different fund accounts and other general information. The book, or report, contains Mayor James E. The report will be a handy thing to have at hand for future reference.

HOLD BURGLAR

Attempted to Rob Post Office Inspector Robinson's Home in Lawrence Was Scared Away

LAWRENCE, Oct. 11.—The home of Post Office Inspector Harry Robinson, who is busy at present investigating the case of the yeggmen who attempted to "blow" the safe at Salisbury post office, was broken into at 34 Sheridan street late last night, but before the lone burglar could gather together any booty he was frightened away by the appearance of Inspector Robinson himself.

The burglar had made his entrance through a window at the rear of the house and was making preparations for a haul when the noise he was making aroused Inspector Robinson who was sleeping in a bedroom upstairs.

Inspector Robinson ran down stairs and then toward the rear of the house. He was just in time to catch a glimpse of a young man, about five feet, seven inches, wearing a gray suit and a black slouch hat, disappearing through a window at the rear.

Inspector Robinson notified the police by telephone. He says that he will be able to identify his midnight visitor if he sees him again.

New York Judge Lashes Man for Drinking During Trial

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Judge Swann, in general sessions, accused a juror in a case on trial before him of drinking too heavily during the progress of the trial. The jury was out for several hours before it brought in a verdict of guilty, convicting Joseph Gratz and Joseph Breslin of a serious charge brought against them by a woman. The jury recommended them to the mercy of the court.

Before discharging the jurors Judge Swann turned to them and accused one of their number of being addicted to drink.

"It has appeared to many of us," he said, "that you have been under the influence of liquor during the progress of this trial. What do you say?" "I do not deny that I drink," said the juror, "but I deny that I was under the influence of liquor."

"I am informed," said Judge Swann, "that you were obviously affected by liquor—that you seemed to have been feeling your drink."

"I haven't had more than two or three drinks since I have been sitting in this case," answered the juror, indignantly.

"I don't like to misjudge you—" began Judge Swann.

"It may be from prejudice that I am so accused," retorted the juror.

Judge Swann called upon the rest of the jurors to express an opinion as to whether their companion had been drinking during the trial. Most of them agreed that they thought his estimate rather modest. One of them said that one reason the verdict was so long delayed was that the offending juror had refused to consider a verdict of guilty unless he were assured that the other jurors would concur with him in recommending a light sentence.

There was a brief pause after the last juror had voiced his opinion and counsel for the two prisoners moved that a mistrial be declared, as it was evident that the court thought that one of the jurors to have been incompetent. That brought more wrath down upon the head of the belligerent juror.

BLUE RIBBON CAMPERS

The Blue Ribbon campers gave a banquet last Thursday night to their lady friends who assisted them in making their last social and dance such a great success. The event took place at the home of Treasurer Joseph A. McNulty, 19 Court street and the dining room was beautifully decorated with streamers of blue ribbon. Mr. Joseph A. McNulty was the toastmaster of the evening and after the turkey and other good things had been disposed of there were remarks by the different members of the club. Secretary John T. Tully made a neat little speech and he was followed by Messrs. John and William Murray and President Guy E. Hazeltine. An excellent entertainment was then given that included: Piano solos by Miss Mary Ready, May M. Crowell and Miss Hannah O'Brien; songs, Miss Mary McHugh, Nellie Gargan and Miss May Flynn; monologues, Edward L. McNulty; quartet selections, Messrs. Guy Hazeltine, John Tully, William and John Murray; duet, "You Made Me Love You," Miss Gertrude Ward and William Murray. The banquet was a grand success and the girls warmly congratulated and thanked the Blue Ribbons for the enjoyable evening.

Doing Their nefarious Work in Hudson—Electrical Apparatus to Catch Them

NASHUA, Oct. 11.—The hen thieves who made a clean up a few weeks ago of the poultry crops of W. S. Stetson on the Lowell road have moved their operations to Hudson. They made a raid on the crops of Robert Groves, below the five cent limit and stole 30 of his nice birds.

Farmers along the road are putting in electric connections with their hen houses, which will give a signal if an attempt is made to enter. Other plans are to be used to catch the thieves, who annually it seems at this time of the year raid coops in surrounding suburbs.

This is the demand of the state and the expense will be paid by the state. The discussion of the school work at this meeting was most interesting."

people on the inside who lay claim to being public spirited. Mr. Molloy was very firm in the belief that part time education would go a great way toward relieving the situation. He said he was asking a great deal of the boy and girl to work all day and go to school at night. He said it saved too much of burning the candle at both ends.

Dr. Lambert, chairman of the school board, thought that the part time scheme was a very good one and he gave the commission something about it when he stated that he did not believe the mill men, the employers, were in full sympathy with the new miners' law. In a hop, step and jump covering the employment of mill help in Lowell, Dr. Lambert made the statement that the Irish drove the Yankees from the mills, that the French, in turn, drove the Irish out and the Greeks, in turn, drove the French out.

the Greeks who work in the mills, Dr. Lambert, in reply to questions by the chairman said that a great many of the Greek men took their meals in the Greek coffee houses, but no sooner had he made this statement than the Greek men in the other end of the room hollered: "No! No!"

Superintendent Molloy

Bernard J. Rothwell, chairman of the school board, called the meeting at 7.15 and the latter called the evening elementary schools will open next Tuesday and that these schools will appeal mostly to those people who are illiterate in English. Many Greek, Armenian, Poles and other foreigners will attend these schools. Separate classes for the different nationalities will be maintained. The chairman wanted to know if primary ethics, hygiene, sanitation and city ordinances could be taught these pupils. Mr. Molloy believed it would be well to teach something about local ordinances.

"Is the school board trying to reach any of the adults?" asked the chairman.

"I don't think anything has been done in that line."

"Does the idea commend itself to you?"

"Not unless it could be taken with the idea of teaching those adults exclusively, apart from the teaching of minors."

The chairman said in some places the idea of visiting these adults in their homes and instructing them along certain lines, is advanced.

Mr. Molloy believed it a good, but hardly a feasible plan.

In Lowell, as elsewhere, are a very considerable number who neglect or refuse to avail themselves of the opportunity offered."

"Could these adults who do not speak English be compelled to learn the language? If they refuse, would you let the matter pass by, or would you take means to compel them to learn?"

"I don't think I can answer that question."

"Do you think the age limit should be advanced for illiterates?"

"It would depend somewhat upon their accomplishments in their native tongue."

Chairman Rothwell said he believed the commission felt the same way about it.

Mr. Spaulding asked: "Has everything possible been done to assimilate the non-English speaking foreigners and are they being as rapidly assimilated as would be expected?"

"I feel that everything within reason is being done, but I do not know how long it takes on an average to bring about assimilation."

"Have you thought of any other possible means of educating the foreigner, between 18 and 21 years of age, aside from the evening school?"

"I am willing to go on record as saying that part time education will do much in many cases. I feel that with many minors the full day of labor, without the evening school, is too much. From the student's economic point of view it means the burning of the candle at both ends. Part time means far better education, and it also cuts down the hours of that which is going to sap the strength of the citizens of the future. We should give to those, so far as able who are well."

Mr. O'Brien, another member of the committee, asked what percentage of the evening teaching force are day teachers. Mr. Molloy said a very small percentage of them.

"In many cases," said Mr. O'Brien, "most of the teachers in the evening schools are day teachers."

"Could you get a more efficient force if you paid them double what they are receiving now?" asked Mr. Rothwell.

"I doubt it," replied Mr. Molloy.

Dr. John H. Lambert

Dr. Lambert, chairman of the school committee, said the attendance of foreigners at the evening schools dropped perceptibly around the first of the year in the holidays. Accordingly, the school committee gave them as much schooling as possible before the holiday arrived.

In reply to a question by the chairman Dr. Lambert said he thought there was a lack of co-operation on the part of employers with relation to the new minors' law. He said that the way the law is now working shows a slip somewhere.

"What in your judgment brought 10,000 non-English speaking foreigners to Lowell?"

"The industries, the mills,"

"Who induced those 45,000 to come here?"

"I don't know. The Irish came, and then the French, and the Greeks have come in."

In reply to questions by Mr. Spaulding of the committee relative to the parochial schools, Dr. Lambert said that the parochial schools had never been formally approved by the school committee. He said he hoped before the year is over to see the parochial schools approved or disapproved.

Dr. Lambert said he had asked the superintendent to make inquiries relative to the standing of the parochial school to ascertain if the standard was in keeping with the public schools. He said that this information had not yet been supplied by the superintendent.

William F. Thornton

Head Attendance Officer Thornton said that under the present law minors are compelled to go to school whether they work or not. He did not favor extending the age limit and he said that he did not agree with certain statements made by the chairman of the school board. He said that the law had been very vague up to the present time, but that there had been no laxity in the enforcement of the law.

Mr. Thornton said that a majority of the foreigners who attend the evening schools learn little of the English language because they are obliged to go to school. He said they speak of speaking or trying to speak the English language when they can speak their own tongue.

"That is a very severe arraignment of your own system," said Mr. O'Brien, and the chairman said Mr. Thornton's statement was entirely out of line with any statement that commission had heard thus far. He said that in some cities they guarantee to familiarize the foreigners with the English language in four years.

"Your evening schools must be below par if what you say is true," said Mr. Rothwell.

In reply to a question by one of the commission members Mr. Thornton said he found a hearty co-operation on the part of the employers of minors and the school authorities.

Commissioner Cummings

Com. Cummings asked Mr. Thornton a few questions and told the commission that he did not agree with many of Mr. Thornton's statements. Mr. Cummings told of his experience on the school board. Mr. Cummings said that some time in the past the school board had formally approved the parochial schools.

Rev. Alexander Ogonski

Rev. Alexander Ogonski, pastor of Holy Trinity Polish church, said there are about 4000 Poles in Lowell, more males than females and about 1200 are children. He said the great desire of a majority of his people is to save enough money to buy a little land. They are much better off in the country, he said, than in the city where there are so many saloons.

Wife of Missionary

Mrs. Viates, wife of a Greek Protestant missionary, asked how many pupils are allotted to each teacher in the evening schools.

Dr. Lambert said usually 18 or 20, although sometimes there are as few as 12.

Mrs. Viates, who was introduced by Rev. Mr. Ferrin of the High Street Congregational church, was asked several questions relative to the local Greeks and it was very evident that some of the Greeks present did not think she was in a position to know much about the conditions surrounding the Greeks in this city.

"I ask if her knowledge is not too limited and biased because of religious tendencies?" asked a young Greek, but his question went unanswered.

Others called upon by the chairman of the commission included Agent of the board of health, Mr. Bates answered numerous questions and said that housing conditions are much better in Lowell today than they were a few years ago.

Other speakers at the hearing included Supt. Welch, of the police department, Mrs. Upton of the Y. M. C. A. and Mr. Yarnell of the Y. M. C. A. The hearing lasted until about 1.30 o'clock this morning.

The commission was very much interested in what Supt. Welch had to say and he offered some suggestions that the commission allowed were very good. The superintendent also spoke a good word for the Greek population of Lowell. He said that the Greeks are a law abiding people and that Lowell has more Greeks than any other city in the country except Chicago. "About one of the serious trouble that we have ever experienced in the local Greek colony," said Mr. Welch, "was due to the carrying out of the winding up of some old feud, or else the meeting out of a punishment accepted as law in the home country. The Greeks of Lowell are a law abiding, Christian people and I take exception to a statement made here tonight to the effect that Lowell's foreign population is a menace to the city. There is less crime in this city today, according to the population, than twenty years ago. Lowell is improving in every way. I want to say also that in the carrying out of any law, I have never seen the heartiest cooperation on the part of employers."

Mr. Welch advocated compulsory education and believed there should be no age limit. He said that every foreigner should be obliged to learn to speak, write and understand the English language, and when asked what he would suggest as a means to bring that about, Mr. Welch said that a jail sentence, or a law abiding, Christian people and I take exception to a statement made here tonight to the effect that Lowell's foreign population is a menace to the city. POLO GROUNDS, New York, Oct. 11.—The Giants stood in their last line of entrenchments today and with their big gun, Christy Mathewson, wheeled into the breach faced the attack of the Athletics, who need but one more victorious charge to make them world champions of 1914. With all his pitching artillery shattered by the Athletics' cannonading, Manager McGraw was forced to send his pitching star to the firing line with only two days' rest. The National league champions have won only one game in the series.

Thirty-five, thousand or more persons, undismayed by the herculean task of the Giants in holding in check the Mackmen, came out to the Polo grounds to view the battle. The gloomy weather kept the Philadelphia crowd down to a small number but those few sat behind the Athletics bench and never missed an opportunity to cheer their team.

With heavy clouds drifting in from seaward there was a constant fear that rain would end the struggle. Canvases were protected the inner playing field from the night's downpour and the groundskeepers had the diamond in shape for smart fielding play.

Ira Thomas Talks

"We may give you a chance to look over two new pitchers today," said Ira Thomas, the Athletics big catcher. "There are Brown and Shawkey who have yet to show their pitching wares. Either one will give Matty a run and we can use Plank if necessary."

Manager McGraw had little to say but the little showed that the little New York leader was still struggling hard to stem the tide against his club. "We'll be in there fighting until they drag us or the other fellows out," he remarked.

Fletcher's Fine Was $100

Instead of being fined $50 as reported yesterday at Philadelphia, Arthur Fletcher, shortstop of the Giants was fined $100 by the national commission for having addressed insulting remarks to Umpire Connolly at the conclusion of Thursday's game at the Polo grounds because Connolly had called Schaefer out on a close play at second.

Giants Out Early

The Giants were the first on the field for a long batting practice. McGraw had told them in the clubhouse that if they expected to make a stand today they would have to give Mathewson support with their clubs.

Fromm served up the ball to the Giants in batting practice and Lord were the cheers when Doyle, Merkle and McLean sent long drives down toward the centerfield fence. McGraw and Mathewson were the last to come on the field.

The Athletics marched across the field in a body and began to warm up on the side lines by tossing the ball back and forth to each other.

One o'clock found nearly every seat in the unserved stands and bleachers occupied and the crowd was still jamming through the turnstiles at the entrances.

The batteries for today's game will be:

York; Plank and Schang for Philadelphia.

Philadelphia
E. Murphy, rf
Oldring, lf
Collins, 2b
Baker, 3b
McInnis, 1b
Strunk, c
Barry, ss
Schang, p
Plank, p

New York
Doyle, 2b
Herzog, 3b
Fletcher, ss
McInnis, 1b
Strunk, c
Barry, rf
Murray, lf
McLean, p

First Inning

The crowd gave a cheer when Mathewson walked out to the batting hill. Murphy singled on the first ball pitched; Fletcher being barely able to reach it with his ungloved hand. Murphy forced at second when Matty took Oldring's bunt and tossed to Fletcher. "Big Six" made a clever play on the ball. Collins shut a single out to right. Oldring easily making third.

Oldring scored when Burns caught Baker's sacrifice fly. Burns made a wild throw to the plate, the ball going over McLean's head. Collins went to second on the wild throw. Herzog took McInnis' splash and threw to Doyle, who touched out Collins. One run; two hits; one error.

Plank's first pitch was a ball, knee high. After two balls and two strikes had been called, Plank and Collins had a conference in the pitchers' box. Herzog out on a fly to Murphy.

As if trying to conserve all his energy, the veteran Philadelphia, who is 35 years old, worked very slowly. Doyle out, Barry to McInnis on a lightning fielding play in which Barry took the ball on the run behind the pitcher's box. It was gilt-edged fielding on the part of Barry. Fletcher went out on a long fly which Rube Oldring took up near the fence. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Second Inning

Doyle tossed out Strunk at first. Mathewson's big looping drop curve was in fine working order. Barry out on a high fly to Murray. Schang faced Mathewson for the first time in the series. The crowd was all impatient to see how the hard-throwing Athletic catcher would fare at the hands of "Big Six." Schang got an infield single which bounded off Matty's glove. Plank popped out to Herzog. No runs; one hit; no errors.

McGraw made a complaint to Umpire Connolly that Plank was shifting his feet from the slab while making his delivery. The umpire disallowed the claim. Baker threw out Burns at first. Schaefer fouled out to McInnis, who caught the ball leaning way over the boxes of the grandstand. Murray was thrown out by Plank at first. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Third Inning

Murphy got his second single to left the ball going like a rocket between Fletcher and Herzog. Doyle made an error on Oldring's sizzling grounder. Murphy going to second. Collins out when Merkle took his sacrifice bunt and touched him on the line. Both runners moved up. Murphy scored when Merkle took Baker's smash and threw to the plate. It was a Cincinnati base hit for Baker. Oldring went to third. Oldring scored on McInnis' sacrifice fly to Burns. Baker was hit at first. Doyle threw out Strunk at first. Two runs; two hits; one error.

McLean sent up a high fly to Oldring.

Fourth Inning

Fletcher threw out Barry. Murray took Schang's short fly after a hard run. Fletcher caught Plank's fly back of second base. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Herzog went out on three straight strikes. Plank wore the corners of the plate to a nicely and had a fine change of pace that kept the Giant batters at their wits' ends to fathom Doyle out to McInnis, unassisted. Fletcher fired out to Strunk. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Fifth Inning

Doyle threw out Murphy at first. Doyle also took care of Oldring's grounder and had him an easy out at first. Collins out on a fly to Schaefer. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Mathewson pitched but seven balls to retire the Athletics in their half of the fifth inning. Burns lined to McInnis. It was a terrific smash but McInnis only had to make a step to nail it. Schaefer walked. He was the first Giant to reach first base in the game. Schang almost caught Schaefer napping at first with a quick throw. Plank dropped Murray's pop fly and Schaefer went to second. It was a bad error for Plank had an easy double play in sight. Schaefer scored on McLean's single to left. Murray being held at second. A double play ended the inning. Collins took Matty's grounder and threw to Barry facing McLean at second. Barry then completed the double by throwing Merkle out at first. One run; one hit; one error.

Sixth Inning

Baker singled to right field. McLean threw out McInnis. It was a sacrifice bunt. Doyle threw out Strunk. Baker going to third. Fletcher threw out Barry at first. Fletcher made a bad throw and Merkle a beautiful stop. No runs; one hit; no errors.

Mathewson singled to right. A double play quickly followed when Barry took Herzog's sizzling grounder and tossed to Collins, forcing Matty. Collins then threw out Herzog. Doyle hit on a hot liner which Murphy picked off the concrete wall. No runs; one hit; no errors.

Seventh Inning

Schang struck out. Doyle threw out Plank, who made no attempt to run to first. Murphy walked. Oldring fouled out to McLean. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Fletcher filed out to Strunk. Barry threw out Burns at first. Schaefer out by the Barry-McInnis route. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Eighth Inning

Doyle tossed Collins out at first. Matty threw out Baker. Fletcher threw out McInnis at first. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Ninth Inning

Strunk out on a fly to Schaefer. Herzog threw out Barry. Schang struck out.

Grandall batted for Mathewson. Grandall out. Collins to McInnis. Herzog out on a fly to Barry. Doyle filed to Murphy.

For Land Wanted for Playground —Deed Must Not Interfere With Water Power Development

The price set upon the land owned by the Locks & Canals and wanted for park and playground purposes in West Centralville, is $33,000. This information is contained in a letter received by Commissioner Cummings from Engineer Hiram F. Mills of the Locks & Canals Co. The matter will be taken up at the regular meeting of the municipal council to be held next Tuesday forenoon. The letter:

October 10, 1913.
Commissioner of Public Property,
Lowell, Mass.

Dear Sir:
You desired that I should give you, within ten days, a price for land in West Centralville, west from Allen street.

As we have no meeting of directors until the last Friday in the month, I will say that I think all of the land owned by the proprietors of the Locks & Canals, situated between Allen street and Beaver brook and between the northerly boundary line of the bed and channel of the Merrimack river, as established by agreement between said proprietors, said city and sundry corporations dated Oct. 30, 1882, and Lakeview avenue, extending four small lots on Allen street containing 13.54 square feet, which are leased or are under negotiations, containing in all about 2.57 acres, may be bought at the present time for thirty-three thousand ($33,000) dollars.

Of course I should make the deed so that the sale would not interfere with the use of future development of the water power of the river.

Respectfully yours,
Hiram F. Mills,
Engineer, P. L. & C.

SLUMP IN THE CON., CHES. & OHIO—TIME LOANS STRONG— BOSTON MARKET ACTIVE

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Little strength was manifested when the market opened for today's short session. Con., Ches. & Ohio and Louisville dropped fractions. The weakness, became pronounced that supporting orders were distributed and the fall was checked. A fractional rally followed.

The market closed weak.

Evidence that influential support was being withheld pending the clearing up of various uncertainties of the present situation, encouraged the bears to make a concerted attack, which was more successful and of broader scope than any other since the downward movement took shape. Reports from Washington that the administration had press anti-trust measures while they appeared to be entirely conjectural, were utilized effectively by the bears. Filing of the suit to divorce Southern Pacific and Central Pacific was another influence in the same direction. Insufficiency of the buying power was demonstrated when stocks were pressed for sale in quantity. All activity was on the selling side and speculation became torpid on rallies. Execution of stop orders accelerated the decline, which ran from one to two points and registered the lowest level of the week.

Bonds were heavy.

ADMIT 80 EXPLOSIONS

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—When Alfred Lehman, alias Eddie Schmidt, alias "Schmitt," and John Rizzo, alias "The Chicken," were arrested at Lyndhurst, N. J., Sept. 23, on a charge of setting off a bomb in the clothing factory of Klee & Co., the way was paved for clearing up at least 80 of the 167 bomb explosions and bomb plantings in New York city between Jan. 1 and Sept. 2.

That was the declaration with which Second Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty last night accompanied the announcement that four other men had been arrested in New York as members of a gang in which "Schmitt" and "The Chicken" have confessed their membership and of whose operations they have told in great detail to Commissioner Dougherty and Assistant District Attorney Manley and Prosecutor Wright and County Detective Chauvel of Hackensack.

UNDESIRABLE CHARACTER

The prisoner was charged with drunkenness found guilty, fined $3 on condition that he leave town at once. The fine was paid and O'Neil soon after "shook the dust of the town from his feet" and left.

Volturmo, Packed With Immigrants, Burns in Gale—Ten Steamers Answer Wireless Appeals

FISGUARD, England, Oct. 11.—Fire in a raging storm in mid-Atlantic on Thursday destroyed the liner Volturmo on her voyage from Rotterdam to New York, and, according to wireless reports, caused the death by burning or drowning of at least 136 and possibly 236 of her passengers and crew, while ten other liners called by wireless to the rescue were standing by in vain to avert the tragedy.

The liner was playing a leading part in the drama and by its means and the heroism of the succorers who responded to the call, the lives of 521 of those on board the Volturmo were saved. The Volturmo was owned by the Canadian Northern S. S. Co., but had been chartered to the Uranium line. Officials of the latter company declared this morning that those on board comprised 24 cabin and 340 steerage passengers with a crew of 93, making a total of 457.

The wireless dispatch received from the Carmania said that 321 had been saved and 236 lost, their lives which makes a total of 557 or just 100 more than the number given by the company.

Checking from all available sources would indicate that an error in the wireless transmission of the figures had been made and that the lower total, 136, of those who lost their lives in the disaster is correct.

The emigrants on board the Volturmo were composed of Dalmatians, Russians, Poles and a few Germans. Most of them were bound for Canada.

AUTOMOBILE NEWS

What the Lowell Auto and Supply Dealers are Accomplishing

The various 1914 models of the standard automobiles are being exhibited and demonstrated by the different local dealers with the result of creating a deep impression on the buyers regarding the many improvements and advantages of the new cars. Of course, the tastes of the customers are different, and they visit the various garages and salesrooms accordingly as the makes of autos shown are especially pleasing and attractive to them.

Home of Powerful Cars

A truly magnificent display of high powered motors of beautiful and graceful body lines may be seen at any time in the large parking room of the auto sales plant of George R. Dana and Son, 2 to 24 East Merrimack street.

The Hudson Six 54 is one of the most attractively constructed and well equipped cars in the city, and the fine new 1914 model of Mr. Dana, Jr., is attracting wide and favorable comment wherever it is seen. Certainly too much cannot be said in favor of this machine, which has many admirers who never tire of enumerating the goods points of the Hudson. One of its most important factors is the smoothness with which it runs, the absolute lack of jar of vibration of the engine, and the absence of jerking of the engine. Of course there is a scientific explanation of this fact, in the six cylinder engine, and the play of the pistons over the valves, the result is the characteristic smoothness and flexibility of motion of the car. Mr. Dana said that no such smoothness can be obtained from a four cylinder machine, unless by coasting down a long smooth hill with the motor running idle. The feeling is like that of flying—the same is true of the motion of the Hudson Six.

The Hudson has the left side drive, is electrically cranked and electrically lighted, besides having other advantages. Mr. Dana is highly successful in promoting the sales of this car and anticipates a "Hudson season."

New Head at Moody Bridge

Mr. James M. Ringer has assumed control of and is now conducting the popular Moody Bridge garage, located at the corner of Moody and Pawtucket streets. This garage has always been much sought by motorists, and it will be the same from now on, only on a larger scale. Mr. Ringer has a very large stock of all manner of standard auto supplies, everything for the motorists, and the prices are right. There can be no doubt that the future success of this establishment is bound to be greater than ever under his capable management. It is his desire to please motorists and in this he can surely succeed.

Sales of the Ford

Pitts Supply House

Great improvements have been made in the vicinity of the auto supply house of Harry Pitts in Hurd street, immediately increasing the convenience of the establishment to motorists. A new concrete apron has been laid, so that the machines may drive right up to the door and take advantage of the electric tire pump, without the inconveniences which the abrupt curb caused. This is another tribute to the progressiveness of Mr. Pitts and his foresight in providing for the convenience of his many customers. His tire and supply business is on the increase, as usual.

Boston Auto Supply Co.

One of the features of the activity of Joseph McGarry of the Boston Auto Supply Co. in Bridge street is that of arranging adjustments for tire owners who have found defects in their tires. He has had much success in this line. Mr. McGarry is featuring at present, the Universal blow-out patch, which he himself absolutely guarantees to bring home the motorists safely after a bad blow-out. The patch has fully as much fabric as the ordinary tire, and the layers taper finely at each end. The business at this house, also, is increasing daily, for the efficiency of the repair work of Mr. McGarry is well known.

Donovan Harness Company

The Donovan Harness company in Market and Palmer streets have a new line of auto accessories which will be of great value to the motorist. These include wind shields and other equipment and a visit to the establishment and an inspection of the stock will satisfy the prospective customer as to the quality of the goods.

Mr. Cummings' Many Sales

Mr. A. J. Cummings, of the Cummings motor car company of Merrimack and Moody streets, is enjoying remarkable success with the famous Studebaker truck. Up to date, he has made 15 sales of this model vehicle in this city in a comparatively short time, which speaks well for his energy and enterprise as well as for the high quality of the truck itself. Moreover, the dealers who have purchased these trucks from Mr. Cummings are not alone satisfied with them, but are delighted because of the great improvement which they accomplish in rapid transaction of business and delivery of

CULEBRA CUT HERO

COL. GALLIARD IS SERIOUSLY ILL—UNABLE TO WITNESS BLOWING UP OF DIKE

BALTIMORE, Oct. 11.—Those who know best by what enthusiasm, ingenuity and ceaseless devotion to their task the mountains of Culebra in the Panama canal have been rent asunder had one note of sadness in their jubilation over the practical completion of the canal when the Gaucha dike was blown up yesterday. Colonel D. D. Galliard, division engineer of the central division, which is Culebra cut, the man who has been personally responsible for what has been from the first conceded to be the biggest part of the task in building a Panama canal, lay in a hospital here so seriously ill that his recovery was a matter of doubt. His illness was the result of overwork and strain in the tropical climate of the canal zone. There was universal regret that after eight years of the most arduous labor he should have been deprived of witnessing the completion of that part of the great task which was most especially his.

These trucks may be seen everywhere about the city at present loaded down with the goods of the proprietors of big business houses. The 1600 pound truck is especially popular, and new customers are being found every day. The satisfaction which it has given thus far is its best recommendation. Mr. Cummings also handles the Studebaker pleasure cars, together with the Stutz and Rambler.

URGENT INCREASE

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—Frank W. Garrett, superintendent of the Albany street shops of the Boston Elevated company, moved the company employees to applause yesterday afternoon at the "L" arbitration hearing when he declared that in his opinion men in his department are deserving of an increase in pay.

After the applause had been suppressed, Attorney John P. Feeney, for the carmen, said that in his opinion the superintendent is the frankest and most fair-minded man that has been called upon to testify since the hearing began.

Mr. Feeney asked Mr. Garrett if it is not true that the men who are not receiving as much pay as they deserve are going to refuse to exert themselves when it comes to performing good work for the company—if not, as a matter of fact, they would do poor work, and the witness replied that he agreed with the lawyer and added that in his opinion keeping the pay down constitutes an extravagance, rather than an economy.

Another important statement made by Mr. Garrett is that he believed the foreman should watch for good men and not have it necessary for the men to ask for wage increases. The increases ought to be voluntarily recommended by the foreman, he said, whenever an increase is warranted.

Mr. Feeney complimented the witness for his "absolute frankness and absolute sincerity," and asked him if, under the present conditions affecting promotions, "the timid man may suffer and the gaily man push himself ahead." Mr. Garrett agreed with the attorney.

Superintendent Garrett said that on July 31 he recommended an increase for a very large number of the men in this department and also a change in the classification of the workmen. These recommendations are being held in abeyance.

THE LOWELL GUILD

Miss Moore, superintendent of the Lowell Guild, has given an interesting report for the year ending October 1st. The number of visits made by the district nurses amount in number to 1,443. Dinners to the amount of 1,046 have been distributed to needy cases and 1256 quarts of milk have been given to babies and patients. The appeals for clothing have been generously answered and thankfully received. One case which deserves immediate attention is that of a man of medium size who needs clothing of every description, especially an overcoat. Any contribution for this patient, together with old linen, would be gratefully received at the Guild house, 17 Dutton street.

THE SPELLBINDER

Well, I swan if Gussie Gardner isn't getting a bit fussy! Just think of his hiring Faneuil hall in which to give Mr. Bird a big "wallop." I am told that Gussie's real motive was to get Mr. Bird to draw a "crowd" for him as he cannot get any large audiences assembled to hear himself. Gussie has made himself the laughing stock of the hour. First he told the republican party that it would be wiped out of existence if it did not take his advice and be progressive and yet he assails the party that claims a monopoly of the progressivism of the state. Still Gussie says that if but one man is left of the republican party he will be the one. Well, dear Gussie, democrat as I am, I do not think it is quite so bad as that although the spectacle of a candidate rejecting a party platform and presenting a substitute not half so good should go far towards preparing any moribund party for the undertaker.

Why Not Cosgrove?
But I was about to remark that Charles Sumner Bird did not take kindly to the Faneuil hall "wallop" proposition and in my opinion he was entirely right when he hinted that such exhibitions would lower the dignity of his campaign however it might elevate that of Gussie Gardner.

But Mr. Bird made a grave mistake when he did not support his running mate, Dan Cosgrove, to represent him in the set-to with Gussie at Faneuil hall. I venture to say that in a very few minutes Cosgrove could bury Gussie under a torrent of persiflage from which the sick striking operator of the defense Lodge machine would never emerge. Mordant active hostilities are suspended as Gussie was called to Washington to attend a plunk tea.

The Democratic Campaign

Well, how fares it with Hon. David L. Walsh, the democratic nominee for governor? Judging from an address which he delivered at Attleboro, Thursday evening, Mr. Walsh is quite confident of election as he should be; and he is discussing the campaign issues in a calm and convincing manner. He quoted from the democratic platform of 1891 to show that practically all the same measures now claimed as originally theirs by the progressives were enacted by the democratic party many years ago. Mr. Walsh is right, in saying that the democratic party is the real progressive party for although in the minority in the legislature, the democrats of that body have steadily led the vanguard of progress in fighting the measures of the "pork barrel" bill.

The democrats of Lowell should bestir themselves in support of the whole ticket and particularly in behalf of Mr. Walsh's election. Last year in his fight for lieutenant governor he received 5530 votes in Lowell, leading Mr. Lane, his republican opponent, by 2000 votes. This year as candidates for governor he should get a vote equal to that given Mr. Foss last year, namely, 5307. But to bring out the total vote active work not only through rallies out in the wards will be necessary though it should not be so. The democrats in this campaign have one of the best opportunities offered them for many years, to win a sweeping victory; but to make the most of it they must get out and hustle for their candidates.

The Opposition to Senator Fisher

Last year Senator Edward Fisher as chairman of the senate ways and means committee was instrumental in killing the "pork barrel bill," so called, the object of which was to turn over large sums of money to different public bodies for the alleged improvement of certain rivers and harbors without any definite plan. He declared that the sum would cost out $1,000,000, not $100,000, as $500,000 if he could stop it without first showing that the money should be applied to some definite purpose to meet a public demand. The bill was defeated mainly through his efforts and now the General Electric company which wanted certain Lynn marshes drained, has its foreman nominated for senator against Mr. Fisher. The candidate personally may be a very good fellow; but he is in the employ of the largest corporation in the state and one that wants the pork barrel bill revived and passed so that its marsh land may be drained as a part of the work of improving Lynn harbor. This candidate's name is Otto Reither and he Otto is named by the overwhelming majority. This is a case in which the voters of the district regardless of party should rally to the support of Senator Fisher so as to elect him by the biggest majority ever given any candidate in the district.

Mr. Kilpatrick's Record Again

Last Saturday in this column I gave the readers of The Sun an insight into the narrow and liberal views of Charles T. Kilpatrick, republican candidate for senator in the eighth district, as indicated by his votes on legislative measures while a member of the general court in 1910 and 1911. I stated from the record that any popular measure and especially any measure benefiting labor was to Mr. Kilpatrick what the traditional red rag is to a bull fresh from the ranch where as any measure bearing the corporation label appears to have had his cordial support and sympathy. Here are a few more of the many citations from the record of 1912:

Feb. 11, on substituting the public opinion bill No.

April 17, ordering to third reading the bill No.

April 22, on substituting bill to regulate collection agencies No.

April 26, on passing to be engrossed Columbus Day bill No.

April 28, on passing to be engrossed bill to prohibit sale of liquor in saloons No.

Last I should mention Rep. Kilpatrick on the liquor question. Perhaps I should say here that he voted for the bar and bottle bill.

May 5, on adoption of Hays order providing for investigation of false statements concerning securities No.

In view of the manner in which a great many people are imposed upon by advertisements to purchase stock in bogus concerns, it would appear that such a law is needed to protect the public against the sale of stock under false pretenses. Lowell citizens have lost millions for want of such a law as was contemplated in this bill.

May 20, on passing to be engrossed a bill to protect faithful and competent public employees No.

May 24, on adopting amendment to rules to prohibit the solicitation of votes of members No.

Mr. Kilpatrick evidently did not wish to abolish the lobby where chief duty is to secure the votes necessary to carry any measure by solicitation or otherwise by more questionable methods.

But perhaps the public would consider Mr. Kilpatrick a very negative gentleman if I quoted only the instances in which he voted "No." That would misrepresent him very seriously; and hence I shall cite just a few of his affirmative votes:

April 22 on rejecting bill to regulate service of young girls in Chinese restaurants YES.

June 1, on ordering Berkshire railway bill to third reading YES.

June 2, on bill to authorize Worcester and Southbridge street railway to purchase line in Thompson, Conn. YES.

June 2, on bill to authorize Springfield street railway to purchase line in Southfield, Conn. YES.

May 8, on asking for imprisonment from penalty to be imposed upon officials of railroad corporations for violation of law YES.

From these citations from Rep. Kilpatrick's record I believe the voters will be able to see how deeply he is prejudiced against popular measures and measures to all corporations. The man who would vote immunity from imprisonment for railroad officials for violating the law is not at all representative of Lowell district in either branch of the legislature. That is why Mr. Kilpatrick should be defeated in the coming election.

As to the record of Senator Draper there is little to be said. He is not an extremist nor a radical on labor matters but he has voted for every measure calculated to promote the public good. He believes in fair play for the employers of labor as well as for the laborers themselves. He is a safe man to elect and for that reason I predict his election by a respectable majority. Let it be remembered that a vote cast for the progressive candidate in this contest is thrown away inasmuch as he has no possible chance of election.

The County Fight

The only official activity shown in the county fight this far is by the county ring in favor of its candidate, Charles McIntire, the nominee of the progressive party. The reason the ring swings from the republican candidate, Ex-Senator Barlow, is that he is knocking them right and left and has been doing so for a considerable time. This situation offers an excellent chance for the democrats to elect their candidate if they make any effort, but the democrats at this end of the district are waiting to see their candidate, Mr. McCloskey of Cambridge, and to find out whether he will put up an aggressive battle.

Meanwhile Mr. Barlow is denouncing the "ring" and appealing for votes on the issue and on his record throughout the district. It is about time for the democrats to wake up if they mean to do anything in the county fights. Although he is early in the season, it may be said that Mr. Barlow is "cutting it" where he goes.

The 11th Rep. District

Out in the 11th representative district there is a three cornered fight in which James P. Dunnigan, democrat, of North Chelmsford, is pitted against Charles Kimball of Littleton, republican nominee, and John Kenelson of Ayer, progressive. This is not the first time Mr. Dunnigan sought the office having been beaten by but 248 votes by one of the strongest candidates put up in the district for many years. Mr. Dunnigan has held about every office in the gift of his town, having been select man for four years, assessor for ten years, and chairman of the water board for three years. In each and all he served with credit to himself and his town. He is now in the coal business and manages a farm on the side. Dunnigan is a live wire and the people of the district will make no mistake if they elect him to represent them in the general court. The district includes the towns of Ayer, Carlisle, Chelmsford, Littleton and Westford with over 3000 voters. No man knows the needs of the district better than Mr. Dunnigan.

How Rep. Butler Was Defeated

Rep. Otis W. Butler comes out to explain how the nomination for senator in the eighth district was taken away from him and given to Mr. Kilpatrick by misrepresentation as to his votes in the legislature. Mr. Butler issues a statement in reply to the woman suffragist advertisement showing that he has been very much wronged by the women or whomsoever framed and published the advertisement in their name. Mr. Butler referring to the advertisement published September 22 on the eve of the primaries says he owes it to the voters to answer the charges made against him at the last minute by the Woman Suffrage association. On several of the bills which they accused him of opposing by his vote, the question was not set forth by them in their particulars and advertisements, but was on the appointment of recess committees on matters for which paid state commissioners were then in existence.

There were orders for nearly twenty recess committees and Rep. Butler voted against all of them and as an endorsement of his course the senate declined to approve any of them.

Each committee would cost the state about $15,000 besides traveling expenses and he believed all good citizens opposed to these committees except in extreme cases. Had the Woman Suffrage association put the question as they should it would have looked and read entirely different.

On the nine-hour-in-district bill for street railway men, Rep. Butler voted to pass the bill over the governor's veto. In the case of labeling milk from outside the state he voted against this because the milk contractors contemplated using this as a means of putting the price of milk up another cent per quart without changing the quality of the milk. For instance, one of the biggest milk contractors in Boston has a car come to Boston that is started either in Vermont or New York and this car passes through a part of Connecticut, Vermont, New Hampshire and Massachusetts, and one can readily see that the extra handling and work this would require could easily be made the pretext for raising the price of milk if such a bill was passed and became a law.

He voted against the constitutional amendment on woman suffrage because he is opposed to amending the constitution until it is shown that there is sufficient demand for it, and so he voted for the only bill that would put the question on the ballot this fall, submitting the question to the voters.

It is hard to understand how the Woman Suffrage association can assume the attitude they have taken on any of the bills mentioned above as they are supposed to advocate only good legislation.

Gov. Foss

Governor Foss is still keeping the politicians guessing as to what he is going to do, whether to run or not to run. It is alleged that he has "corralled" nearly all the mailing facilities in Boston for what purpose is not known. He is known to be opposed to Gardner and as he cannot be said to be friendly either to Walsh or Bird, it is believed that he is for nobody except Foss. He must soon show his hand, however, and if he decides not to be a candidate, he will thereby save himself from the worst political disaster of his meteoric career.

THE SPELLBINDER.

TO CLEAN, OR NOT TO CLEAN

That is the question. Whether it is better to use antiquated ideas or modern cleaning machinery in the renovating of garments has been tested fully in this establishment.

We do not infer that we, of late years, have employed stale methods. We haven't; but being the oldest established cleaning and dyeing house here, naturally there was a time when we had to use the "quaint."

But now! what a change! A modernized plant, equal to any emergency. Such is progress!

"What Shall I Do With My Old Car?"

"I WANT a new automobile. The one I have doesn't quite satisfy, yet it would do. I cannot afford to throw it away or scrap it. I want a newer car. One with more power—A six-cylinder—A left-hand drive—A streamline body—An electric self-starter—A quiet, powerful, easy-riding automobile. But what am I to do with the car I now have?"

Don't Deceive Yourself

WHATEVER you do, don't be deceived as to the real value of your car. It is worth no more to someone else than to you. The chances are it is not worth so much.

If someone—a dealer—in order to have you buy his new car, offers you more for the one you have than can be gotten elsewhere—remember that he is making his profits out of the cash you pay to obtain his new car in addition to turning in your old one.

Because the car is priced at $3,000 does not necessarily mean $3,000 value.

Remember that pianos sell at anywhere between $300 and $1,000. The price charged often depends on the instrument you have to trade in.

But with motor cars, prices are fixed. Some makers know that a large share of their trade will come from those who already own a car, and to attract them the list price is put high in order to provide a fund out of every sale to take care of excessive allowances on the used car.

Hudson Six 54 Values Are Real

THIS—the handsomest car ever designed—is not built for trading. It is priced low for cash buyers. It is the kind of value you see when you pay cash. In its purchase you are not paying a high price to help absorb the used car of some other buyer.

If you drive a Six, then drive this one for a while. If you do not know anything about six-cylinder cars—then come, experience its smoothness.

The man who knows nothing of the electric light is satisfied with his kerosene lamp. To him it is the very best artificial light to be obtained. So it is with the man who knows only the four-cylinder car. He does not understand the pleasures and satisfaction to be obtained with a Six.

The Hudson Six 54 rides like constant coasting. Up hill or down, over rough roads or smooth, at any speed, you ride with a comfort not obtainable in any four.

There is nothing lacking in this car to make it complete. Its true streamline body, left-hand drive, center control, entrance to driver's seat from either side, four-speed transmission and many other details—some exclusive, all advanced—are features you should see.

Would you let such value be compared with the fictitious price of a car made for trading?

THE COLUMBUS HOLIDAY

How it Will be Celebrated Here—
K. of C. and French Guards Going Out of Town

Holiday pleasure seekers will find plenty of diversion in this city on Monday, next, Columbus Day, and there will be a variety of amusements, as seen in the program for the day, printed below, so that all may enjoy the holiday according to their tastes.

In the various halls, will be "sunlight" and "moonlight," which is to say afternoon and evening dances for those who care to "trip the light fantastic." The theatres hold excellent entertainment for their patrons, while there will be several sporting events, namely golf and football.

Monday, Columbus day, all operatives of this city will enjoy a holiday, for it was announced this morning at all the local cotton mills that the plants will shut down this noon and will not reopen again until Tuesday morning. The shoe shops as well as machine shops, and in fact all other industry will suspend work for the day.

One of the big features is the journey to Manchester of the local Knights of Columbus to assist Manchester council in the celebration of Columbus Day, the local members leaving the city on the 12:15 p. m. train in connection with which special accommodations have been arranged. Lady and gentlemen friends of the council are cordially invited to accompany the body. Special attractions have also been arranged by several of the other clubs.

The local guards of the French American Volunteer brigade of the United States, which comprises the second regiment, will journey to Brockton Monday, where they will participate in the great parade of the Knights of Columbus of that place, who will celebrate Columbus Day in great style. At the conclusion of the parade the companies will repair to Walkover park, where the first regiment will be inspected by Inspector General Joseph L. Lamoureux, captain of Garde d'Honneur of this city.

Provided New York is victorious in today's baseball battle with the Athletics, there will be another big game Monday, weather favorable, and the fans will enjoy the megaphone service of The Sun, in the square, where every detail of each play will be announced. The complete program for the day is as follows:

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Oct. 11.—Is Mrs. Jennie M. Eaton guilty of murder? Did she poison her husband, the late Rear-Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton, to death at their home at Assinippi, Mass., on March 8 last? What part did her two pretty daughters of a previous marriage play in the family tragedy? These and other interesting questions will be answered at the trial of Mrs. Eaton on a charge of slaying her husband, which starts here on Oct. 14. The case last March was a country-wide sensation because of the high standing of the rear-admiral. The trial excites equal interest now. Chief Justice Aiken presides, and Prosecutor Albert Barker conducts the case against the widow. One of the most important witnesses is Miss Dorothy Ainsworth, the pretty seventeen-year-old daughter of Mrs. Eaton.

DARTMOUTH USES SUBS
HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 11.—The appearance of the University of Vermont football here today was expected to afford a fairly good chance of comparing the relative strength of Dartmouth and Williams next Saturday as the purple defeated the Green mountain eleven a week ago, 20 to 6. Numerous minor injuries during the week's practice compelled the Green to send many substitutes into today's game. The weather conditions which have been of the midsummer variety all the week changed to damp and lowering today.

In every home there should be a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery, ready for immediate use when any member of the family contracts a cold or a cough. Prompt use will stop the spread of sickness. FOOTBALL GAMES
Many of the Larger Colleges Will Clash on Gridiron Today

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—With the world's baseball championship not yet off the boards, the devotees of football sought to push their way to the front today with a schedule which called for about 30 inter-collegiate games in the east. Many of the larger colleges were past the experimental stage of their work and ready to open a hard campaign. The six games of the day regarded as having a most important bearing on the season's battle for supremacy were:

Harvard and Williams at Cambridge; Yale and Lafayette at New Haven; Cornell and Carleton at Ithaca; Rutgers at the army at West Point; Pennsylvania and Swarthmore at Philadelphia and Bucknell at Princeton.
In the game with Lafayette, last year Yale came through with a victory of 16 to 6. An eleven hour change in the Yale eleven made it appear that Al Wilson, the big quarterback who was displaced in practice this week by Cornish would start today's game as fullback.
Harvard, meeting Williams, which was defeated last year, 25 to 3, also expected to have a fairer test this year for the Williamstown eleven is a well reached team.
The Cornell-Indian engagement at Ithaca promised one of the most interesting games of the day. The Indians were in good trim and expected to use the same lineup that defeated Cornell last week.
Swarthmore's physical condition being still a problem owing to the recent conviction of players, made it doubtful what sort of a showing the team could make against Pennsylvania. Last year Swarthmore defeated the Nigger team by a score of 6 to 3.
Princeton followers confessed to having no worries over today's game with Bucknell.

BOARD OF TRADE
The annual fall meeting of the directors of the Lowell board of trade will take place at the rooms on Tuesday evening next and will be preceded by a banquet starting at half past six o'clock. Everyone of the forty directors of the organization is expected to attend. The purpose of this big meeting is to discuss plans and proposals for the work of the year. The chairman of the various committees will be present and will offer their reports and suggestions for their betterment and each of the directors will back and make proposals for the advancement and progress of the organization in any of its departments. Many new ideas are bound to be expressed regarding the betterment or enlargement of the work of the local trade organization. There will be a meeting of the board of directors at the rooms at six o'clock the same evening.

HARVARD AND WILLIAMS
CAMBRIDGE, Oct. 11.—Harvard's strongest lineup was made ready to start today's game against Williams. The visitors brought a team containing several veterans and the Crimson players were prepared to guard against a repetition of the brilliant forward passes of last year's game which enabled Williams to score on a placement kick, although Harvard won, 26 to 3. A drizzling rain fell this forenoon and there were prospects of a slippery field.

HON. D. I. WALSH Favours Constitutional Convention to Settle Off Recurring Questions
David I. Walsh spoke last night in Spencer, Warren and Brookfield, devoting himself chiefly to a discussion of the need of a non-partisan constitutional convention for the state.
"I believe the time has arrived," said he, "for the holding of a constitutional convention in Massachusetts. No such convention has been held since the year 1820. For some years past several important questions of a constitutional character have been occupying public attention, and the time seems opportune for the holding of a convention to discuss these questions and to present them to the people for their final decision. The subject of making new organic law for the commonwealth is a great one—one of the greatest that has come before the state for many years."
"The delegates to such a convention should be elected by an impartial ballot."
"Such a convention ought to serve the purpose of shortening the sessions of our legislature. Year after year many of the same constitutional questions are presented. If these questions could be dealt with by a constitutional convention and submitted to the action of the people, whether favorable or otherwise, it would serve the purpose at least of removing them from the legislature."

CORNER TO BEGIN INQUEST AT WESTFIELD WHERE TRAIN RAN INTO CAR
MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Oct. 11.—With the exception of Otto St. Arnold of Meriden, all the persons hurt in last night's head-on collision of a trolley car with a steam train running over the tracks in Westfield on the Berlin-Middletown branch of the New Haven road are doing well today. Three patients are in a critical condition, but two of them showed surprising strength this morning. They are John G. Eley of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., a traveling salesman, and Miss Frances Florian of Rockfall, a village near here. Nine other persons are still at the hospital, but their hurts are of a minor character.
Coroner Stephen B. Davis will begin his inquest into the accident at once. The medical examiner has viewed the body of Ralph A. Hydenburgh, a newspaper man, who was instantly killed, and the inquest was held on basis of his findings.

LOWELL MEN ATTENDED

Meeting of State Association of Boards of Health at New Bedford—Clambake Before Meeting

Dr. Thomas F. Carroll, John H. Drury and Agent Bates of the Lowell board of health attended the regular meeting of the Massachusetts Association of boards of health held at New Bedford Thursday. The meeting was attended by health officials from all over the state and after an automobile trip about the city the visitors were taken to Padanaram where they enjoyed one of the clambakes for which that section is famous.

At the municipal building the visitors were welcomed by Mayor Ashley, who conducted them through the building and through the public library, as well as pointing out to them the principal buildings in the business and civic center.

The clambake at Padanaram was held in Woodhouse and Slocum's pavilion, and immediately following the business meeting of the association was held. Professor W. T. Sedgewick, head of the department on hygiene and public health of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was the principal speaker of the day.

The Massachusetts Association of Boards of Health is an organization now entered into its second quarter century of life. It was the first of such societies that sought to pass the experiences of one health officer to others, and in some of the states such work is now done by schools or meetings to which by law the different towns send their health officers. The Massachusetts association is a voluntary one and has afforded much in the way of education to the members which has been in no small degree responsible for the generally excellent health conditions and regulations of Massachusetts towns and smaller communities.

From the fact that Dr. Sedgewick and his force of technology professors have always been a force in the association its meetings in later years have usually been held at the Hotel Brunswick across the street from the institute and the students and professors have always taken part in the proceedings although they have not looked for offices in the society.

Twenty-four automobiles besides the two cars belonging to the city of New Bedford, were donated to the board of health for the day, for use in carrying for the visiting members of the state association, and each car was given a number. The visitors were asked before the party started on its sight-seeing tour to observe the number on the car in which they started, so that when the party got out of the machines at various places, they might always get back into the same machines in which they started.

SEVERED HIS JUGULAR VEIN

Michael Kelley, 45, of Augusta, Me., committed suicide yesterday at the lodging house of Charles Markarian, 85 Gorham street. He first cut a vein in his right wrist and then severed his jugular vein with a pocket knife.

Kelley arrived here Tuesday night, lying on his bed with a deep gash in the throat and another in the right wrist. In his right hand was clutched a common ordinary jackknife, and the bed was covered with blood. Life was extinct. The police were notified and Inspector Walsh was detailed to the house. Upon searching the man's pockets he found a card bearing the inscription of the National Soldiers' home, Augusta, Me. It was a furlough card issued on Sept. 23 and good until Dec. 23. It was also found that deceased was a veteran of the Massachusetts Marine Corps.

A permit for general repairs at the stable of the Harvard Brewing Co. in Payne street, which was recently gutted by fire, was granted yesterday at the public department office, the approximate cost to be about $4000.

Awarded Contract
Purchasing Agent Foye yesterday awarded the contract for 2000 feet of one-inch wrought iron pipe for the water work department to H. R. Barker Co., whose bid was $31.60. The other bids submitted were as follows: Farrell & Conaton, $38; Middlesex Machine Co., $142.50; H. S. Drury, $55; Welch Bros., $100.

Approved Bills
Mayor O'Donnell and Commissioner Cummings met in the aldermanic chamber yesterday for the approval of the monthly bills. There was a large number of bills submitted and among them was one which caused more or less hilarity among those present. This was a bill to the amount of $138 for services at a fire in Lowell by the Chelmsford wire warden, who claimed he worked one hour and a half with his machine. The bill read as follows:

Aug. 28.—Ordered to a fire near Chelmsford line by state fire observer. Extinguished fire and reported to observer that same needed watching. Fire proved to be in Lowell on Middlesex canal on land of one Charlton of Highland avenue. To services above 1 1/2 hours with auto. $138. Signed: A. C. Perham, forest warden, Chelmsford.

Hearings
Hearings on the following petitions will be held before the commissioner of streets and highways on the evening of October 20.

Oliver J. Smith, that a concrete sidewalk be laid on the southerly side of Crawford street in front of premises at the corner of Fourth avenue.

George H. Lussler, that a sidewalk edgestones and cinders be laid at the corner of Moody street and Sixth avenue, a distance of 85 feet on Moody street, and 95 feet on Sixth avenue.

Walter G. Charles, that a concrete sidewalk be laid on the northerly side of Crawford street, opposite the premises numbered 91.

Rev. T. W. Smith, O. M. I., and others, that Bourne street be accepted from Otis street to that portion of said street already accepted, and that said street be macadamized and edgestones laid on both sides thereof.

R. G. Bartlett and others, that a sewer be laid in Daniels street from Dover street, northerly, a distance of about 200 feet.

More Certificates

The attendance officers are always kept on the jump and it is figured they have issued over 100 school certificates since the new law went into effect. This forenoon the corridor on the third floor of city hall was literally filled with youngsters who were awaiting their turn to see the attendance officers.

COLUMBUS DAY

On Monday the state will again put away its trappings of trade and labor to honor the great navigator who sailed into the darkness of unknown seas in an age when most men who knew of his daring plans thought him a visionary fanatic and gave America to the world and to us. Before the ideal which his memory and example has left us are but the children of a day, whether our fathers came over in the Mayflower or on the Imperator, and in this land, the fruit of his zeal, patience and Christian perseverance the hundreds of thousands that will do him honor on Monday may clasp hands in the common heritage of Christianity and the glory left by the greatest example of noble courage the world has known. Before the wonderful story of that voyage from Palos to San Salvador we are all children drinking in the essence of romance and when did romance have a more glorious ending than the falling of the weary voyager on his knees before the cross he had planted in the virgin soil and the chanting of the victorious "Te Deum" for the dream fulfilled.

It is strange that a people who are so alive to the need of greatness and generous in awarding it should so long have delayed to give Christopher Columbus the richly deserved honor of a memorial day. He was easily the greatest man of his era and one of the greatest of all time. The chains with which an ungrateful and forgetful king weighed down his aged limbs and the misery of the end in Valladolid in 1505 have only thrown into greater relief his great qualities of heart and mind. All the nations of the earth have set him on a pedestal of idealism too lofty for the shaft of the pony or malleous mind which would fall low enough to besmirch his name or deny him the glory that is his by all the standards that measure human greatness.

The Columbus day idea is growing surely and steadily. Massachusetts adopted it only after a long struggle but now that it is a reality, Massachusetts nobly forgets the differences of opinion that obtained before the legislature honored the memory of the navigator by setting apart a day in his honor, and all people who possess nobility of soul revere him as all Americans irrespective of race or creed revere the name and memory of Washington or Lincoln. This year Columbus day is being observed in New Hampshire for the first time and the Knights of Columbus from this city will take part in a great parade which is to be held in Manchester.

Unfortunately old prejudices die hard and there are still some few, fortunately growing less yearly, who refrain from taking part in any celebration in honor of the great navigator on the ground that such observances are of a sectarian character. They forget apparently that the sectarianism is shown far more strongly by those who protest than by those who give honor where honor is due. When the state honors the individual man honor, without endangering his patriotism. The man who is too falsely "American" to honor Christopher Columbus is doing his utmost to give the day the sectarian character that he so strenuously resents.

Columbus belongs to America more really than he belongs to Italy or Spain. Let us not forget this on Monday. Let us picture him again on the uncharted deep facing the well through mist and distrust and darkness and storm. Let us think of him as hearing the cross of faith and the glories of civilization to a land hidden in the obscurity of an unexplored world. Let us tell our children of the lesson of perseverance he teaches, forever commanding down the ages: "Sail on and on and on."

DEMAND NEW SCHOOL

One hundred mothers of Everett had a meeting a few weeks ago and drew up a petition demanding the abolition of an unsatisfactory school in that city and the erection of a new and modern structure. It was not the first time by any means that the improvement was demanded from the city authorities, but the mothers claimed that the officials were negligent and they have declared that if $100,000 is not appropriated at once they will take the matter themselves before the state board of education. The petition reads like the demand of serious and determined women and one hundred mothers can do a great deal when they are about it in the right way. They may never carry the matter to the state board, but there is every likelihood of a sudden revival of interest in Everett concerning school matters.

Much of what they charge against the Mt. Washington school in that city would apply equally well to the Lowell High school. The mothers claim that the Everett institution is "absolutely, miserably, overwhelmingly and a veritable firetrap." This does not imply that there is any possibility of one hundred determined Lowell mothers making a demand for the abolition of our inadequate institution, but it does imply that any establishment, educational or otherwise, to which the above

Boston Post: There has been much talk in recent years of baseball as a desirable career for educated young men. Mathewson has been pointed out as one proof that such a career is a desirable one. The success has induced the choice of hundreds of young men. But Mathewson is a scientist or professional or business man would be just entering on his greatest usefulness. With his education and undoubted talents, he might be in receipt of a greater salary in any one of a dozen other occupations.

CHILD'S SUCCESSOR
Foster's Democrat: It is gratifying to learn that Henry M. Pindell, who succeeds Curtis Guild as ambassador to Russia, is an editor. While Mr. Pindell has not achieved any great reputation in the literary world, he is recognized as one of the strongest and most forceful writers in Florida. The Russian government, however, was disappointed that Mr. Pindell would be persona as grata as any other American.

POOR FELLOWS
Manchester Mirror: It must be easily seen that the proposition to let bachelors out of existence is utterly impracticable. Taxation can't bring more women into existence. And even if it could do this there is no assurance that it could compel them to accept the bachelors.
There is, however, such a thing as possible as the abolition of bachelors to one or another of their countries where women are plentiful. This might seem cruel to the bachelors, but it is not as cruel as the only other remedy—that of killing them off.

PUBLIC SERVICE
Lynn News: In these days it is the wise public service corporation, which tries to meet the reasonable demands of the people, even the requests of the people, it will find that it will stand in very much better favor when the very common sense of the people is appealed to and that time does come in the life of every corporation.

HAS THE FLOOR
Worcester Call: The world series has the floor also the front pages of the newspapers. Everything else must give way. Mexico, Japan, Texas, etc., will please observe and govern themselves accordingly.

INDICENT PLAYS
Fall River Globe: One of the most disreputable features of the recent effort of New York authorities to banish filthy and indecent plays from theatres in that city, is the attitude and hypocrisy resorted to by some of the managers in claiming that such productions are capable of conveying a high moral lesson, and that such is the tired, flustered shopper, given by Gertrude Doherty, the tough, by Henry Mayhew, and the tough's girl, by Elsie Niemeyer. Added to these are a number of passersby and street characters. It is a complete production, staged by John L. Gorman, under the direction of John C. Peckham.

Miss Lin, of the Hall, the violin virtuoso, will attract large audiences by her exquisite playing of classics. Miss Ball is a woman of the classic type, and it seems probable that she will play only those numbers which make sure appeal to the lover of good music. Among these are Haydn's Zephyr, the Saint-Saens' Symphony, the Macdowell's "The Wind," the Strauss' "Tchikovsky's Concerto." Miss Ball owns a classical violin, over 200 years old and which she values at $2000.

Cooper and Robinson, colored entertainers, offer a package of dancing, singing and stunts, and the Kinkaid's, a trio, two men and a woman, have an offering called "Pyrotechnics from Rag Time to Grand Opera." Mar-do and Hunter appear in the burlesque comedy called "The Great Escape" and a dandy pair of dancing and singing girls, Silent Nora will open the bill with magic. The public weekly collection of pictures will have performances in advance. Phone 25, Thursday afternoon and evening special Sunday entertainments will be given.

OPERA HOUSE

"DOLLARS AND SENSE"
Everybody in Lowell who has enjoyed seeing "The Dollars and Sense" will be interested to learn that the author of these successful dramas has for the first time visited a comedy, which will be initially presented by Cohen and Harris at the Opera House, next Monday (Columbus Day), and will play with Douglas Fairbanks as the star and an exceptional company of all players in his support.

The title of Mr. Brown's new comedy is "Dollars and Sense" and it is a most interesting and up-to-date financial play. It is a comedy of New York and there, like the city, it leaves the fastidious way of speculation and commercialism in the form of a hard-boiled comedy, through the medium of several high finance companies, is a comedy of the highest order. The play is a comedy of the highest order. The play is a comedy of the highest order.

That Secretary William H. Carey of the Mathews was complimented by Congressman Rogers as a capable young man.
That Messrs. Rufus Blood and Fred Burns allowed that St. Margaret's party will be the best ever.
That Congressman John Jacob Rogers' speech before the Mathews was not only interesting but also an example of information about the great subject, known to but few in this city.

That Representative-to-be John J. Gillette, recently enjoyed a trip to New York.
That the South End Club is growing in numbers.
That a new French-American social club is being organized among the French-speaking business and professional men of this city.

That many of the girls at the Shaw Stocking Co. are looked out every morning, necessitating a walk around to the office on Smith street.
That the first dancing party of the Knights of Columbus at their new home, next Wednesday, is expected to make a new record.
That to find the workers in local fraternal societies, you'll have to keep clear of the grouches and grumblers who are too busy criticizing to find time for anything else.

That Market street is looking a little better since the rain washed it and the wind blew some of the old papers away.
That the girls who are "always on the street" are always noted for it.
That the Locks and Canals company has tramped on the rights of the fish as well as the right of the public.

That the suffragette is quite willing to be a Fluffy Ruffian when there is no seat in the car and men are forgetful.

MERRIMACK SQUARE PLAYERS

Dion Boucicault's famous play, "The Quaker Girl," is the story of a life in the South before the war will be the climax in which the players will be seen, commencing with the "Quaker Girl" at the Merrimack Square theatre. A play which had been repeatedly described as the greatest southern play ever written, "The Quaker Girl" is now the most novel and one of the most interesting plays in which the popular company will be seen. It is one of the few plays written many years ago which will never grow old.

Advice to Expectant Mothers
The experience of Motherhood is a trying one to most women and marks distinctly an epoch in their lives. Not one woman in a hundred is prepared or understands how to properly care for herself. Of course nearly every woman nowadays has medical treatment at such times, but many approach the experience with an organism unfitted for the trial of strength, and when it is over her system has received a shock from which it is hard to recover. Following right upon this comes the nervous strain of caring for the child, and a distinct change in the mother results.

There is nothing more charming than a happy and healthy mother of children, and indeed child-birth under the right conditions need be no hazard to health or beauty. The unexplainable thing is that, with all the evidence of shattered nerves and broken health resulting from an unprepared condition, and with ample time in which to prepare, women will persist in going blindly to the trial.

Every woman at this time should rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

In many homes once children there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

As "Zon" the glava girl, Miss Grace Young will be seen in one of the most famous of stage characters. It is a role of the most exacting nature but it is safe to assume one which this popular actress can equally handle. She will have the support of the other leading members of the company, among them Walter Scott Weeks who will be seen as "Wahoon," the mute Indian. This is the character which the late Boucicault played himself, and although throughout the action of the play the Indian is on the stage, the greater part of the time he speaks not a word. It is a most difficult role, but one which will afford Mr. Weeks an excellent opportunity for some fine bits of pantomime.

LADY LOOKABOUT

What a pleasure and what a pride it is even to the least of us, to know that we have pleased in the White House a gentleman, a man of letters.

This thought has come to me a number of times of late, particularly when President Wilson sent his message to Mexico. Apart from the import of the message, it was in point of English, a classic, and was so recognized and commented upon by the foreign press.

The same thought came again to me a few days ago as I read the circumstances surrounding the signing of the new Underwood-Simmons tariff bill. In the presence of his cabinet, at one of the most solemn moments that will ever come to him as chief of the nation, standing with pen in hand, and the document embodying the features of the tariff bill spread out before him, he signed his signature, the president spoke thus simply, in the language of a scholar, free from cant, bombast and egotism:

"I was quoting the other day to some of my colleagues in the senate these lines from Shakespeare's 'Henry V' which have always appealed to me. If it be a sin to covet honor, then am I the most offending soul alive, and I am happy to say that I do not covet it for myself alone. I covet it with equal ardor for my country. I can come in only when the last stages of the business are reached.

And I covet this honor for them quite as much as I covet for myself, and I covet it for the great party of which I am a member, because that party is not honorable unless it respects its name and serve the people of the United States.

"So I feel tonight like a man who is looking happily in the inn which lies half way along the journey, and that in the morning with a fresh impulse we shall go on the journey, and sleep at the journey's end, and like men with a quiet conscience, knowing that we have served our fellow men and have thereby tried to serve God."

One moment later, having signed his signature, the bill became a law. To me there is something solemn in those words. They suggest the utterance of a prayerful, God-fearing man. The closing lines recall the Xenophon and Plutarch's Progress, and yet there is a beautiful unaffected simplicity about them, reminding one of Abraham Lincoln.

When you were a little girl (or a little boy), do you remember your mother or your teacher telling you that when angry you should count ten, and that when very angry you should count one hundred? And you thought it was silly and childish, but you tried it and often at the end of the count you found that the anger had vanished.

William Jennings Bryan has launched this identical plan before the world as his great peace plan. The plan in brief is this: Any nation wishing to go to war shall wait at least one year before beginning, and during that year neither side shall make any preparations for war.

Largely simple, you say, and yet it is considered so practical that already 29 nations, including four fifths of the population of the world have accepted it in principle.

If we women were engaged in the business of politics and one of us, running for high office, presented a platform differing radically from that offered by her party, how the men would laugh, and how they would remark, "Just like the women, the dear thing!"

Now I am only one little woman, but it seems to me that if we nominated one of our number for the standard-bearer of our party, we would come pretty near knowing beforehand whether or not she thought with us along the main points at issue, or if she had a few strong notions of her own opposed to those of her party. And it also seems to me that a person in high office who has to reluctantly withdraw his own convictions and accept those of another, cannot make the most efficient official in the world. However, this is only the humble opinion of one who is not supposed to be able to form an opinion on matters political, so don't let it carry any weight with you.

A funny feature of the whole business is that the mothers of these political prodigies are not of sufficient intelligence to grasp the significance of a political situation. Is it not a miracle that women of such numbskull propensities, can beget offspring who are stars of the first magnitude in point of intelligence? And the same mother can beget a son, an able legislator and a vote-getter, who can her daughter, perhaps a twin-sister of the above mentioned one, is non compos mentis in regard to the ballot. There is a problem in eugenics for someone.

I found an old magazine in the attic the other day—a magazine for women, and I compared the table of contents with one of recent date, and the comparison forced me to draw some very convincing conclusions. To be sure I did not need much forcing, but I fear there are still among us some of the male persuasion who may need just a little forcing.

The old magazine was filled with discussions on the proper etiquette of ladies and gentlemen, and if the old time lady were a prude in regard to the way she was supposed to carry herself in the presence of gentlemen, the old time man was ten times worse.

Two or three pages were given over to beauty and how to acquire it. Our grandmothers certainly had it down like that. Such mixtures as they used to make themselves attractive! Another page was given over to medical recipes; another to fortune-telling by means of horoscopes and palm-reading.

A romance of love, hate, and tragedy, with a heroine who spent much of her time in an unconscious state, and the most villainous of villains. The modern magazine led off with an article on the conditions of working children. It set forth factory conditions in our large cities, and suggested remedies for bettering the conditions of those children whose labor begins at an early age.

An article by Dr. Woods Hutchinson on the economy of good food was followed by Dr. Harvey W. Wiley on the life of the "Poor Baby." A section was devoted to house-keeping, and another to the discussion of the leading questions of the day, child-study here and in foreign countries, in which the best authorities of the world were quoted; politics, education and science.

Such a change in what women now demand in their magazines surely spells but one thing—progression.

Dyed furs have not yet been seen in Lowell, but Boston is already showing them. Taupe, blue, yellow, and purple fox, skunk, tiger and leopard fur are all used to trim winter gowns and wraps.

In a very exclusive shop, I saw a collar of skunk fur in combination with rose-colored fox. Skunk with purple or yellow is also seen. A narrow pleated frill of satin to correspond in color to the dyed fur is used to border the edges, and a flat bow of the same material adorns the side.

Some of the newest tailored suits have loose jackets with belt at the hip line. An amethyst-colored broad cloth is shown with a collar of cream-colored velvet. Amber poplin with a purple velvet collar is a novel and beautiful combination.

Don't you think this is pretty good? I think some woman must have written it. I read it somewhere a few days ago.

"Congressman Gardner thinks he is a regular Jollith in politics." Yes, but he must not forget Goliath's end—David's blow him.

TRAIN AND CAR COLLIDE

WESTFIELD, Conn., Oct. 11.—As the result of a head-on collision on the Berlin branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad between a Middletown-bound steam train and a Meriden-bound electric car here at 5 o'clock last night, one person was killed and 11 injured, three perhaps fatally.

Ralph A. Bydenburgh of Middletown, city editor of the Middletown Penny Press, was instantly killed. The fatally injured are Max Glass, Holyoke, Mass., fractured skull and concussion of the brain, condition serious; Otto St. Arnold, Meriden, a waiter, fractured jaw, fractured leg and internal injuries; Miss Frances Fiorian, Rock Fall, fractured skull.

Others injured are Ephraim Hines, Middletown, conductor of trolley car, fractured wrist and tibia; Benjamin Lord, Middletown, motorman of trolley car, fractured leg; Harry Gurrian, New Haven, fractured nose and scalp wound; Michael Cronin, Portland, body bruised; Mrs. Robert Matheson, Middletown, fractured leg, scalp wounds; Charles Ehrens, Middletown, cuts and bruises; Adam Brauer, West Cromwell, cuts and shock; Miss Anna Durling, Middletown; lacerations at body.

The crash occurred near the local depot. There is a single line track from this place to Middletown, that branches off at a junction here, one line going to Berlin and the other to Meriden. It is said through a misunderstanding of orders the trolley left Newfield, a few miles to the east on the single track, where it should have remained on a siding. The Middletown-bound steam train got orders to proceed, it is said, and a few moments later the collision occurred on a straight track.

The steam train, as is the custom, was backing toward Middletown, with the engine pushing. The front of the trolley was smashed like an eggshell. Nearly every passenger in the trolley was injured more or less.

Passengers on the steam train rushed out and did what they could to assist the injured.

As soon as possible the wrecked trolley was hauled onto a switch and the injured were taken to Middletown on the train. Special trolleys carried them direct to the Middlesex hospital in that city, where all the physicians in the vicinity had been summoned. Mr. Bydenburgh, who was killed instantly, was one of the best known newspaper men in central Connecticut. He was for many years city editor of the Middletown Penny Press, and for more than 15 years a correspondent there of the Associate Press. He was about 50 years old and leaves a widow and daughter.

Chinaman Denies That Girls are Enticed Into Hub's Chinatown

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—The friends of Sing Wah, the Chinaman who was arrested on the premises at 25 Oxford street Wednesday afternoon, charged with having in his possession opium on which no duty was paid, met at the store of Wah last night to voice a protest against the published statement that the place was a procuring resort to which white girls were enticed.

Deary Reports

Yes Wah, a relative of Sing Wah, told a reporter after the meeting that the merchants and business men of Chinatown are incensed because of the false accusations made against the Wah establishment and the general impression that Chinatown in that quarter induce white girls whom they meet to visit the places in that section on a smuggling tour and then persuade them to smoke opium just to see what its influences were.

"We wish to say that there is no such thing as Chinamen inducing white girls to come to Chinatown to smoke opium," said Mr. Wah. "There is no such condition in our midst as white slavery. We want that impression corrected as we feel a great injustice is done by such a report."

"We admit that two white women were in the Wah establishment when the customs authorities entered in their search for opium and smoking outfits. One of those women is the Miss Lee Wah, and she is the wife of a Chinaman whom she married 20 years ago. They live on the top floor of the building. She is not a young girl, but is about 40 and gray-haired."

Women Not Smoking

"I do not deny that the Chinamen there smoked opium. I do deny that the women were smoking it when the officers entered. The second woman is a white friend of Mrs. Wah. She accompanied Mrs. Wah to the Wah store on the first floor. Mrs. Wah lives on the first floor to Wah, and it is quite customary for her, being an occupant and lessee of the building and a friend of all the tenants, to go to the store on the first floor."

"Neither of the two women was or is a Sunday school teacher. I do not deny that they smoked opium. You must know that Chinamen are accustomed to smoking opium, and when once addicted to its use, find it almost impossible to give it up."

"But we deny that our people are procurers of white women and we deny that there is white slavery in our colony, and we further deny that the two women seen at 25 Oxford street by the police were smoking when they entered the premises to arrest one man, Mr. Wah."

Wah was arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes yesterday on a charge of having opium unlawfully in his possession.

At the Calvary Baptist Church Last Night—Prof. Stout and Irving T. Gumb Speakers

A large number of members of the Calvary Baptist church attended the annual roll call which was held in the church last night. Early in the evening a report was served by the faculty of the church and this was followed by an address by Professor E. P. Stout of Pasadena, Cal. Prof. Stout is a religious worker, who goes about the country assisting in every way he can. He was in Lowell 10 years ago and he spoke last night on the wonderful improvements of the Calvary Baptist church and he congratulated the pastor and the people on their success in this respect.

Mr. Irving T. Gumb was the next speaker and he talked on boys' work in general. Mr. Gumb is president of the Volunteer Student band and chairman of the committee on boys' work at Brown University, of which he is a junior, and is connected with the U. S. C. A. in Rhode Island and Massachusetts. His talk last night was unusually interesting. The evening exercises closed with singing by Prof. Stout.

REV. DR. BARTLETT

Formerly of Lowell Now in Poor Health at Hartford, Conn., Where He Was Pastor

Word has been received in this city to the effect that Rev. Dr. William A. Bartlett, former pastor of the Kirk Street church of Lowell, now pastor of the Farmington Avenue Congregational church of Hartford, is suffering from a severe nervous breakdown, and is a patient in a sanitarium in Litchfield county, where he was taken on Saturday last. Hard work, the illness and death of his son, and worry over the illness of his wife are assigned as the cause of his malady.

Rev. Dr. Bartlett was last May given leave of absence to Sept. 1, and spent a vacation at Ocean Park, Me., in an effort to regain his health. He returned in poor condition and later suffered a relapse with the result mentioned above. Prior to going to Hartford, Rev. Dr. Bartlett was pastor of a large down town church in Chicago where his work was very trying and difficult. He was one of the leaders in the campaign for Sunday saloon closing there, and spoke day and night in the work.

HOLY NAME AT ST. MICHAEL'S

The Holy Name society of St. Michael's parish will hold their first meeting on the fall and winter season tomorrow evening, Sunday, Oct. 12, at 6:30 p. m. While the meetings were discontinued during the summer, President John J. Haviland has been looking round for beneficial suggestions of improvement and he will have something to say tomorrow evening that will interest all the members and encourage them in their good work.

Both the spiritual director and he are anxious that the meeting tomorrow be unusually large as they intend to renew membership this year to grow even more rapidly than during 1912, which was the banner year of the society. The board officers are about to take up their duties and they, too, expect to be of material help in setting every man in the parish into the Holy Name society.

THE MAN IN THE MOON

We have four iron bridges spanning the Merrimack—three adequate and one inadequate. But I am not going in for a new bridge at Pawtucket falls just now. That proposition can wait awhile longer. Has it ever struck you when having occasion to visit the bridge crossing over the river, the character of the approaches thereto? Now, you can hardly change the approaches on the south side of Pawtucket bridge owing to the permanent buildings of the Locks and Canals Co., nor could you improve greatly the northerly approaches to the Moody street bridge, neither could you do anything to better matters at the westerly end of Central bridge but as you contemplate all other approaches to the several bridges you will find enough to provoke your criticism and plenty of matter to cause you to express some good, strong opinions of a policy which permitted and allows such a condition of things to exist.

Before the Locks and Canals corporation placed the land owned by it upon the market (so desirably does it love the city of Lowell), the southerly approaches to the Moody street bridge left little to be desired. The then city council could not appreciate the fitness of things and possibly declined to pay a fancy price. As a result of the action of the Locks & Canals corporation and the lack of action on the part of the common council, tenement houses have been erected on the land almost directly adjoining the bridge. At the northerly end of Pawtucket bridge on both sides are hideous conglomerated groups of buildings, a liberal corner jutting into Pawtucket "square" at once an eyesore and a source of constant danger. When the new bridge arrives at this point it is to be hoped that up-to-date conditions may prevail and a square be laid out worthy of the times and place.

It is devoutly hoped that the tenement houses and other buildings may be kept at a respectable distance from the eastern end of the Alken street bridge. Right here is a spot where a progressive municipal council and an energetic park commission could profit from error of the past and accomplish something worth while for the people of Lowell. Clearly the city should own this land and never temporize with a never-let-go corporation by accepting 10 year leases at $5 a year and taxes. Incidentally, I wish to endorse the position taken by Mr. Greene, the chairman of the park commission, in the stand he takes with relation to the contemplated playgrounds in that section of the city. There isn't any doubt that the removal of that old wooden building at the east end of Central bridge would greatly improve conditions in that quarter. Let us make a beginning next year. Let us start something along these lines.

Nashua After Dark

You who have hitherto avoided being caught in Nashua after dark will not know that the situation of the principal street of that town is a play "White Way." It surely looks fine, and is fine, and the old town presents a really up-to-date appearance.

Another year and Lowell may have a similar illumination, and the powers that will be should not overlook many places throughout the city in absolute need of more light while laying plans for a "great white way."

Good Advice Disregarded

The other evening while waiting for a car I overheard a rather tough-looking individual of middle age giving out some very practical advice to a young man of dissipated aspect as to the relative worth of a "street girl" and a "home girl." The tough-looking man had been through the mill and spoke as one having authority and was very positive in his conclusions. His advice was given in a loud voice and was even stentorian in quality as he delivered it from the platform of the car carrying him away. I thought his advice good enough if it wasn't expressed in the choicest of words. I fear, however, that the young man was not very appreciative for he said something rather uncomplimentary about his adviser as the latter disappeared.

The Spitting Nuisance

The habitual spitter is an unmitigated nuisance still in our midst. He appears to have little or no regard for signs threatening 20 dollar fines—indeed, I think he is inclined to defy them. Now, since we could change our climate about as easily as we could swear off our great tobacco habit, why wouldn't it be well to make the signs would read $2 instead of $20? The

BAN ON DANCES

Boston's Mayor Makes Regulations for Public Dance Halls

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—The turkey trot, bunny hug, tango, kitchen sink, bear dance and all kindred dances that come under the general designation of "improper" will be excluded from the public dance halls of Boston, beginning right now. Such are the orders of Mayor Fitzgerald, which were yesterday put into the form of regulations by John M. Casey, the licensing clerk.

The Regulations

The regulations number 17 and are particularly commendable for brevity as well as the field covered. Yesterday copies were sent to the managers of all public dance halls, with instructions to see that they were strictly enforced. A failure to do so means a suspension of the license, if not its revocation. The same punishment holds good for violations of the rules.

The regulations follow:

1. Improper dancing will not be tolerated, persons so indulging will be immediately ejected.
2. No moonlight or shadow lighting effects. The hall must remain fully lighted.
3. Smoking permitted only in gentlemen's room, not in hall or corridors.
4. Singing either with or without the use of a megaphone during the time allotted for dancing not allowed.
5. Announcements of future dances by orchestra leader or other persons, and the distribution of cards, posters or handbills in hall, corridors or stairways advertising future dances are forbidden.
6. Gentlemen must not remain in ladies' rooms or parlors.

7. No dance shall continue after 1 o'clock a. m., unless by written permission of the mayor, and not later than 11:45 o'clock p. m. Saturdays.

8. A police officer shall be in attendance at all public dances.

9. Pass-out checks are not to be issued.

10. Matrons shall be employed at every public dance and have entire charge of ladies' rooms.

11. Minors under the age of 17 years shall not be admitted to hall unless accompanied by parent or guardian. This should be given special attention by the management and police officer.

12. Disorderly persons will be arrested for disturbing a public assembly.

13. Chairs and tables used for check lists must not be placed in hallways or stairways in such a manner as to block access from the hall.

14. All emergency exits from hall, including the entries and stairways of such exits, shall be properly lighted while the audience is in the hall.

15. By special instructions of the directors of the Musicians' union all orchestras are directed to obey the orders of the representative of the mayor to cease playing, should conditions so justify.

16. Any person defacing or removing these regulations will be prosecuted.

17. These regulations shall be posted in a conspicuous place in the hall.

POISON FOUND

Tablets on the Table of House Where Shackford Was Murdered

FREEDOM, N. H., Oct. 11.—Tablets labelled "Poison" were yesterday found in the house where Edwin Shackford was murdered on the night of Sept. 29. Bessie Littlefield Shackford, his wife, is being held without bail on the charge of murdering her husband. Hollis Wilbur, a farmhand, whom she charges with the crime, is also at Carroll county jail in Ossipee. He is being held as a witness unable to furnish $1000 bonds. Shackford died after two bullets had been shot into his head as he lay asleep.

Yesterday two white poison tablets were found in a clock in the dining room of the Shackford home. The governor, through Sheriff Arthur W. Chandler, claims that there was a plot to put Shackford out of the way. Whether or not the tablets figured in the alleged plot is not known.

James J. Storrow Will Not be Candidate for Mayor of Boston

BOSTON, Oct. 11.—James J. Storrow has absolutely refused to allow himself to be considered a possible mayoralty candidate for the coming city contest, according to the word which was quickly passed around yesterday among the members of the Citizens' Municipal League.

Now as a result of this withdrawal on his part, the chances of John A. Kolther and Thomas J. Kenney for an endorsement have taken quite a start among the league officials and members.

The Storrow refusal, it is said, came in answer to a direct question which was put to him as to whether he would be a candidate for the office, and that point, and he asked Mr. Storrow to take 10 days or more for the consideration of the matter.

Mr. Storrow did not think he needed the time, for he was determined to refuse; but the desire was so pronounced that he should view it from every possible angle, that he finally agreed. At the end of 10 days he said, he said that under no conditions could he consider entering the field.

BODIES FOUND IN WOODS

Mrs. Nichols, Whose Husband Was Murdered Yesterday, and Hired Man, the Victims

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Oct. 11.—The body of Mrs. Walter Nichols, wife of the man murdered at West Guilford yesterday, was found in the woods a short distance from the Nichols home today. Mrs. Nichols had been shot to death.

The details of the finding of Mrs. Nichols' body have not been received here. The place where the body was found is nine miles north of Brattleboro and in a sparsely settled section. Nichols, a farmer, about 27 years old, was found murdered yesterday in a road near his home. His skull having been fractured by blows from a hammer which was lying near the body.

Search for Ervin Wrisley, a farm hand employed by Nichols, was begun immediately after the discovery of the murder. Mrs. Nichols was missing and the authorities endeavored to find her. On the theory that Mrs. Nichols had been lured to the woods by the same person who killed her husband, a search of the woods was made today and resulted in the finding of the woman's body.

A neighbor of Nichols told the officers last night that he saw two men running along the road near where the man's body was found yesterday and that one of them fell suddenly and did not rise again. Later he heard the sound of two shots fired in the woods. The body of Wrisley, the farm hand, was found in the woods about 23 miles from the body of Mrs. Nichols. He had apparently killed himself with the third bullet from a revolver that lay near his right hand.

fortunately in the gale that the abandonment of the steamer followed on Thursday morning. A few details coming through by wireless promise a graphic story of the fight made by the crews of ten trans-Atlantic steamers who responded to the Voltorno's call.

The Voltorno sailed from Rotterdam October 2 for New York by way of Halifax, where it was due to stop next Monday.

It is believed that the steamer carried 24 cabin passengers, 540 steerage passengers and a crew of 53 men. The wireless reports say that 523 persons were saved, making 567 persons unaccounted for thus far.

Vessel Burning Fiercely

When the Carmania reached the vicinity of the Voltorno at noon she found the forward end of the vessel burning fiercely. The flaming ship was rolling heavily while her propellers were fouled with black smoke used in lowering her six lifeboats.

It was learned by the captain of the Carmania that only two out of the six lifeboats had succeeded in getting safely away from the Voltorno. The other four, crowded from stern to stern with passengers and members of the crew, had been smashed against the side of the vessel and all their occupants thrown into the sea and drowned.

In spite of the terrific gale raging when she arrived near the Voltorno the captain of the Carmania had one of his lifeboats lowered to help in the rescue. This was effected with much difficulty for even on the sea side of the Carmania the sea was terribly rough and it was only by extraordinary efforts that the small craft was prevented from being smashed or capsized as she left the side of the ship.

Battled With Waves

The Carmania's lifeboat, in charge of First Officer Gardiner, made a gallant but futile attempt to get alongside the doomed Voltorno. After two hours' battle with the waves, during which the lifeboat lost all but three of her oars, the rest being broken or torn from the hands of the crew, First Officer Gardiner returned to the Carmania, which he succeeded in making without loss of life or broken limbs among the members of his boat's crew. Captain Barr of the Carmania then maneuvered his big vessel very close to the Voltorno and hoisted a hundred feet of the Voltorno's stern. It was found impossible, however, to cast a line aboard the Voltorno or to get anybody on her.

Terrifying Sight

It was a terrifying sight for the passengers and crew of the Carmania to see so close to them the hundreds of passengers, including women and children, in horror-stricken faces on the decks of the Voltorno and yet be unable to help them.

A fleet of the passengers got into the Voltorno's life boats but a hundred of them had gathered at the after end of the burning vessel, whose crew at the same time continued in vain to fight the fire at her forward end.

Captain Barr of the Carmania in the meanwhile kept his wireless apparatus at work communicating with all the vessels within the radius of his instruments.

At four o'clock in the afternoon the Grosz Kurfurst and the Seelisch came in sight and the two vessels joined later in the afternoon by the Kronland, the Devonian, the Rappahannock, the Minneapolis, the Touraine, and the Asian.

Overwhelming Seas

The gale moderated slightly toward night and each of the rescuing ships, as soon as it was possible for her to do so, put out boats from her davits and lowered them to the sea. The waves, however, were so high that though the small craft made some progress in the direction of the Voltorno it was impossible for them to get alongside and they returned to their ships in most cases doing this with the greatest difficulty owing to the overwhelming seas and the darkness of the night.

The Carmania kept her searchlights going throughout the night, throwing their rays across the foaming seas in

AMERICANS ON VOLTORNO

Twenty-two of the ships which aided in the rescue of the Voltorno's passengers were west bound. They were the Kronland of the Red Star line and the Rappahannock owned by Furber, Whitney & Co. The Kronland left Boston for New York October 2 and ordinarily makes the trip in nine days but because of her stopping on the way she will be delayed and will not reach shore with the ninety of the Voltorno's passengers she carries until after Oct. 15.

The Rappahannock, from London, was due at St. John, N. B., about Oct. 12. Under the circumstances her departure will be moved up. She carried 15 of the Voltorno's passengers. The other vessels, all eastbound, carrying survivors are due approximately as follows:

Carmania due at Liverpool, Oct. 12. Devonian due at Harve, Oct. 12. Minneapolis due at London, Oct. 13. Grosz Kurfurst due at Rotterdam, Oct. 14. Rappahannock due at London, Oct. 17. Devonian due at Liverpool, Oct. 17. Grosz Kurfurst due at Bremen, Oct. 17.

Seelisch destination uncertain. There were no native born Americans on the Voltorno.

CAUSE, BARR OF CARMANIA, MAKES OFFICIAL REPORT ON THE DISASTER

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 11.—Capt. Barr, official report of the disaster sent to the office of the Canadian line here was filed on board the Carmania at 10:30 this morning. It says:

"The Voltorno was stranded on a reef of rocks Friday, Oct. 10, at 10:15 p.m. about 200 miles west of the Cape of Good Hope. The following is the list of those saved on board the ten assisting steamers:

Carmania 1; LaTouraine 50; Minneapolis 30; Rappahannock 18; Cear 12; Narragansett 25; Devonian 55; Kronland 50; Grosz Kurfurst 105; Seelisch 35. Total 511.

The figures given above make a total of only 511 but it is not known here whether one of the items or the total is incorrect.

There has evidently been an error in wireless transmission.

Captain Barr's report added:

"An incomplete list of those saved is on board the Carmania. I will forward it from Queenstown."

Advices have been received from the purser of the Voltorno that the original number on board that vessel when she sailed were 24 cabin passengers, 540 steerage passengers and 93 crew, making a total of 757. In this case, also, the figures and the total do not tally.

Captain Barr continues:

"The crew of the Voltorno was saved by the Kronland, the captain, chief second, third and fifth engineers and two telegraphers by the Narragansett, the boats and a steerage steward by the Cear and the purser and a surgeon by the Grosz Kurfurst. Nineteen of the names have not been received by me."

HUERTA ORDERS ARREST

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 11.—Provisional President Huerta's coup last night, whereby he rid himself in a spectacular manner of the legislative bodies of the government and constituted himself a dictator of the Mexican republic has left the city today in a state of tense expectancy. The dissolution of the national congress was not wholly unexpected in political circles, but it served to demonstrate the lengths to which the executive was prepared to go to maintain his grasp upon the administrative affairs of the nation.

The capital was alive with rumors this morning, one of them being to the effect that three deputies arrested last night who were most active in the matter of precipitating the clash with Gen. Huerta had disappeared. The report was not given much credence. President Huerta before the arrests were made had given the word that none of the deputies would be harmed.

Sen. Dominguez, whose attack of the provisional president in the senate was the starting point of the row, has not come to light. He is said to have prepared for eventualities in advance. Having determined upon his line of conduct, he made his will and bade his family and friends good bye, declaring that he expected to pay for his efforts with his life. By many the senator is believed to have made his escape from the country.

The dissolution of the national congress was based upon the alleged usurpation by the deputies and senators of the prerogatives of the chief executive in the matter of Senator Dominguez.

Provisional President Huerta declared that the chamber of deputies had constituted itself one of the executive's worst enemies, hostile to all his acts and invading his jurisdiction even to a point of questioning his election of a minister of state. By its demagogic tendencies, Gen. Huerta declared, it had attacked the basis of the existence of the nation and had taken upon itself all branches of the government. He declared his patience with the body had been taxed to the limit.

The president referred to the recent refusal of the chamber to grant leave to Deputy Tamayo to occupy the public instruction portfolio on the grounds of his affiliation with the Catholic party. He also referred to the recent investigation instigated by Jose Limantour, certain acts of Jose Limantour,

JOHN B. CLANCY

Advices Health Officers to Keep Away From His Mare's Heels

John B. Clancy called at City Solicitor Hennessy's office this forenoon and asked for a copy of the complaint, to which he will make answer in the superior court at Boston next Wednesday morning.

John B. is up against the board of health and the court has been asked to grant an injunction restraining him from maintaining a stable in Floyd street. There has been considerable talk about this stable, in and out of court, and John B. said today that he would fight the issue to the last ditch.

Jessie being a man of affairs, John B. is also more or less familiar with the law and legal matters in general. His voice has been heard many times in the superior and inferior courts and eloquent has been his plea before Judge and jury.

When Mr. Hennessy passed Mr. Clancy a copy of the bill of complaint, he asked John B. if he would conduct his own case in court.

"The thing is getting a bit serious," quoth John B. "and I think it will be necessary for me to have reinforcements. In the event of being refused assistance by the local lore of Lowell, I can call upon the attorney-general, and I may do that game."

"Did you hear what I said to Mr. Hennessy?" said John to the Sun reporter who happened around when John received a copy of the bill of complaint.

"I got you Steve," said the reporter. "But I didn't mean it," said John. "Sure I'm not asking the attorney-general for anything," continued the owner of the condemned stable in Floyd street, "but I just wanted to let His Majesty, the solicitor, know that I was wise to my rights."

"Now the truth of the matter is that the solicitor and the board of health are doing badly. I've got them on the hip and they know it. I have defeated them in practically every court in which they have been up against me. John W. McEvoy is my counsel and he will be on deck Wednesday morning to look after my interests."

"I have a mare that's a bit of a kicker at times and I let her do all the kicking. I take things about as they come, but when I start I never quit. I don't know what the mare thinks about the stable being condemned, but I would advise the city solicitor and the wise guys on the board of health to keep a respectable distance from her heels."

HUERTA ORDERS ARREST

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 11.—Provisional President Huerta's coup last night, whereby he rid himself in a spectacular manner of the legislative bodies of the government and constituted himself a dictator of the Mexican republic has left the city today in a state of tense expectancy. The dissolution of the national congress was not wholly unexpected in political circles, but it served to demonstrate the lengths to which the executive was prepared to go to maintain his grasp upon the administrative affairs of the nation.

The capital was alive with rumors this morning, one of them being to the effect that three deputies arrested last night who were most active in the matter of precipitating the clash with Gen. Huerta had disappeared. The report was not given much credence. President Huerta before the arrests were made had given the word that none of the deputies would be harmed.

Sen. Dominguez, whose attack of the provisional president in the senate was the starting point of the row, has not come to light. He is said to have prepared for eventualities in advance. Having determined upon his line of conduct, he made his will and bade his family and friends good bye, declaring that he expected to pay for his efforts with his life. By many the senator is believed to have made his escape from the country.

The dissolution of the national congress was based upon the alleged usurpation by the deputies and senators of the prerogatives of the chief executive in the matter of Senator Dominguez.

Provisional President Huerta declared that the chamber of deputies had constituted itself one of the executive's worst enemies, hostile to all his acts and invading his jurisdiction even to a point of questioning his election of a minister of state. By its demagogic tendencies, Gen. Huerta declared, it had attacked the basis of the existence of the nation and had taken upon itself all branches of the government. He declared his patience with the body had been taxed to the limit.

The president referred to the recent refusal of the chamber to grant leave to Deputy Tamayo to occupy the public instruction portfolio on the grounds of his affiliation with the Catholic party. He also referred to the recent investigation instigated by Jose Limantour, certain acts of Jose Limantour,

Advices Health Officers to Keep Away From His Mare's Heels

John B. Clancy called at City Solicitor Hennessy's office this forenoon and asked for a copy of the complaint, to which he will make answer in the superior court at Boston next Wednesday morning.

John B. is up against the board of health and the court has been asked to grant an injunction restraining him from maintaining a stable in Floyd street. There has been considerable talk about this stable, in and out of court, and John B. said today that he would fight the issue to the last ditch.

Jessie being a man of affairs, John B. is also more or less familiar with the law and legal matters in general. His voice has been heard many times in the superior and inferior courts and eloquent has been his plea before Judge and jury.

When Mr. Hennessy passed Mr. Clancy a copy of the bill of complaint, he asked John B. if he would conduct his own case in court.

"The thing is getting a bit serious," quoth John B. "and I think it will be necessary for me to have reinforcements. In the event of being refused assistance by the local lore of Lowell, I can call upon the attorney-general, and I may do that game."

DENTAL CLINIC IS KEPT BUSY

Dr. Kent, the School Dentist, Expects Rush of Children

The School Visitors Will Now Examine Children's Teeth

The dental clinic, located in the Worthen street school has been a busy spot for the past two weeks and nearly a hundred children from different sections of the city have been offered the opportunity of having their teeth treated at the expense of the city.

The work is done by Dr. E. A. Kent and between ten and fourteen children ranging from 10 to 16 years of age are treated there daily. The clinic is open from 9 to 12 o'clock every morning with the exception of Saturday and Sunday and Dr. Kent is prepared to take care of any dental work that may come in. The defects in the children's teeth are discovered by the school principal and Miss Alice M. French, who is known as the school visitor, makes all arrangements for the appointment with the dentist. A record is kept containing the child's name and the style of work that is done.

It is believed that after the work has been carried on a short time the number of children who will visit the clinic each day, will be greatly increased as during the past, little attention has been given to the teeth of a number of the children. The work done during the past two weeks has been very favorably commented upon by both principals of schools and the parents of the children.

NEW BUILDINGS MILITARY HIKE

Many Attractive Structures in Process of Construction

Local contractors are complaining that there is very little doing in Lowell in the line of new buildings, but nevertheless most of the men are kept busy on repairs of all descriptions.

Contractor Charles A. Morton is constructing an eight-room house, two stories and a half with pantry and bath and all modern conveniences for Mrs. E. T. Rowell, in Methuen street. The house will be of Colonial style and will cost about $3000.

John W. Dwyer is having a fine two-apartment house built at the corner of Waverly avenue and Park avenue east. Each apartment will contain seven rooms with pantry and bath and steam heat, as well as hardwood floors. Contractor Charles Varum is in charge of the construction and his men are now finishing the interior.

Mr. Dwyer will occupy one of the flats.

Contractor James Whitteit was awarded the contract for the repairing of the Harvard Brewing Co's stable in Payne street, which was gutted by fire some time ago, and his men are busy reconstructing the building, the cost of which will be about $4000. Mr. Whitteit has also considerable other repair work on hand.

William H. Penn is building an eight-room cottage for James Norton in Chelmsford street and another for William Golding in Canton street. Both houses will be of the most modern type.

Arthur C. Spalding is having a two-story brick residence constructed in Holywood avenue, the work being done by Contractor Percy Varum. This same party is also changing a cottage house into a two-apartment house in Loring street for John Swett.

The Burton H. Wiggin Co. is building a $35,000 brick residence for Harris H. Richmond in Winchester, as well as a boiler house for the Willington Fears Co. in North Woburn.

Three Local Companies Will Take Part in Big Event on Monday

Three walking teams representing Companies C, G and K of the sixth regiment will leave the local depot at 7:55 o'clock Monday morning for Cambridge to compete in the big hike that is to be held under the auspices of the state militia. Each team will consist of sixteen men and a leader and the men will carry their rifle bayonets and other military equipment. The uniforms will be of olive drab.

The teams will start from Cambridge at 10 o'clock for Wakefield, a distance of fourteen miles, and they will fire five shots at each of three unknown ranges. About fifty sets of men will take part and the hike will be one of the most important held for some time. Captain Walter Jones of this city will be one of the judges at the finish and Lieut. Waller, also of this city, will be an inspector on the road. It is understood that a number of local men are to accompany the teams to Cambridge to witness the start.

MRS. WALKER ELECTED

LAWRENCE, Oct. 11.—Miss Phoebe A. Walker of this city has been elected to teach in the Lowell Normal Training school at South Tewksbury. She is a graduate of the local high school in 1909 and of the Lowell Normal school in 1911. She has had three years' experience in rural school work in Londonderry, N. H., and comes well recommended to her new work.

Miss Walker is one of the well known members of the younger set and has the best wishes of success from her host of friends.

The many friends of Miss Cora A. Phaneuf of Salem street will be grieved to learn she is confined to her home with a severe illness. The young woman left Lowell a few days ago for Montreal, Que., where she was to attend the annual reunion of the Phaneuf family. Upon her arrival in the Canadian metropolis she was stricken with a severe illness, and removed to the Cowan hotel, where she was confined a couple of days. Finally when it was seen she was not making any progress, she was removed to Lowell.

ATHLETICS DEFEAT GIANTS

Make Lead in the Series Three Games to One by Winning 6-5—Bender on Mound

SHIBE PARK, Philadelphia, Oct. 11.—The Athletics, champion of the American league, won their third victory in the world's series of 1913 by defeating the New York Giants by a score of 6 to 5 in the fourth game of the series for the championship laurels of baseball.

Twenty thousand people saw a contest in which the Athletics took a six-run lead over their opponents only to have it cut down to a scant one run when the New Yorks fell upon the Indian pitcher's delivery and with a fusillade of six hits sent five runs over the plate. Bender held the Giants to two hits in the first six innings and then was found freely. Merkle's home run and Shaffer's three-bagger featured the hitting. A circus catch by Oldring cut off a run for New York. The Athletics' defense was perfect. The Athletics have now three games and the New Yorks one game in the series. The two teams play at the Polo grounds today and Christy Mathewson will undoubtedly face the Athletics.

First Inning
Snodgrass popped out to Baker. Doyle went out to high one to Strunk. Barry threw out Fletcher. It was a quick play. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Murphy died out to Snodgrass. Oldring shot a long hit into right field for three bases. He smashed the first ball pitched. The New York players gathered around Demaree to encourage him. With Eddie Collins and a run likely the crowd roared itself hoarse. Demaree, smiling, pitched a ball to Collins. The second pitch fouled off. Oldring was out at the plate when Merkle took Collins' grounder and threw to McLean, who tagged the runner as he slid into the plate. Collins stole second, while Demaree held the ball for a minute. Demaree then threw to Merkle, whose throw to second was too late to catch Eddie. Baker out on a high foul to Shaffer. No runs; one hit; no errors.

Second Inning
Burns died out to Murphy. Shaffer fanned. Bender guiding his weak spot by keeping the ball around Shaffer's neck. Murray was hit on the arm by a pitched ball and went to first, growling at Bender. McLean singled to right, sending Murray to third. Merkle fouled out to McInnis, who took the ball over the Giant's dugout. No runs; one hit; no errors.

McInnis got a Texas leaguer to center, which the limping Snodgrass could not reach. It was a lucky hit for McInnis. Strunk out, scorching. Demaree to Merkle. Demaree used a slow drop ball on the outside corner of the plate. Merkle dropped Barry's foul after a good run. The official scorer gave it an error. McInnis scored on Barry's long two base drive to left field. Barry claimed that Merkle interfered with him as he rounded first base, but the claim was not allowed. Schang walked after Demaree had two strikes on him. Bender fled out to Burns. Murphy died out to Snodgrass. One run, two hits, one error.

Third Inning
Demaree died out to Murphy. Snodgrass out, bunting. Bender to McInnis. Doyle died out to Strunk. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Herzog went out to play third base and Shaffer went back to centerfield, replacing Snodgrass, whose strained leg began to bother him again. Demaree took Oldring's home run and threw him out at first. Burns caught Collins' fly. Doyle took care of Baker, throwing him out at first. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Fourth Inning
Fletcher offered vigorous objection when Umpire Egan called a strike on him. Then he fled out to Collins. Burns popped up a fly to Baker. Bender appeared to have more "smoke" than during his first game against the Giants. The Indian broke his curves around the knees and then shot fast ones shoulder-high across the plate. Shaffer fanned out for the second time and angrily pitched his bat the bench. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Doyle threw out McInnis. Strunk bounced a hit off Herzog's legs. McLean almost caught Strunk off first by a quick throw to Merkle. Barry singled to left and Strunk took third on Shaffer's throw to catch. Strunk at third. Barry went to second.

The New Yorks then drew in Strunk and Barry scored on Schang's single to center. Schang took second on Shaffer's heave to the plate to catch Barry. Schang went to third on a passed ball. Schang scored when Merkle made a mull of Bender's grounder. Murphy popped out to Doyle. Oldring singled to center. Bender went to second. McLean threw out Collins at first. Three runs; four hits; one error.

Fifth Inning
Murray walked. Chief Bender pitching four wide ones in succession. McLean got a single to center. Murray going to third. Cooper ran for McLean. Schang almost caught Cooper napping off first with a snap throw. Merkle fanned. McCormick batted in place of Demaree. Oldring caught McCormick's fly after a head run toward the diamond. It cut off an attempt to hit and a run for the Giants. Cooper out stealing. Schang to Collins. No runs; one hit; no errors.

Marquard now pitching for New York. Baker fanned. Marquard kept the ball on the far corner of the plate. Baker and the very low. Marquard threw out McInnis. Marquard lost control and Strunk walked on four pitched balls. Barry got a two base hit, Strunk going to third. Burns made a splendid try for the ball on the run but he over ran it. Strunk and Barry scored on Schang's single to center. The Athletics fans cried derisively: "Put in Matty." Marquard threw out Bender. Two runs, two hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning
Barry threw out Herzog. Doyle beat the air viciously and went out on strikes. As Fletcher came to the plate he jokingly made a move as if to hit Umpire Egan on the head with his bat. Fletcher out on a fly to Strunk. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Doyle tossed out Murphy at first. Oldring struck out. Wilson throwing him out at first. Collins popped out to Fletcher. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Seventh Inning
Wilson went in with Marquard to catch for New York. Burns scratched an infield hit. It was the Giant's third hit of the game. Shaffer tied out to Collins. It was announced that the official attendance was 20,545 and the receipts $4,545. Murray singled to left, Burns to second. Wilson struck out and Burns and Murray executed a double steal. Baker dropped Schang's throw to catch Burns when the double steal was made. Burns and Murray and Merkle scored when Merkle drove the ball into the left field bleachers for a home run. Bender threw out Marquard. Three runs; three hits; no errors.

Baker out on a fly to Herzog. McInnis fouled out to Herzog. Doyle threw out Strunk. No runs; no hits; no errors.

Eighth Inning
Herzog singled. This is the Giant's third baseman's first hit during the series. Herzog was forced at second when Collins took Doyle's grounder and tossed to Barry. Doyle was forced at second when Bender took Fletcher's hot smash and tossed to Barry. It was a good stop by Bender and shut out a hit. Fletcher scored on Burns' double to left. Burns scored on Shaffer's three base hit to right. The Giants were leading 6-5 when Bender appeared to be firing. Collins threw out Murphy. Two runs; three hits; no errors.

Barry died out to Murray. Schang walked. Bender fled out to Murray. Schang was forced at second when Burns took Murray's grounder and touched second. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Ninth Inning
Crandall batted for Wilson. Collins threw out Crandall. Merkle died out to Murphy. Grant batted in place of Marquard. Grant fouled to Schang.

"BULLET JOE" BUSH, AGED 20, A GIANT KILLER;
OLDRING HEADS BOMBARDMENT, THIRD GAME

BUSH IN ACTION

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—Leslie J. Bush, called "Bullet Joe," was the bright, shining star of the third world's series game. This young pitcher of the Athletic baseball machine, though only twenty years old, kept the Giants down to five scattered hits and only two runs. Bush batted from the same town that the famous Indian, Bender, came from, Brainerd, Mont., where one of the Athletics' scouts rounded him up. During the recent American league season Bush improved steadily, so that a month ago Mack told him to be prepared to take part in the world's series. Oldring was a tower of strength for the Athletics during the third game. He is shown in the picture safe at

GIANTS IN LAST DITCH

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—It was under far different circumstances than those that prevailed on the occasion of their last previous meeting, here that the Athletics and Athletics prepared today to play the fifth game of the 1913 world's series. Then the count in games was one and last was even and it was a toss-up as to which would prove the ultimate victor. Today the Mackmen needed but this single game to assure them of the world's laurels in baseball while for the Giants it was a last-ditch stand.

It was with confidence that the Philadelphiaans this morning set about preparations for the fray of the day, but not their adherents declared with an over-confidence that would make them play carelessly. The spirited rally of McGraw's men in yesterday's game at Philadelphia when apparently overwhelmingly beaten they had lashed on Chief Bender and pounded out enough runs to make the issue doubtful up to the last moment, had taught the Athletics thorough respect for their opponents' gameness and power of recuperation.

Giants Still Confident
Fandom prepared to make the most of its chance—possibly its last chance this year—to see the champions of the two big leagues in action should the weather permit a game. Encouraged by the brilliant stand of the National league standard bearers toward the close of the struggle in Philadelphia, the hope existed among the supporters of McGraw's men that the series might be pulled out of the fire.

It was recalled that last year after the Boston Red Sox had tucked away three games of the series to the Giants, the latter had rallied and taken the next two, forcing the series to no limit and only leaving the deciding contest by reason of Snodgrass' fatal mull that permitted the winning Boston run to be tallied in the tenth inning. Visions of this act as a spur to the throng of local fans whose descent upon the grounds was on a considerable force long before the gates were opened, even though a misty rain was falling.

The Pitchers
Whether the game of the day would turn out to be another battle royal between the veteran pitchers of the two teams, Mathewson and Plank, was a secret that the morning failed to reveal for while it was a practical certainty that McGraw would select the "old master" to do the twirling for the Giants there was no telling before the game time who Mack would assign to the hurling mound. Shewker was regarded as a likely selection should Plank be kept out of it, although Carroll Brown has been longed for a chance to pitch in one of remaining six sessions. In the sixth, seventh and eighth rounds Lenney had Morgan holding on. The Boston boxer forced the fighting all the way and started the blood from Morgan's nose in the sixth. In the last two rounds body punches and jabs on his bleeding nose had Morgan tired.

The affair was called a draw. The two preliminary bouts were slashing affairs. Young River and Kid Hamilton put up a great battle for six rounds. Hamilton has been seen often but River is a recent entrant into the ring game. Hamilton is short and stocky while River is just his opposite in stature. This bout was declared a draw.

In the other preliminary Willie Jones and Young Tibbets met in a good draw. Both boys started in fast and worked themselves out trying to put over a haymaker. Neither boxer seemed to know what his left hand was for but made up for this with terrific right hand swings. It was a good draw and was highly enjoyed by the spectators.

ON THE ALLEYS
Many Very Interesting Matches Were Rolled Last Evening

The Merrimack Print Boys club were outlasted last night when they met the P. B. C. rollers in a match game. The latter team put up a total of 1257 to that of the Print Room's 1247. Vote of the losers was high single string man with 102. Muller of the winning aggregation put up the highest three string total of 217. The score:

TO DEVELOP ATHLETES

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—A new plan prepared by the English Amateur Athletic association for the development of English athletes for the Olympic games at Berlin in 1916 has attracted favorable attention both at home and abroad. It is proposed to create interest and enthusiasm in track and field sports in all grades of competition from the school boy to the club athlete. A systematic series of championship games at standard measurable distances is planned, beginning with public school championships and continuing through every classification of English athletes up to the national championships.

The program includes: Public school championships—Under the approval and cooperation of the head masters, and a committee from the schools to accept entries and to manage the meeting. County championships—To take place in counties where they do not at present exist at metric distances. Triangular Olympic Contests—Triangular contests between England, Scotland and Ireland at metric distances. Olympic Field Events—To include these in the Amateur Athletic association championships, and introduce such field events which are not at present included, and if possible, to arrange for a two-days' meeting. Scratch Races—To assist affiliated clubs with prizes, provided they include approved scratch races at metric distances in their program. Such races to include scratch races during 1913 and 1914 for novices, open only to competitors who have never won a prize in athletics. Ordinary school competitions—To be called Olympic novice trials. The events to be held, and open only to competitors over seventeen years of age who have never won a prize at athletics, ordinary school competitions, and junior sections of athletic clubs not to count as wins.

On the question of training and training, the A. A. A. officials have announced that the question of training has been considered at length, and it was agreed that necessary arrangements should be made for central quarters in London and other centers, such as Manchester, Birmingham, Cardiff and Newcastle, where an official trainer and adviser would be on the track at a set hour to advise and help approved athletes. It was decided also to provide proper sets of apparatus for field events at various centers, to hold Olympic trials in 1915 and to have every affiliated club or permitted body to include a field event in their program. In order to carry out a general effort on the part of athletes to better their times and distances, the A. A. A. proposes to award standard medals, gold, silver and bronze, to athletes beating standards at Olympic distances, these standards to be fixed for all metric scratch and field events, no athletes to hold more than one medal for each class or any one distance.

Athletes at Yale
An air of earnestness pervades the athletes at Yale university this fall which is in marked contrast to the rather indifferent attitude which has marked the past seasons. On all sides there is an earnest awakening to the need of getting out of the rut if the Blue is to keep its record of winning a fair share of the contests in which its teams are entered. It is not alone in the major sports that this new spirit is evidenced, but in the minor competitions as well. Although football and fall rowing now hold the attention of the majority of the students, the coaches and managers of the winter sport teams are actively engaged in preparing for strong squads and schedules.

An example of the new spirit at New Haven, the Yale Basketball association has decided to enter a varsity eleven in the Intercollegiate Basketball league this winter. The Blue with draw from the league last winter owing to lack of interest and financial support on the part of the student body. It has been decided, however, that in order to stimulate interest in basketball at Yale it will be necessary to have the university represented in the league again. As a result of this decision Captain H. D. Swihart will call the candidates together at the end of November and place them in charge of Coach Haskell Noyes, captain of the Yale championship teams of 1907 and 1908. Since his graduation Noyes has coached the University of Wisconsin with remarkable success.

The hockey squads will also start earlier than usual this season in order that the varsity team may have the benefit of a number of practice games prior to the opening of the intercollegiate series. Conditions for practice and play will be far superior to those existing during previous years. A new artificial ice rink will be available at New Haven this winter, and the Yale seven will have the same opportunity for training as Harvard has in the Boston rink and Columbia in the New York rink. The new rink will have a playing surface of close to 40,000 square feet and will be equipped with locker rooms, showers, and dressing rooms. The rink which is a business enterprise and not connected with university athletics, will be located within a few blocks of the campus. Hereafter the Yale hockey players have been obliged to ride to the edge of Yale field in order to use the open-air rink, which proved unsatisfactory except in the coldest weather.

The Aeroplane
Regardless of the divergences of opinion relative to the practicability of the aeroplane for pleasure or commercial purposes or for warfare, there can be no question as to its speed possibilities. The wonderful record of Maurice Prevost, who averaged 124.80 miles per hour in the recent 124.25 mile international cup race as Rheims, France, brings speed to a point that battles the imagination. To travel at the rate of better than two miles per minute is an experience that is accounted to few and desired by even fewer. When Wilbur Wright made the first flight in a motor-driven aeroplane at Kitty Hawk, Del., on December 17, 1903, it was doubtful if he ever conceived of such a future for the aeroplane. In his initial journey through the atmosphere Wright traveled 432 feet in a trifle less than one minute, giving his machine a speed of approximately a mile in six minutes, or within ten years the speed of the aeroplane has been increased more than one thousand per cent.

On land or water, there is no record of sustained speed over a course of similar length that can compare with Prevost's time of 55 minutes 15.3 seconds for the 124.25 miles covered. The one hundred mile automobile record is 72 minutes 15.5 seconds; motorcycle 72 minutes 24.5 seconds. In the realm of the motorboat there is nothing that exceeds even a basis of comparison.

Even in the records of short dashes by motor-driven wheeled racers there are few that show a speed per hour greater than Prevost's. Glenn Curtiss, who won the first international aviation cup race, is credited with a dash of better than two miles per minute made over Florida beach sands with a home-made motorboat some years ago. The one-mile automobile record made by a Buick at Dayton, Fla., two years ago is 25.10 seconds. Both these races were over a measured mile with long flying starts. The mile-a-minute motorboat is just arriving, but the two-mile-a-minute water racer, either motorboat or hydroaeroplane, is still below the horizon.

CARD OF THANKS
We, the undersigned, wish to thank our many friends who in our late bereavement helped to lighten the burden of our sorrow by their kind words and loyal tributes. We assure all that we will always hold them in grateful remembrance.
Mr. and Mrs. James E. Dolan and Family.

Another member of the Home Club, Stephen forward, Mr. Merkle. Will there be any more members added to the list as it stands today, Baker, Schang and Merkle?

Christy Mathewson is the last "four leaf" hope of the McGraw camp. Whether or not Matty can stem the tide of the various Athletic batters will soon be decided.

Connie Mack showed good judgment in leaving Bender in the box yesterday. If New York had batted the Indian twice in the ninth, Mack would have caused a lot of criticism.

Demaree was watched in the bullpen and found wanting. It was hard on him, though, to have those slaps and behind for repeatedly trying upon the recent twister. If the slaps and played errorless ball would Demaree the result might have been much different.

Oldring's catch of McCormick's had line smash yesterday was the most spectacular that has been pulled off in the series. If the Athletic centerfielder had let it get away from him two runs would have resulted. Oldring picked the ball from off his shoestrings.

It looks new as though Charlie Brickley has the call over Mahan for the season's kicking. Brickley can do it better than that ball when he has to and with Mahan pressing him up year he will perhaps show better than last year.

Here are some of the leading batters in the series played thus far in the world's series: Collins, 138; Baker, 137; Schang, 136; Barry, 135; Oldring, 134. For the Giants, 507; McLean, 504; McCormick, 502; Burns, 501; Merkle, 500; Fletcher, 499; Strunk, 498.

Baker and Tibbets are two young stars who know nothing about the game but they do love to play. The right hand swings that they two start are wonderful if they only had Jones is built after the style of Joe Thomas and has the makings of a good boy if he ever learns and they may have the game.

Doyle and Merkle have been matched to look at the opening of the new athletic club at Windsor Locks, Conn. Johnny is a clever boxer and has a wicked left hook which will carry him far if he only takes care of himself.

The football game between Lowell and Lawrence academy which will take place at Spaulding park on Columbus day should prove a close affair. The Lowell school boys are headed up as the logical winners of the contest.

The discussion of the school work at this meeting was most interesting.

people on the inside who lay claim to being public spirited. Mr. Molloy was very firm in the belief that part time education would be a great way to help the situation. He said it was asking a great deal of the boy and girl to work all day and go to school at night. He said it saved too much of burning the candle at both ends.

Dr. Lambert, chairman of the school board, thought that the part time scheme was a very good one and he gave the commission some advice about it when he stated that he did not believe the mill men, the employers, were in full sympathy with the new minor law. In a hop, step and a jump covering the employment of mill help in Lowell, Dr. Lambert made the statement that the Irish drove the French, in turn, drove the Irish out and the Greeks, in turn, drove the French out.

In speaking of the conditions here of the Greeks who work in the mills, Dr. Lambert, in reply to questions by the chairman said that a great many of the Greek men took their meals in the Greek coffee houses, but no sooner had he made this statement than the Greek men in the other end of the room hollered: "No! No!"

Superintendent Molloy Bernard J. Rothwell, chairman of the commission, opened the meeting at 7:15 o'clock and called upon Supt. Molloy. The latter said that the evening elementary schools will open next Tuesday and that these schools will appeal mostly to those people who are illiterate in English. Many Greeks, Armenians, Poles and other foreigners will attend these schools. Separate classes for the different nationalities will be maintained. The chairman wanted to know if primary ethics, hygiene, civility and city ordinances could be taught these pupils. Mr. Molloy testified that he would be well to teach some of the local ordinances.

"Is the school board trying to reach any of the adults?" asked the chairman.

"I don't think anything has been done in that line,"

"Does the idea commend itself to you?"

"Not unless it could be taken with the idea of teaching these adults exclusively, apart from the teaching of minors."

The chairman said in some places the idea of visiting these adults in their homes and instructing them along certain lines is advanced.

Mr. Molloy believed it a good, but hardly a feasible plan.

"In Lowell, as elsewhere, are a very considerable number who neglect or refuse to avail themselves of the opportunity offered?" asked the chairman.

"Could these adults who do not speak English, be compelled to learn the language? If they refuse, would you let the matter pass by, or would you take means to compel them to learn?"

"I don't think I can answer that question."

"Do you think the age limit should be advanced for illiterates?"

"It would depend somewhat upon their accomplishments in their native tongue."

Chairman Rothwell said he believed the commission felt the same way about it.

Mr. Spaulding asked: "Has every thing possible been done to assimilate the non-English speaking foreigners and are they being as rapidly assimilated as would be expected?"

"I feel that everything within reason is being done, but I do not know about the assimilation. I don't know how long it takes on an average to bring about assimilation."

"Have you thought of any other possible means of educating the foreigners between 16 and 21 years of age, aside from the evening schools?"

"I am willing to go on record as saying that part time education will do much in many cases. I feel that with many minors the full day of labor without the evening school, is too much. From the state's economic point of view it means the burning of the candle at both ends. Part time means far better education, and it also goes down the hours of that which is also going to sap the strength of the citizens of the future. We should give to those, so far as able who are well."

Mr. O'Brien, another member of the committee, asked what percentage of the evening teaching force are day teachers. Mr. Molloy said a very small per cent of them.

"In many cities," said Mr. O'Brien, "most of the teachers in the evening schools are day teachers."

"Could you get a more efficient force if you paid them double what they are receiving now?" asked Mr. Rothwell.

"I doubt it," replied Mr. Molloy.

Dr. John H. Lambert

Dr. Lambert, chairman of the school committee, said the attendance of foreigners at the evening schools dropped off perceptibly around the first of the year in the holiday season. Accordingly, the school committee gave them as much schooling as possible before the holiday arrived.

In reply to a question by the chairman Dr. Lambert said he thought there was a lack of co-operation on the part of employers with relation to the new minor law. He said that the way the law is now working shows a slip somewhere.

"What in your judgment brought 40,000 non-English speaking foreigners to Lowell?"

"The industries, the mills,"

"Who induced those 40,000 to come here?"

"I don't know. The Irish came, and then the French, and the Greeks have come in."

In reply to questions by Mr. Spaulding of the committee relative to the parochial schools, Dr. Lambert said that the parochial schools had never been formally approved by the school committee. He said he hoped before the year is over to see the parochial schools approved or disapproved.

Dr. Lambert said he had asked the superintendent to make inquiries relative to the standing of the parochial school to ascertain if the standard was in keeping with the public schools. He said that this information had not yet been supplied by the superintendent.

William F. Thornton

Head Attendance Officer Thornton said that under the present law minors are compelled to go to school whether they work or not. He did not favor extending the age limit and he said that he did not agree with certain statements made by the chairman of the school board. He said that the law had been very much up to the present time, but that there had been no laxity in the enforcement of the law.

Mr. Thornton said that a majority of the foreigners who attend the evening schools learn little of the English language because they are obliged to go to school. He said they never think of speaking or trying to speak the English language when they can speak their own tongue.

"That is a very severe arraignment of your own system," said Mr. O'Brien, and the chairman said Mr. Thornton's statement was entirely out of line with any statement that the commission had heard thus far. He said that in some cities they guarantee to familiarize the foreigners with the English language in four years.

"Your evening schools must be better than if what you say is true," said Mr. Rothwell.

In reply to a question by one of the commission members, Mr. Thornton said he found a hearty co-operation on the part of the employers of minors and the school authorities.

Commissioner Cummings Com. Cummings asked Mr. Thornton a few questions and told the commission that he did not agree with many of Mr. Thornton's statements. Mr. Cummings told of his experience on the school board. Mr. Cummings said that some time in the past the school board had formally approved the parochial schools.

Rev. Alexander Ogonski

Rev. Alexander Ogonski, pastor of Holy Trinity Polish church, said there are about 1000 Poles in Lowell, more males than females and about 1200 are children. He said the great desire of a majority of his people is to save enough money to buy a little land. They are much better off in the country, he said, than in the city where there are so many vagabonds.

Wife of Missionary Mrs. Viates, wife of a Greek Protestant missionary, asked how many pupils are allotted to each teacher in the evening schools.

Dr. Lambert said usually 15 or 20, although sometimes there are as few as 12.

Mrs. Viates, who was introduced by Rev. Mr. Ferrin of the High Street Congregational church, was asked several questions relative to the local Greeks and it was very evident that some of the Greeks present did not think she was in a position to know much about the conditions surrounding the Greeks in this city.

"I ask if her knowledge is not too limited and biased because of religious prejudice?" asked Mr. Rothwell, but his question went unanswered.

Others called upon by the chairman of the commission included Agent Bates of the board of health. Mr. Bates answered numerous questions and said that housing conditions are much better in Lowell today than they were a few years ago.

Other speakers at the hearing included Supt. Welch of the police department, Mrs. Union of the Y. M. C. A., and Mr. Yarnell of the Y. M. C. A. The hearing lasted until about 1:30 o'clock this morning.

The commission was very much interested in what Supt. Welch had to say and he offered some suggestions that the commission allowed were very good. The superintendent also spoke of the Greek population of Lowell. He said that the Greeks are a law abiding people and that Lowell has more Greeks than any other city in the country except Chicago. "About all of the serious trouble that we have ever experienced in the local Greek colony," said Mr. Welch, "was due to some old fellow coming the meeting up of a punishment accepted now in the home country. The Greeks of Lowell are a law abiding, Christian people and I take exception to a statement made here tonight to the effect that Lowell's foreign population is a menace to the city. There is less crime in this city today, according to the population, than twenty years ago. Lowell is improving in every way" he said, "and in the carrying out of any law I have met with the heartiest co-operation on the part of employers."

Mr. Welch advocated compulsory education and believed there should be an age limit. He said that every foreigner should be obliged to learn to read and write and to speak the English language, and when he was able to do so, he would suggest as a means to help that about Mr. Welch said that a jail sentence, in his estimation, would be about the best thing. He thought if the foreigner was made to understand that he or she must learn the English language, he would be able to do so. He thought there would be very little to it. They would get paid to learn and learn the language. A jail sentence of a week or two would suffice, he said. Asked if he thought it would be a good scheme to deny the foreigner work until he had mastered the English language, Mr. Welch replied that that would be a good way to increase the number of tramp or hobnobers.

The commissioner intended to hold another hearing this afternoon, but finally decided to visit the Greek colony and the visit was made this forenoon.

HELD IN $50,000

Providence Banker Indicted on Charge of Misapplying Funds

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 11.—The extraordinary grand jury in the United States court resulted yesterday in five indictments growing out of the federal probe into the collapse of the Atlantic National bank here last April.

The bank failed with about $3,500,000 liabilities, only a few days after the resignation of Pres. Edward F. Metcalf. He was arraigned in the United States district court before Judge Brown yesterday afternoon to plead to an indictment charging misapplication of funds to the amount of about $200,000.

In suggesting the amount of the bond Gen. Walter R. Stines, the United States district attorney, said that the loss to the bank exceeds $150,000.

Col. P. H. Quinn, attorney for Ex-Pres. Metcalf, entered a plea of not guilty and was given 10 days in which to withdraw or amend the plea and furnish a bond of $50,000.

Metcalf's bond was $50,000

At 6:15 last night the bonds were signed and a moment later Metcalf walked out of court. The sureties are Robert E. Budlong, Jonathan B. Slade, Mrs. Margaret M. Horton, Jarvis S. Horton and the Fidelity Bond and Deposit Co. of Maryland.

Included in the indictment were Dr. R. Farrar, James F. Allen, Henry E. DeKay and John W. DeKay, all of New York, who are charged with aiding and abetting Metcalf, while among the half dozen who sat outside the bar waiting for the grand jury report. Decided him was his daughter.

In a few moments he left the courtroom and shortly returned under arrest, being accompanied by United States Marshal Balboa and his counsel. There are 21 counts in the indictment, the reading of which was waived.
